WAS A "DEER" DAY FOR ANTHONY

Also a Dear One When He Met
Deputy Warden Houghton
in the Woods

According to a charge read in the police court this morning, Anthony M. Blackey sallied forth yesterday to try out his new rifle on a deer. Also according to the same charge, Anthony was innocent of any permit or license to follow that much sought inhabitant of the forest.

It was Deputy Fish and Game Warden Houghton who brought the man to the seat of justice and it was under very peculiar circumstances that he made the arrest. The scene of the crime drama was the woods in the rear of the Lowell General hospital, where the deputy chanced to be strolling in the fulfillment of his official duty. According to his story Blackey appeared with a companion and the former carried a gun. "Have you seen any deer?" one of the two made bold to inquire of the official. "Have you a license to hunt?" was the substance of an investigation by Mr. Houghton a few seconds later. It was this latter pertinent question that was the remote cause of lightening the burden of Mr. Blackey's bank roll by the sum of ten dollars in the court this morning.

Of course it was quite impossible for the hunter to show what he had net. The rest of the sad tale is all too clear. But Mr. Blackey also had a story. He admitted carrying a gun, and also that the weapon was loaded. He stated, however, that he was not out to kill a deer, but rather to try a new gun which he recently obtained. He admitted that he would have liked to take a chance on a fox or a rabbit. His companion, he said, had a license and he was just out to keep him company.

All the while Judge Enright was looking up a penalty in a huge law book and he found that the minimum fee is $10 and the big end $50. He fined Blackey $10.

Firewater Artists

There were four of the above offenders in the court this morning and their cases were disposed of with much despatch. Joseph T. Coughlin was found guilty of intoxication and a sentence to the state farm was imposed and suspended for a term of six months, during which he will be under the weather eye of the probation officer. Otto Aliskala paid $5 for a second offense and there were two $3 contributions.

MANY MARITAL TROUBLES

Aired Before Judge Pratt
in Divorce Court

DESERTION IS THE PRINCIPAL GROUNDS FOR DIVORCE

Life

Stories of infelicitous marriages were recited before Judge Nathan D. Pratt in the divorce session of the superior court at the local court house in Gorham street today and decrees nisi were granted in many cases. In the majority of cases heard at the morning session the grounds for divorce were desertion but in one instance a decree nisi was granted when the husband testified that his wife had abused him.

The first case taken up was that of Robert H. Olney, who testified he was married to his wife, Alice, in this city on November 10, 1897 and lived together until June 24th, 1905 when she deserted him.

Florence E. Lincoln, of Marlboro, sought a divorce from William H. Lincoln setting forth desertion as the grounds. She and the libelee were united in marriage in Milbury, Mass., on November 25, 1890 and had four children, three of whom are minors. On March 26, 1908 her husband deserted her and she has not heard from him since. The court granted a decree nisi and gave the mother the custody of the minor children.

Gertrude Grimes, colored, married a sailor, but had not been married long before he left her and the last she heard of him he was in Pittsburgh. She said she was married to Andrew Grimes on June 3, 1904 in Boston and later went to Newburyport to reside. Her husband was a sailor by occupation and having set into some trouble he was sent to jail. After being discharged from the jail he failed to return to her.

Gertrude M. Dean of Somerville, who was married to William A. Dean at Roxbury on Jan. 3, 1905, testified that her husband cruelly treated her. A decree nisi was granted and she was given the custody of her minor child.

Suit Against Boston Lawyer
The case of James C. McLellan against Samuel A. Fuller, a Boston lawyer, which opened before Judge McLellan in the session with juries in the superior court yesterday afternoon, was resumed this morning.

Mr. Fuller was counsel for the plaintiff in an action against the Moore Spinning Co., resulting from an injury to his son, an employee of the spinning company. When the case was called for trial Mr. Fuller was unable to find the notice served on the company as required by law and as a result a verdict for the defendant company was ordered by the court. Mr. McLellan now sues the attorney for the amount of the claim against the Moore spinning Co., claiming that he failed to do his duty in the matter of serving notice and is therefore liable.

European Powers Striving to Get the Balkan Nations to Bring About Proper Treaty

LONDON, Nov. 22.—"Come and take present terms more into line with the facts of the situation and to arrange a treaty which will give them all the have conquered but will leave out that which has not been conquered."

Compared with its earlier disastrous experiences, the Turkish army evidently now considers itself in a relatively favorable position. Military experts here see in the at least temporary failure of the projected Bulgarian rush into Constantinople signs of a reaction among the invaders after their sustained efforts of the past month.

In view of the fact that the Ottoman capital, even if captured must ultimately be evacuated in accordance with the decree of the great powers it appears that the allies have nothing to gain by insisting on the surrender of the lines which form virtually the gates of the city. Hence the hope expressed by diplomats that their demand will be withdrawn in which case it is thought that Turkey, recognizing that she has no prospect of taking the offensive for the recovery of her lost territory, would quickly conclude that

PETERS APPEALS FOR GIOVANNITTI

Asks the Jury to Cast Aside Any Feeling of Race Prejudice
They May Entertain

SALEM, Nov. 22.—W. Scott Peters planned to conclude his argument for Arturo Giovannitti today in the Essex Superior court in the case of the murder of Anna Lopizzo in the Lawrence strike.

Following him, Dist. Atty. Atwill was to make the closing speech for the commonwealth.

It was expected that the charge to the jury by Judge Quinn, which was to follow the district attorney's closing would be a long one and that the case would not go to the jury until tomorrow.

Mr. Peters resumed his argument when court convened, appealing to the jurors to cast aside whatever feeling of race prejudice they might have in deliberating on the case. Giovannitti's purpose in going to Lawrence he declared was "grand and noble" and he compared the young prisoner to Garrison and Lincoln. What he did during the strike, Mr. Peters said, Giovannitti did in the open, knowing that he was surrounded by detectives.

It is ridiculous to believe that Giovannitti ever made the speech attributed to him telling the strikers "to go out and seek the blood of the scabs," Mr. Peters said. He might just as well have gone to the police station and invited the officers of the law up to the common and told them to come to hear him make a speech in violation of the law inciting violence. The speech quoted here by these detectives is absurd, preposterous, absolutely untrue, he said.

SCHRANK IS INSANE

Decision of Alienists is Unanimous

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 22.—The commission of alienists investigating as to the mental condition of John Schrank, who shot Col. Roosevelt, today reported unanimously that he was insane.

The conclusions reached by the committee are as follows: First, John Schrank is suffering from insane delusions, grandios in character and of a systematized variety. Second, in our opinion, he is insane at the present time. Third, on account of the connection existing between his delusions and the act he stands charged with we are of the opinion that he is unable to confer intelligently with counsel on the conduct of his defense.

St. Jean Baptiste Church to be Rebuilt as Soon as it is Possible

VIEW OF ALTAR IN ST. JEAN BAPTISTE CHURCH AS SEEN FROM ORGAN LOFT AFTER THE FIRE

Rev. Fr. Watelle, O. M. I., is deeply grateful for the expressions of sympathy on the destruction of St. Jean Baptiste church by fire yesterday.

The edifice will be rebuilt, the basement will be prepared for worship as soon as possible and in the meantime the parish will worship at St. Joseph's.

A representative of The Sun viewed the ruins of St. Jean Baptiste church this morning and as much as he could see the inside of the temple is a total wreck. The fine organ, which cost $16,000, and which was installed about four years ago, is badly ruined and in all probability will have to be taken out, for it is believed the repairs would cost nearly as much as was paid for the organ. It was not damaged by fire on account of the water tower being kept in continuous use pouring a large stream of water just above it. However, tons of water fell on it and a part of the roof caved in on its top. As it stands now it is very dangerous to venture on the upper floor of the church, for the instrument which weighs about 15 tons without its extra burden of debris is liable to fall down any moment.

The sanctuary of the upper church is also a total wreck, with the exception of the three altars, which, by the way, are made of wood, but which were not touched by the flames, although their surroundings were ruined by the blaze. Another strange fact is that the statue of St. Jean Baptiste, which rests on a wooden base several feet high on the summit of the altar is untouched.

Pews a Wreck

The pews in the two main aisles are a total wreck, they having been broken by the falling debris, while those in the two small aisles are, with the exception of a good ducking, in good condition. In all probability they will all be taken out and replaced by new ones of a different type. The walls with the exception of the one facing Merrimack street are all torn down, only the stone work remaining.

As far as the writer could see, the fire started in the lower sacristy on the Moody street side of the building and near the gas meter. The flames broke their way between the walls into the upper church and from there into the blind attic, where the fire fighters lost track of them. In the lower sacristy the walls are in good condition, but the ceiling is badly burned, while over the altar that part of the ceiling is badly damaged. The lower church was damaged by water only, and it is feared the ceiling will fall as it is cracked in several places. The small organ in the rear of the church was saved by the presence of mind of the firemen, who covered it with rubber blankets.

The debris is still as left yesterday and will not be removed until the premises are cleared by the insurance people. The church building is locked and the public is kept away from the premises.

Rev. Henri Watelle, O. M. I., pastor, when interviewed by the writer this morning stated that he had not the least idea as to the loss. He believes, however, that the organ cannot be repaired cheaper than its original cost, for the frame of the large instrument, which is of solid oak, is scorched through and a large number of the brass pipes are filled with water and other material coming from the roof, while a number of them are broken or bent out of commission. When asked about future plans, the reverend gentleman replied as follows:

"I don't saw a local architect relative to the construction of the church, but no plans are yet made. However, one sure thing, the gallery will be lowered in order that anyone may see the altar from any part of it. As it is the gallery is too high and the pews are so arranged as to cut the view of the officiating clergyman. In all probability the church plans will be as the previous building and work will be started as soon as the insurance is settled."

Beginning next Sunday masses will be celebrated at St. Joseph's church from 6:30 a. m. until 11:30 a. m. There will be no high mass, and the children will attend services at the C. M. A. C. hall in Pawtucket street, where masses will be celebrated at 7:30 and 9 o'clock. All marriages will be performed at St. Joseph's church, which funeral masses will also be celebrated there. As soon as the insurance people have adjusted matters work will be started on setting a temporary roof on the upper floor of the building and then the basement will be put in shape for services.

Fr. Watelle greatly feels the catastrophe which befel his parish yesterday, but is very grateful to all those who have sympathized with him and his flock in the following message which he sends to the people of Lowell.

"I cannot express with what appreciation I noted the sincere sympathy which the civil and religious authorities of the city displayed immediately after the disaster which came to the French population of St. Joseph's parish yesterday.

"Although differing in nationality and creed, many of the earliest expressions of sympathy and a number of generous contributions for a new church were received from persons entirely outside of the parish. Upon request of certain prominent citizens of the city, I have organized a public subscription as a means of defraying a part of the enormous losses, and I take this opportunity to extend my thanks to those who have already made contributions, in behalf of the parishioners of St. Joseph's parish."

"I regard the subscription as no less important to St. Joseph's parish than the completion of the French American orphanage which is now in process of construction. It is a great comfort to know that St. Joseph's parish has the good will of the people of Lowell, so generously expressed."

Among those present at the fire yesterday was Bishop Edmund of Valley field, who was visiting friends in Nashua. He was accompanied by his private secretary and he extended his sympathy. Cardinal O'Connell was yesterday afternoon apprised of the disaster by Rev. Guillaume Ouellette, O. M. I., and this morning, after extending his sympathy to the clergy and men of the parish as well as to their flock, said he would look over the ruins today.

Attorneys Who Were Opponents in the Trial of the Gunmen

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Dist. Atty. Whitman, who is being highly praised because of the successful prosecution of former Lieut. Becker and the gunmen he hired to murder Herman Rosenthal, says that the verdict means the end of gang rule in New York city. This is the first time that a gangster has been convicted of first degree murder, though killings have been frequent. Convicting four members of a powerful gang at one time is expected to strike terror into the hearts of the men who believe allegiance to a leader is better than obedience to law. Former Magistrate C. G. F. Wahl, who defended the gunmen, was complimented by Dist. Atty. Whitman on the efforts he made for his clients. After the trial the two lawyers left the courtroom together, and this snapshot of them was made at that time.

WILL PREPARE DRAMA

St. Joseph's College Alumni Will Help to Rebuild St. Jean Baptiste Church

The executive committee of l'Association des Anciens Elèves du Collège St. Joseph held a meeting last night. President Alfred P. Caisse, Jr., occupied the chair and considerable business was transacted. Sam S. Parent, one of the directors announced that the widest party which he is organizing under the auspices of the association and for the benefit of the French American orphanage would be held on Dec. 19, and he urged the other members of the committee to join in the selling of tickets. He also told that a first class entertainment program would be provided and a good time was in store for all who will attend.

The committee also voted to prepare a dramatic offering to be given in the near future for the benefit of St. Jean Baptiste church, and the secretary was authorized to write a letter of sympathy to the Oblate Fathers of St. Joseph's parish and also to inform them that the association will do its share for the rebuilding of the temple. Mr. Alfred P. Caisse, Jr., was appointed director of the play and he will soon call together a number of the boys to begin rehearsals, as "Sinner's Victory," a four-act drama, which had such a successful run three years ago, may be repeated.

HAMILTON MANUFACTURING CO.

Wins an Interesting Suit in the United States District Court at Philadelphia

On Saturday, Nov. 16th, there was handed down in the United States district court at Philadelphia, Pa., before Judge Holland, a decision in favor of the Hamilton Mfg. Co., of this city, in their suit against the Roxford Knitting Co., manufacturers of underwear, Philadelphia, Pa., to recover for alleged breach of contract. The suit dates back to orders placed during the spring of 1911 and has been followed with interest by the trade. The action was brought to recover on two orders for 100,000 pounds each of stained combed Egyptian yarn, Nos. 18s to 22s, for which the defendant was said to have contracted and which they later repudiated. On or about June 29, 1911, the first shipment on the order was delivered and it was the claim of the defendant that while the yarn at first appeared to be in entire accord with the agreement of purchase it was later found to be defective and wholly unfit for their purpose. Thereupon they gave notice of this to Catlin & Co., the representatives of the Hamilton Mfg. Co., who admitted the defect and offered to take back the yarn, making allowance for what had been used, and to deliver perfect yarn upon the balance of the contracts. When the complaint was made 35,000 pounds had been delivered, and of this 20,000 pounds was returned. The defendant refused to accept any further shipments in spite of the offer of Catlin & Co. to make good on the defective yarn and to guarantee delivery of perfect yarn on the balance of the contract. Upon this Catlin & Co., as representatives of the Hamilton Mfg. Co., brought suit to recover $13,243 for alleged breach of contract. The defendant maintained in reply that the total value of the fabric manufactured from the yarn was not worth in the market more than $6161, and that this had cost them a total of $10,066, consisting of $6100 paid for yarn delivered and $3866 as cost of manufacturing. This, it was their contention, resulted in a loss to them of $2905, which they held was justly due them. The argument of the plaintiff's tended to show that they had admitted the defects mentioned and had offered to make good in every possible way, but that the defendant had refused to take advantage of such offers and by refusing to accept deliveries of any more yarn had broken their contracts. The trial was by jury, and in the hearing of the case expert legal talent was employed by both sides and numerous witnesses from various branches of the trade yarn dealers, manufacturers and department store buyers, etc., were called upon to testify. The result was a victory for the plaintiff, who was awarded a verdict of $5300.

Experts Pick Crowther of Brown as Best Quarterback of the Season

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 22.—With the end of the football season in sight the experts are now beginning to select the men for their All-American. According to many eastern experts, George Crowther of Brown should be awarded quarterback position on the mythical team. In the open field run-

ing the "Kid," as Crowther is termed by his teammates, is easily a rival of Sprackling, last year's star in the position, whose place he is filling. His work was the feature of the Harvard game. With little or no support against Harvard, Crowther directed the end, time and again for spectacular

I consulted good physicians, but the results were disappointing. My landlady advised me to try Swamp-Root as the last resort, which I did and I was quickly relieved.

On the defense Crowther is a sure tackler. He has not missed a possible tackle this year and has several difficult chances to his credit. Crowther weighs only 140 pounds and is often handled very roughly by his heavy tacklers, but he is game to the last and one of the hardest fighters seen on the gridiron this season.

FLIGHT OF LOWELL OWLS

Local Order Flew to Elks Hall Last Night

SEVERAL SPIRITED "HOOTS" AND COMMITTEE REPORTS

The Meeting Was Most Enthusiastic—The Order Is Increasing Rapidly in Membership

The Lowell Owls "flew" in large numbers to their nest in Elks hall, Middle street last night. The meeting was a most enthusiastic one and Wise Owl C. W. Richards occupied the main roost. Chairman Monahan of the sick-visiting committee reported, among other things that Brother John H. Bennett, was beginning to fly around again. The news was received with many hoots as big Owl Bennett is one of the most popular birds in the nest. Every brother owl is rejoicing at his recovery. Dr. Wesley Sawyer, known to the nest as "Foxie Grandpa," has been most faithful in his attendance upon Brother Bennett and every owl in the nest has a warm corner in his heart for "Foxie Grandpa."

President C. W. Richards has been getting on a great hustle for members and presented a number of names of candidates for membership.

There was much hailing for candidates, after which a nice class was received into the mysteries of this great fraternity which seeks to make, of all the time, between infancy and death, common ground, where brothers can meet and mingle in equal rank for common good.

In the Owls Nest all are equals. They know no high, no low, no rich, no poor; courtesy and kindness are over their watchwords. The friendship of friends is ever extended every loyal brother.

Past President E. M. Bowers read several very interesting letters of widows and orphans who have been helped financially by the home nest. These letters are from many different states in the Union and every letter is vouched for by Mr. Bowers also read a communication received by him from the Pacific coast where many new nests of owls are being instituted in Tacoma, Seattle, Olympia, and many other cities and towns in the state of Washington and Portland and Salem and other cities of Oregon.

The next meeting of the Lowell nest will be held on Thursday evening, Dec. 5th when the nomination for the officers for 1913 will be made.

The elections will be held on the third Thursday of Dec. and the installation on the first Thursday in Jan., 1913.

Cascarets Tonight! If Bilious, Constipated, Headachy and Sick

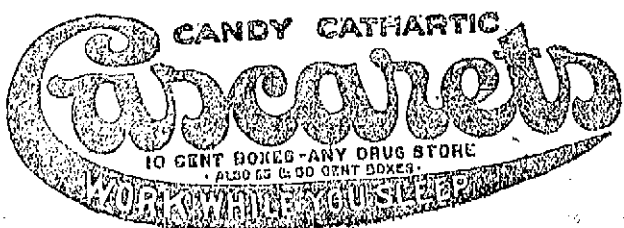

Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, constipation, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out tonight with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress—wake up refreshed and feel fine. Let Cascarets cleanse and sweeten your stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that misery-making gas; take the excess bile from your liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and constipation poison from the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box keeps your head clear, stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular and you feel cheerful and bully for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

BOOTT GIRLS HELD DANCE

Large Attendance at the Annual Social

The annual dancing party of the Boott Girls club took place last night in Lincoln hall and enjoyed a very large attendance. The affair was a great success in every way and reflects credit on all who had charge of the arrangements.

This club is well known in Lowell as one of the most energetic and popular of girls' clubs and they gave further evidence of this at their annual event last evening. The young ladies got out a dance order that was a very attractive one and after each dance was a "hit" at one of the members or a legend in commemoration of some worthy event.

The music was furnished by Clark's orchestra and the melodies which they turned out of their instruments were of the finest quality. Miss Ethel Knowlton rendered several very pleasing vocal solos. Dancing began shortly after eight o'clock and continued until midnight.

Those in charge were the following: General manager, Minnie O'Connell; assistant general manager, Mary Conway; floor director, Bessie Lynch; assistant floor director, Mary Conway; chief aid, Catherine Crowe; aids, Elizabeth O'Connell, Della Farrell, Mollie Coleman, Mary Sullivan, Fannie Fitzgerald, Alice O'Neil, Rose Mulholland, Anna Stowell, Mary Martin, Anna Bradley, Nellie Lynch, Mary Daley, Angelina Shea.

MATRIMONIAL

A pretty wedding took place Wednesday evening at the parochial residence of the immaculate Conception church of the bride's parents. After the ceremony a reception to relatives and friends was held at the home of the bride's parents. After a trip to the bride's home, the wedding party, consisting of the bride, groom, bridesmaids, flower girls, ring bearer, and best man, proceeded to the home of the bride's parents for a reception. The bride wore a gown of white tulle and carried a bouquet of white bride's roses. Miss Nellie Mulligan, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a suit of light gray whiplash and carried pink roses. Mr. John Mulligan, brother of the bride, acted as best man. Pants with Suit or Overcoat orderedFRIDAY or SATURDAY

Warm weather is keeping back orders for Winter Clothing in particular Overcoats. To brace things up and make you order in spite of the warmth, I am giving absolutely FREE a pair of Trousers with each Suit or Overcoat ordered FRIDAY or SATURDAY.

P. S.—It is axiomatic of business that you can't get something for nothing in this world. This rule makes some persons think I charge for Free Trousers when I give them to customers on special occasions. The belief is absolutely without foundation, in fact, I don't charge one cent extra for the Pants, and it is true you don't get them for nothing. Business is worth money to me. I have to let go to get business. I let go to the landlord. I let go to the help. I let go to the newspapers for advertising. I let go to the people, every now and then, to force them to buy and to talk about me. The only condition I impose is that you come from this advertisement and let me know it by asking for the Pants before you leave the store.

Come in, pick out the cloth you want, have my cutter measure you for Suit or Overcoat, then make your selection for the FREE PANTS, or pick them before you are measured.

THIS IS A KEYED ADVERTISEMENT. It is designed to let me know if you are following my announcements.

Blouses for Wear With the Smart Winter Suits That Seem to Excite the Fancy of the Fashionable Women During the Present Season

Every season separate blouses for wear with tailored suits become prettier and prettier, and this winter's models are no exception to the rule. The lines are more artistic, the coloring more alluring and the workmanship more carefully executed on the latest waists than they have ever been before.

The blouse matching the costume is still smart, but it is not an imperative fashion requirement, as it has been for the past few seasons. Women are not going back to the days of the separate silk waist that did duty with every odd skirt in the wardrobe. If one so desires, but there is no gainsaying the fact that the separate blouse that does not match the skirt will be much in evidence this winter.

The chiffon blouse in its various phases helps to solve the problem for the woman who is trying to select a waist for her winter costume of heavy woven material or corduroy, for it is cool enough for comfort, yet becoming and dressy. This blouse is having an immense vogue and is shown in all degrees of elaboration from the very frilly model, in which laces and embroideries play an important part, to the smart and traveling blouse in which the dark veiling rises quite to the base of the throat and exposes no more than a becoming collar and cuff finish of the filmy material which veils it.

There is nothing decidedly new in these blouses except the vast efforts which are displayed on many of the smartest waists. These vests have replaced the shallow yokes of net and shadow lace that appeared on the blouses that ranged in price all the way from $5 to $25.

The Robespierre collar is another manifestation of newness and a fancy of the moment which has "caught on" too violently to be appreciated by the woman who likes her clothes to have an exclusive and individual air.

One should not omit in the summing up of the blouse situation the great vogue of long sleeves that are a part at least of most of the best looking daytime waists.

One very seldom sees the kimono sleeve, but the dropped armhole is extremely swaggy if not always a becoming style to its wearer. Most of the severely tailored waists are cut on mannish lines, and unless the wearer is rather plump such a cut is apt to be trying to the figure. This trouble may be overcome, however, by the addition of two tucks, an inch wide each, applied at the shoulder seam. This arrangement of fullness is quite unlike the Gibson plait. The great illustrator's idea was to increase the apparent width of the shoulders, while the new effect simply gives fullness over the bust.

Some of the attractive new tailored waists carried out in silk, crepe de chine and French flannels mitigate their severity a trifle by the introduction of a long close fitting sleeve trimmed with piping or cords of white silk when dark materials are used. Frills of some kind—either lace, net or of the blouse fabric—finish the long sleeve model.

blouse world, and any of them could be easily copied by the amateur dress-maker.

Pretty as a picture is the little maid seen in the large cut attired in a Robespierre blouse. The model is of royal blue charmeuse, and the waist has an elongated peasant shoulder into which is set the modish long Robespierre sleeve. The dainty rhinestones studded jet buttons are worth noting. The high hairdressing and the handsome engraved gold buckle add a charm to the pretty costume.

Black and white charmeuse, combined with white chiffon, makes another one of the blouses which are especially designed for wear with a black tailored suit. This waist is a modified combination of the Robespierre and directoire styles, and the satin buttons and braid loops give a military suggestion.

The collar on the elaborate blouse of crepe de chine is not as high as it looks, for the deep points turn down over a stock of ordinary proportions. The jabot of lace insertion caught together with a bow of ribbon at the bottom is a new notion.

Tucked green chiffon over white mes-saline makes another one of the new models. This blouse is brightened by a plastron of exquisite ventral lace and rows of small white enamel buttons.

Nothing seems to escape the influence of the Robespierre craze this season, and the latest development of this mode is in fur. At the present moment there is a wonderful liking for the turn-down collar worn during the period of French history which, with its cascades and frills of lace, gave the world a mode that proved so becoming a setting for the face of every woman.

The full example of the Robespierre collar is generally to be seen without the lace frills. Tails of the animal from which the pelt has been confiscated are the substitutes most used.

White and black collars are expressed in ermine, the note of black being seen in the tails that act in place of the frills of lace. On one side these tails are more numerous and hang in a sort of fringe, while on the opposite side only three or four are laid lengthwise, so that the effect of the two sides is quite different.

A fur collar of this kind is a fine way to make over your old skin that have become worn in places and are unfit for their original use. Naturally the long haired furs are taboo for the Robespierre collar.

"TRAVELER SHOES ARE BEING IMITATED"

By certain inferior shoe stores in Lowell. Certain shoe store fakers have dressed their show windows to imitate Traveler Shoe windows and have "doctored" their shoes with "shoe paint and powder" so as to try to make them look like Travelers. "You can lead a horse to the trough, but you can't make him drink." You can fix up an ordinary shoe to improve its looks, but you can't make it look like a Traveler, and we know they won't wear like Travelers. IT MAY BE CRIMINAL ACTION

That Will be Brought in Grand Trunk—The New Haven Road Dispute

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Atty. Gen. Wickersham probably will complete his preparations for an extensive investigation of the proposed traffic agreement between the Grand Trunk railway of Canada and the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad at a conference here today with United States Dist. Atty. Wise of New York, and Asst. Atty. Gen. Adkins, who has charge of the inquiry.

It is expected that Wm. H. Bonham, a special agent of the department of justice, will leave Washington for New York and New England to examine the agreement between the two companies to determine whether their proposed arrangement will destroy competition between them in violation of the Sherman antitrust law.

It developed yesterday that, in case the department of justice ultimately moves against the route, the action in all probability will be in the nature of a criminal prosecution. Officials are unable to see what could be accomplished by a civil suit because the federal government could not force the Grand Trunk to complete the extension said to have been abandoned in Southern New England.

One reason for the abandonment for the time being of the plan to develop the situation by means of a grand jury inquiry at New York was, it is understood, that the testimony before a grand jury under subpoena would grant immunity to the witnesses in case violation of law was shown.

It is the desire of the department of justice to grant immunity to no one unless necessary. Pres. McLean of the New Haven and Pres. Chairman of the Grand Trunk have offered to place their looks at the disposal of the government, and the attorney general hopes to develop the facts through such a direct examination. If this no third falls, a grand jury inquiry will be resorted to.

Atty. Gen. Wickersham possesses a copy of the proposed agreement between the two roads, but it is said not to afford any evidence of violation of law. It is understood to relate to trackage privileges to be granted the Grand Trunk by the New Haven and does not mention the alleged suspension of work on the Grand Trunk's extensions.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Adkins yesterday held long conferences with Chairman MacLeod of the Massachusetts railroad commission and Chairman Bliss of the Rhode Island utilities commission, both of whom presented further arguments on behalf of New England in opposition to the proposed agreement.

WAS GUTTED BY FIRE

House in First Street Badly Damaged

A cottage at 252 First street, owned by Herbert Cowdell and occupied by Joseph E. Doyen and family, was badly damaged by fire yesterday afternoon. Although the firemen were handicapped because many of the members of the department were at work at St. Jean Baptiste church, they succeeded in confining the fire to the upper portion of the house.

The fire had its origin in a wood box in the rear of the kitchen stove and there was no one in the house at the time. When discovered shortly before four o'clock the fire had worked its way up to the roof and the upper part of the building was aflame.

After half an hour's battle with the flames the lower part of the building was saved, the three upper rooms being badly damaged, while the roof was completely burned away.

Held Celebration

The rooms of the Pawtucketville Social club were last night the scene of a lively reunion, the event being the 15th anniversary of the organization of the club. The members observed the event with a whist contest and an entertainment program, followed by the serving of refreshments. The committee in charge of the celebration was composed of the following: Joseph A. Harvey, president; Ursula Larue, Henri Allard and Eulide Cinq-Mars.

IS GIVEN EIGHT YEARS

White Slaver Sent to the Penitentiary

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—George Levy, who murdered a man in Boise, Idaho, 11 years ago and escaped life imprisonment on a promise to leave the United States and reform, was convicted in the federal court here yesterday of violation of the "white slave" act.

United States Judge Hugh sentenced him to eight years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

Levy, alias "Blome the Tailor," brought a young French woman, Gertrude Malet from Havre, France, to Portland, Ore. When the circumstances under which the woman came to this country were learned, Levy was brought here for deportation, but federal officers decided to prosecute.

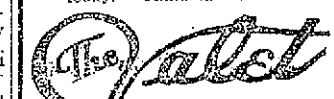

Upon conviction of the murder of David Levy in Boise, "Blome" was sentenced to death. This was commuted to life imprisonment and he served 10 years before getting his release. His pardon was revoked after his arrest in the present case.

Penn and Cornell Elevens Are Ready to Play Their Annual Thanksgiving Day Gridiron Game

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—The football elevens of Cornell and Pennsylvania are ready for their annual Thanksgiving day gridiron scrap here on Franklin field. This will be the twentieth meeting of the two colleges on the football field. Out of the nineteen games played Cornell has won one battle. In 1901 Cornell defeated Penn by a score of 24 to 6. In 1908 the two elevens played a 0 to 0 game. It seems that no matter how strong a team Cornell sends here to tackle Penn, the Red and Blue men take them into camp. This season both teams have made a poor showing. In the game with Michigan recently Penn put up a remarkable game. With the score 21 to 0 against them after the first half the Red and Blue men won in the second half by some wonderful playing. The score at the end was 27 to 21 in favor of Penn. Picture shows scene in Michigan-Penn game. Mercer of Penn, making an end run. The probable lineup of the two elevens will be:

PORTER—The funeral of Robert Porter took place Thursday afternoon from his home, 1 Viles avenue, and was largely attended. Services were conducted at the house by Rev. Appleton Grannis of St. Anne's church.

Among the floral offerings were the following: Pillow of chrysanthemums and roses, inscribed "Husband and Father," from the family; wreath of chrysanthemums from the employees of the Friend Bros. bakery; wreath of roses and chrysanthemums from Mrs. Forsythe and family, and wreath of chrysanthemums from the employees of the Merrimack wool room. The bearers were Messrs. James Forsythe, Dr. Edward Forsythe, John Hogan, Thomas Berry, Timothy Mullin and John Donnelly. The burial was in the family lot in the Edison cemetery. Rev. Appleton Grannis conducted the services at the grave. Funeral Director

COMPLAIN OF FREIGHT DELAY

Shippers Testify as to Boston & Maine—Boston, Lynn and Nashua Represented

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Examiner Ward today devoted the whole of his column to the complaint of shippers as to freight delay on the Boston & Maine line. The complaint was continued this morning.

D. O. Ives of the Boston chamber of commerce raised the issue of the freight delay for securing a proper coal supply for New England, and urged that the matter be considered by the committee.

Vice President E. H. Leland of the New Haven road also raised the question of the delivery of coal to the homes of the people. He said that the coal supply from the mines to the households of this section.

Mr. Ives said that he is at present more interested in the home of people with sufficient coal supply than in maintaining the industrial energy of New England. It is understood the matter will be taken up later.

Delay in Transit
A. J. Merrick of the Boston chamber of commerce presented some figures in which was stated that out of 275 cars to points on the New Haven road, originating in Buffalo, in the first seven months of the year, 22 were 3 days or more in transit; 17, 10 days; 13, 11 days; and 12, 12 days or more, or less out of 275 were 3 days or more in transit.

The number of days occupied in transit for the 17 cars which were 3 days or more on their journey, according to the figures obtained from the railroads, were: 28, 26, 12, 12, 20, 14, 31, 11, 13, 12, 14, 22, 13, 16 and 16.

Of 255 cars shipped by Mr. Merrick's company from Buffalo to points on Boston & Maine and Maine Central railroads during the first seven months of 1912, the delays were: 20 cars and less than 11 in transit, 9; 14 days or more in transit, 11; less than 7 days in transit, 25; 8 and 9 days in transit, 12; showing 26% cars

Our friends and ourselves would not willingly be without Musterole, as it has saved our lives and expenses many times.—William H. New, Sacramento, Cal.

Complaint From Nashua and Lynn

W. H. Thompson, doing business at Nashua and Keene, N. H., testified that he did not complain of the number of trains running from Nashua, but the delay of these trains in passing through Andover, Winchendon, Dartmouth and Gardner, it meant, as he said, a delay of from 12 to 24 hours at each place.

Goods arriving at Nashua, he said, were often delayed as arriving two and three days before they actually did arrive, the bills of lading being presented to the railroad companies.

The witness said that in his judgment, Nashua is being discriminated against in favor of Boston, because shipments from Lowell to Nashua would not be accepted so quickly as those from Boston to Nashua.

Ralph S. Bunker, president of the Lynn board of trade and vice president of the Essex county board of trade, said he found in his business experience that the Boston & Maine had taken of a great many things and had a great many things in the Lynn board of trade.

The number of men employed now in the brick houses at Lynn, he said, as compared with the number formerly employed and the proportionate increase in business which has taken place, leaves matters as they were a great many years ago. He argued that a continuance of the present system would mean the closing up of several industries in Lynn.

Freight Yard Conditions
Councilor Hatchford for the Boston & Maine asked Mr. Bunker to say whose industries would be destroyed, but the witness declined. He instance two or three cases in which express men and others in similar lines had told him within a few days that conditions in the Boston & Maine yard at Lynn are worse than they have been for 25 years.

Mr. Bunker invited Examiner Prouty to spend half a day in Lynn and see the freight yard conditions there for himself, or to delegate somebody to look into it. He also said that he believed conditions were the same in Salem, Haverhill, Gloucester and elsewhere on the line.

The witness aroused considerable interest among the audience. The railroad officials assert the present system is efficient, and knows what we would do if there was inefficiency.

He gave an instance in his own experience as to a case of route, of a kind he said to school children in the junior grades that has been on the way from Albany to Lynn since Sept. 18. So far as Mr. Bunker has been able to trace it, he believes that the children will have graduated from the grammar school before it reaches Lynn.

By American Federation of Labor

Radical Socialists Supported The President

Non-Political Policy Indorsed—Election of Officers to Take Place Saturday

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 22.—An important feature of yesterday's session of the American Federation of Labor convention was the endorsement of the committee on president's report.

The endorsement was adopted after lengthy debate. Delegate Alex Hayes, a socialist member of the radical wing, opposed the committee's report on the ground that during the last campaign, Pres. Gompers had, through publications of the federation, supported the democratic candidate for president and that in making plans favorable to labor from various political platforms he had made no quotations from the socialist platform. Several socialist members of the radical group supported Hayes in his contentions.

Andrew Gallagher, a conservative representing the California State Federation of Labor, then introduced an amendment to the committee's report providing that the matter of forming a national labor party should be left to the executive council of the federation.

Pres. Gompers declared the amendment out of order and Delegate Gallagher appealed from the ruling. In the vote on the appeal socialist members of the radical wing voted with members of the conservative wing to sustain the president's ruling. The committee's recommendation for the continuance of the federation's nonpolitical policy was then put to vote and was approved by a large majority. In his vote radicals, including socialists, opposed the committee's recommendation and conservatives favored the committee's view.

At the afternoon session of the Federation of Labor the question of adding the Chicago provision, who are on strike, came up. The resolution of endorsement to which a resolution had been referred, several leading representatives of the executive council of the federation to Chicago to attempt adjustment of the difficulty. An amendment providing federation backing for the president if conciliatory measures failed was defeated and the chairman's report was adopted.

A few days ago the convention refused to send the delegates of the International Association of Steam and the Water Filers and Helpers. Today the convention will decide whether the association's charter shall be amended.

HETTY GREEN'S BIRTHDAY

"Richest Woman in the World" is 78 Years Old

Chewing Baked Onions Her Secret of Health—She Refuses to Take a Day Off

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Mrs. Hetty Green, "the richest woman in the world," was 78 years old yesterday. "It's no holiday, though," she declared at her little square rosewood desk at the head of Wall street. "Why should I take a holiday and waste a whole day, just because I happened to be born on Nov. 21, 1834?"

Mrs. Green consented to relax just long enough to dictate a series of "bonts" for girls. They were: "Don't envy. Don't overdress. Don't fail to go to church. Don't eat anything but good, wholesome food. Don't cheat in your business dealings. Don't forget to be charitable. Don't forget to obey the laws of God."

"I want you to know that I was born a Quaker and a Quaker I shall remain," she said, when asked if she intended to become a Catholic. "When I was a child, my father used to say to me that I had to go to church with him on Sunday mornings. In the afternoon and evenings, I could attend any other church I wished. It is true that I have entered the Episcopal faith, but that does not imply I have ceased to be a Quaker. That is the reason I dress so plainly. When I was a girl they accused me of overdressing and now they charge me with underdressing."

"No, I do not approve of suffrage, a woman's place is in her home, taking care of her husband and children. I took care of my husband and his stomach and he lived to be 83 years old."

"I don't know what I am worth. I mean that. You see, I sell a piece of property in Chicago for $200,000 I keep the money on deposit in the banks there. If I sell bonds in St. Louis for $200,000 I keep the money with the bankers there. In that way the banks help me to dispose of what I don't want."

"I have never hurt a poor person," she went on. "It is only the rich cranks who think he is entitled to something for nothing that I have fought. And the world is filled with that kind. They are all seeking money without giving an adequate return."

the impression she was chewing gum. "Most people don't like the smell of onions," she said, "but I find that by chewing an onion—a well-baked onion—after breakfast it kills any germs that might be in the stomach or the milk and keeps my digestion fine. My, yes! That piece of onion I am chewing now will last me all day."

"How much is you worth now?" Mrs. Green was asked. "I haven't the least idea." She said it very frankly. She left little doubt as to the truth of her statement. "It is $10,000,000, $27,000,000 or $100,000,000."

LIVE WHOLESALE JEWELER

A black and white halftone illustration of a woman standing in profile, facing left. She is wearing a long, flowing kimono with a dense, dark, leopard-like spot pattern over a lighter garment. Her hands are tucked into her voluminous sleeves. She wears a large, rounded, textured hat that covers her head and ears. The entire image is composed of a fine grid of dots, with varying densities to create shading and texture. The woman's feet are visible at the bottom, wearing simple flat shoes.

If you would be in the vanguard of fashion, by hook or by crook, procure a topcoat skin coat, even if you take the beauty of its fur. The pelts of this beast of the jungle is certainly sumptuous, and it has the added advantage of being excruciatingly honest; the designers of fashion in Paris have taken it as a model for the fur that is in the vanguard for this winter's wardrobe. The skins of this animal are very large, and the animal is a very handsome model.

The new coats of this winter are heavy over the shoulders, with kimono sleeves, or if the pattern favors it, used the armhole is large. As the coat hangs the bottom the fullness is more or less restrained. If an additional bow is added it holds in somewhat the fullness at the bottom. In most fur coats there is a slight increase of the seams to give this effect, and the tails or the coat hangs perfectly straight.

Many of the fur coats cut in three-quarter length have the cutaway fronts, which are so becoming. Sometimes a wide band is added of a contrasting fur which increases in width

MISS GARVIN IS STILL MISSING

Family Fears That She Has Committed Suicide by Drowning

LOWELL, R. I., Nov. 22.—That Miss Norma Garvin, daughter of ex-Gov. Lucius P. C. Garvin, committed suicide by drowning in the Blackstone river Wednesday evening is the opinion now reluctantly accepted by her family as the result of discoveries made yesterday after search for the missing young woman was begun.

Employees in the Ann and Hope mill yesterday found her hat floating on the Blackstone river at a point in the stream known as "New River," about a quarter mile from the Garvin home. Later a little girl, Ellen McLeod, picked up on the bank of the river in the same vicinity the small handbag Miss Garvin carried when she left her home Wednesday evening.

Search for her belongings by her family also resulted in the discovery in a drawer of her dresser of a note in her handwriting: "I can't get the water out of my mind." "I am so confused," thought Miss Garvin had become mentally affected and that an impulse to drown herself overcame her.

Miss Garvin left her house at 7.30 Wednesday evening to take the 7.45 train from the Lowville station to Providence, where she was to attend a lecture on woman suffrage at Brown university by Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott. Miss Garvin was interested in the suffrage movement and had planned to bring Mrs. Elliott home with her for the night.

From her house to the railroad station is a matter of only five minutes. No one, however, saw her at the station, on the train or at the lecture. It is now thought that from her home she went directly to the river. Along the road to the station the water is shallow and accidental drowning would be virtually impossible.

When she failed to return Wednesday night her family assumed that she had decided to pass the night with friends in Providence and did not worry. When, however, they learned yesterday morning that she had not been seen in Providence, they notified the local and the Providence police and also sought the assistance of private detectives in Providence.

After the discovery of the hat and the handbag the Lowville police and employees of the mill started to drag the river. They continued the work until midnight without results, but will resume today, for they are confident Miss Garvin's body is somewhere in the river.

Dr. Garvin, deeply affected by his daughter's disappearance, could give no explanation of it last night. He had supposed her to be in perfect health, he said, and never had a thought that anything was wrong with her mentally.

Traveling Drawing Exhibit

It will soon be possible for any city school to have a drawing exhibit of national significance practically without cost. Dr. Henry Turner Bailey and Mr. Royal B. Fennell are preparing for the United States bureau of education an exhibit of the best examples of drawing and art work in the elementary, high and normal schools of the United States, as well as one or two of the art schools.

The exhibit is to be sent to any city desiring it upon payment of the cost of transportation from the city last used using it. The transportation charges will be small.

The exhibit is not to be a large one, but it is being selected with unusual care, so as to show the work that will be most suggestive to teachers, children and school officers. It will be ready for shipment about January first, but cities desiring it should make application at once to the commissioner of education, Washington, D. C., in order that it may be dispatched to as many localities as possible with the least expense to each of them.

Dr. Clanton believes that this small but choice exhibit of drawing work, compiled by two acknowledged leaders of art teaching in America, will do much to aid the cause of drawing and art in the public schools.

SULLIVAN GETS DRAW

Twin Too Foxy for Gunboat Smith

BUFFALO, Nov. 22.—Jack ("Twin") Sullivan and "Gunboat" Smith, the California heavyweight, boxed 10 rounds to a draw here last night. "Gunboat" forced the boxing, but the Twin was too foxy for him and used all of his tricks to keep the Californian off.

Sullivan had the better of the fighting, using elbows and forearm repeatedly and holding the gunboat back. But he could not counter. At the long-range work Smith was superior and surprised even Sullivan's friends by the way he reached the Twin's face with a left jab.

Smith cut loose some swings that would have ended the battle had he landed, but Sullivan's cleverness and nimbleness made them go for naught. Sullivan made the Californian huddle in the last round and made a rattling finish. The bout was characterized by too much holding and Sullivan's work in the clinches.

Labore Beats Carson
LAWRENCE, Nov. 22.—At the County Cycle last evening three bouts were held, in the first of which Kid Thomas of Lawrence defeated Oscar Murray of Lynn.

In the second bout, between Andy Houston of Providence and Patsy De Luca of Boston, De Luca brought over a heavy right in the fourth round and Houston hit the canvas for the count. In the last and most interesting of the contests Tommy Carson of Lawrence was outclassed by Kid Labore of Manchester, N. H. The bout went 10 rounds and Labore had a big lead all the way. Jim Burke refereed.

COMFORTABLE CORSET

Suggestion That Will Interest Ladies

Everybody knows that the uncorrected figure is the most fashionable figure of the day. The woman who dares has already appeared at public functions without the restraint of steel and bone. The woman who can thus meet at the convenience of science is indeed fortunate. Long may she glory in her possession!

Comparatively few models are so blessed, and the great majority must therefore turn to that blessed substitute, the corset, which will most nearly reproduce the human figure and lend the effect of the uncorrected figure. The material that has proved itself most available for this purpose is one of the latest models. When this material was first used for corsets the stays were very expensive. Today they are within the reach of most purses, selling for from $3 up.

This tricot is a remarkably firm fabric, yet possessing sufficient elasticity to give with the movements of the body. That it is comfortable goes without further explanation.

There are various styles of these corsets—some have the low busts, others the medium. To get the perfect uncorrected effect it is best to adjust the low bust corset and to wear with it a brassiere. The brassiere, by the way, is often made of the tricot. This gives nothing above the waist but the very slight extension of the corset, practically only a girdle. Below the waist the flesh is firmly restrained as far as the knees. In the new year has the extension of the tricot to the knees. No danger with this corset of showing any break in the line of the corset at the bottom, which often ruins the effect of a snug fitting dress. As this material clings snugly to the figure there is none of the tightly corseted feeling often so uncomfortable in the long stays which have been the joke of the papers.

The comfort of these tricot corsets is further accentuated by the fact that they have practically no bones. One of the most popular models has only bones in the front, the necessary stays to hold the fastenings and two or three in the back. Over the hips there is only the tricot, stretched like the skin from the front to the back. Some women prefer buying over the hips. It really only a matter of personal choice.

When the tricot corsets were first made they were thought to be entirely inadequate to the needs of the stout woman, but today the tricot corset is successfully worn in all sizes.

For those who cannot rely upon nature to carry out the Parisian verdict on the corsets the tricot affair can be rolled upon to give the effect of the uncorrected figure. In pretty pinks and blues it takes on a decidedly bride-like appearance, the bones, the few used, being dressed in matching satin, with garters of the same.

Cleaning Bottles
To clean water bottles, pickle jars or any glass that is stained, when unable to get the hand in to wash properly, crush the shell of an egg small enough to get through the neck of the bottle, add a little warm water, shake well, and you will find the glass clean and the bottle nicely polished.

NEW JABOT AND COLLAR

Combination That Attracts Attention

Elaborately unique is the effect given to a simple tailored costume by one of these big lace and net neck arrangements, which are designed to be

The Burnt Onion Tonic
Never did a color fade take hold with more sympathetic grip than the burnt onion color this winter. One comes across the sunny orange yellow tone everywhere. Very little of the strong color is used, just a touch of it in the collar, neck bow, pipings or buttons, but wherever it is used it gives tone and a modernness to the entire costume. Many of the new blouses of white satin or of lace have buttons of amber, which is the shade that in fashion goes by the burnt onion name. A smart velvet neck bow will repeat the color touch of the yellowish buttons and give brightness and modernness to the whole blouse.

On black blouses for dress wear the burnt onion touch is especially effective, and somehow or other women who would never think of wearing such a strong and trying shade as orange are wearing burnt onion this season and looking very smart in it.

A black chiffon costume blouse brightened by burnt onion was noted recently at a smart gathering. When the coat of a black charmer suit was removed a black chiffon blouse came into evidence with the black chiffon mounted over white silk and mousseline transparent sleeves. A little bolero jacket of black chantilly lace crossed the tucked chiffon at back and front, and within the V formed by the jacket was a crossed vest of burnt onion chiffon fastened with jet buttons over black lace. At the neck was a deep lichen-like collar of black satin, and turning over it a very narrow collar of burnt onion velvet completed the color touch. The small plume curling over the hair at the left side, and smart boots of patent leather with buttoned tops of dull kid finished an immensely chic afternoon costume.

To Protect Your Stewpan

When a kettle or stewpan burns the contents or boils dry don't try to scrape off what is burned. Put in a lump of washing soda and add water enough to cover the bottom and the sides as far up as the scorch extends. A good scrub with all the hard crust removed.

HARD EARNED DOLLARS MUST NOT BE THROWN AWAY

DON'T PAY BIG PRICES FOR ANY MAKE PIANO

I have been telling the people for years that it is not necessary to pay luxury prices for PIANOS. A PIANO is no longer a luxury. I have taken it out of that class. I have made it as easy to secure a PIANO by reducing the price and making the terms of purchase as liberal as it is to secure any other household necessity.

I have educated the public in PIANO values to such an extent that the intelligent man or woman, who knows how to go about it, can now buy a PIANO for much less than it could be bought for five years ago. I am in receipt of letters daily from all over New England, praising me for my stand against the high-priced dealer, and I am selling more PIANOS at lower prices than ever before. It pays to protect the public.

Don't buy any make PIANO till you see me. Truthfully,

CONCERT BY BACHELOR GIRLS

Given Last Night Before Large Audience in Associate Hall

JAMES J. GALLAGHER
General Manager

Associate hall was literally packed last evening, and all present enjoyed one of the best amateur concerts given here in many years. The entertainment was provided by the Bachelor Girls, under the auspices of the Mathew Temperance Institute, and the program was one of rare excellence and variety. All numbers were enthusiastically received and encores were demanded from all the singers. Each responded and returned to her seat amid tremendous applause. The chorus work was especially good, and the entire concert was given in a manner that reflects great credit on all who assisted in its production.

William T. Gilmore personally directed the music, and James Bourke was in charge of the stage, and both worked untiringly on the arrangements and rehearsals for the show. That their efforts brought forth fruit was evident on all sides, and at the conclusion of the concert Messrs. Gilmore and Bourke shared in the congratulations with the girls.

The stage setting was one that added much to the success of the show. It represented a living room and was arranged in an artistic manner. The walls were decorated with pictures, arranged over a green background, while beautiful lace curtains were suspended from the windows inserted in the rear of the stage. A large dome lamp, suspended from the ceiling, threw its glows over a centre table, around which were assembled the members of the company, who occupied pretty willow chairs. Large American flags, hanging from the sides of the stage, completed the decorative feature. When the draperies were pulled open at the beginning of the performance, the sight was one of rare beauty. The young ladies wore light dresses and during the progress of the show a spotlight was successfully operated from the rear of the hall.

The program opened at 8 o'clock with an overture of popular songs by the entire company, and the number proved an excellent one. Miss Mae C. Gallagher, who performed the duties of "middle lady" in a most satisfactory manner, then announced the first solo number, which was "When You're Lonely," and it was cleverly given by Miss Eleanor Buckley. "Hello, Cupid, Send Me a Follow," was next given by Miss Marion Nolan, and the latter was well received. "Billy, Billy, Bounce Your Baby Doll" was Miss Madeline Baker's offering, and it proved one of the features of the show. "Fishing Moons" by Annie Wynn, brought great applause from the large audience, especially when the Pony Ballet assisted her during the chorus. The members of the Pony Ballet were Misses King, Gordon, Bolan, Sheehan, Houghton, Boyle, Buckley and McHale. "We're a Family of Old Folks" was exquisitely rendered by Miss Rose Nicholson. "That Mellow Melody" by Miss Alice Meeley proved a most entertaining number. "That's How I Need You" was rendered by Miss Lillian McPherson, and it was one of the best numbers of the program. The popularity of the piece, with the excellent rendition by Miss McPherson, made a decided hit with the audience. "Goodbye, Rose," given by Miss Helen Kennedy, shared in the applause of the preceding number. Miss Kennedy was well received and took her grand finale by the entire company, with solo, "I Love to Hear an Irish Band Upon St. Patrick's Day," by Miss Eleanor Buckley, who sang excellently, brought to a close a program that merited the favorable recognition accorded each and every number.

The members of the chorus are: Misses Anna Muldoon, Mae T. Gallagher, Lydia Gallagher, Agnes Nicholson, Katherine Malone, Marion Devine, Allan Conley, Cecal, Leno, Marion Smith, Lillian Smith, Katherine King, Ella Finnegan, Molly Patterson, Estelle Clancy, Isabelle Burns, Elizabeth Sullivan, Estelle Connelly, Elizabeth Latham.

General dancing was started at 9:30 o'clock and continued to midnight. Gilmore's orchestra furnishing the music.

The officers were: General manager, James J. Gallagher; floor director, John E. O'Neil; assistant floor director, Frank H. Kelley; aids, John J. Guthrie, Henry J. Barry, James Dunne, James E. McKee, Edward A. Conners, Raymond E. Kane, James P. Healy, secretary; Peter R. Brady, treasurer.

The Bachelor Girls will meet on next Tuesday evening in Mathew hall, and plans for several other concerts will be discussed. Other important matters will come before the meeting.

BOWLERS "HARD AT IT"

Busy Scenes on Local Alleys Last Night

IMMANUEL BAPTIST TEAM WON IN BARACA LEAGUE

Mr. Groves, Test Dept. Postoffice, Tack-ers and L. M. S. Foremen the Other

The local bowling alleys were well patronized last evening, many of the bowlers using their "wings" to grand advantage, smashing the pins in all directions and in several of the games very large scores were made.

In the Baraca league series the First Trinitarian Congregational and the Immanuel Baptist church teams met on the Crescent alleys and the latter quintet took all four points.

The hit of the evening was the game of the Moody Bridge league met on the alleys of the same name last night and all the points were captured by the 3L Groves.

Two teams from the Heinze Electric company, known as the Test Dept. and the Magneto Dept., had it at it on the alleys last night and the Test Dept. took two strings and the total. There were six men on each team and the match proved a very interesting and exciting one.

The Post Office team and the Ross Pits rolled a match game on the Crescent alleys, at which the latter carried away two strings and the total. Albert Willis was the star of the game, taking the high single of 113, and also making the highest three-string total, 310.

The Tackers and the Finishers of the Tannery league met on the 1. M. C. L. alleys last night and the former team had an easy time, winning the three strings and the total.

The Lowell Machine Shop Foremen and the Y. M. C. A. of the same name met on the Crescent alleys last night and the "busses" won all the points.

The bowling team of the Federal Shoe company wanted to see if they could make a match with any amateur team in the city, to be played on Dec. 5. Address all challenges to A. Dyer, at the Federal Shoe company.

The scores of last night's games were:

Woman Suffrage Convention PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—Expressing satisfaction over the enthusiasm displayed by the great crowds attending upon the first day's session, delegates to the 4th annual convention of the National Woman Suffrage convention were easily settling arrangements for their second day's work.
The national president, Dr. Anna Shaw, announced prior to a meeting of the executive board at 3:40 o'clock that efforts were being made to secure a hall of sufficient size to accommodate all who wished to attend the sessions.
After the executive meeting a general business session was held at which reports of committees were read and adopted, and recommendations from the executive board were received. A second business session will be held this afternoon and tonight's meeting will be given over exclusively to men.

Sam Walter Foss Club
The Sam Walter Foss Literary club held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Fred Bascom at 116 Hale street yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Bascom and Mrs. W. A. Wheeler were the hostesses of the afternoon, and Mrs. Foss, the president, presided at the meeting.
The subject for the afternoon was:

"The Life and Writings of Washington Irving," which proved to be a very interesting one. A paper on his life was read by Mrs. Wheeler and extracts from his book, "Legends of Sleepy Hollow," by Mrs. P. T. Bowen and Mrs.
Albert French. Readings by Miss Eva Canney, a pupil of Miss Adelaide Noyes, were much enjoyed and completed the program.
Following the business of the meeting delicious refreshments were served.
The next meeting of the club will be held Dec. 4th at the home of Mrs. W.
E. Hatch at 115 South Loring street.

THE WAR WITH TURKEY

she has nothing to gain by continuing the conflict. She would perhaps agree to enter into negotiations on the basis of a surrender to all but a reasonable strip of territory at the back of Constantinople, the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus.

Fighting continues today along the entire line of fortifications at Tchatalja, according to despatches from Constantinople. The Bulgarians are continuing their efforts to break through the Turkish lines but have hitherto been prevented from doing so by the fire of the Turkish warships.

TERMS DEMANDED BY BALKAN NATIONAL INCLUDED SURRENDER OF ADRIANOPLE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The rejection by Turkey of the conditions offered for an armistice between the opposing armies has been communicated to the Bulgarian government. One of the causes for their rejection was the opinion held in official circles in Constantinople that the conditions proposed by the allies deprived the Turks of an opportunity of resuming hostilities in the event of the plenipotentiaries failing to settle terms. This, from the Turkish viewpoint, meant no armistice at all.

Such conditions, it is held here, are made only when it is a question of the preliminaries of peace and by accepting such terms as those presented by the allies Turkey would be binding herself hand and foot.

It is further insisted that Turkey has not sunk to that degree of impotency which would compel her to accept such conditions.

ST. JEAN BAPTISTE CHURCH

the rectory last night and presented Fr. Watelle a handsome solid gold watch valued at $200, which can be utilized in raising funds.

Laurie Tremblay, janitor of the church, when seen by the writer this morning, made the following statement concerning the fire: "I was in the boiler room in the building adjoining the church when the fire broke out. I reached the scene of the blaze before the firemen. When I entered the sacristy I saw huge flames in the vicinity of the gas meter. I tried to put out the fire with the emergency extinguishers but it was useless. The fire fighters arrived shortly afterward and they set a line of hose on the meter. After controlling the flames they shut off the gas and then it was seen that the blaze had reached between the walls. With a fireman I went in front of the altar and then to the rear, where we broke through the wall, seeing our efforts were fruitless, we went upstairs and pierced the floor just above the altar which is situated in the lower church. There again the hose was used but to no avail. Finally the fireman climbed on the altar and pierced through the wall, but it was of no use, the flames had reached the blind altar and there it was seen that the building was doomed and immediately a second alarm was sent in.

RUINS OF INTERIOR OF ST. JEAN BAPTISTE CHURCH VIEWED FROM THE ALTAR

Fire Broke Out Again
Last night shortly after 7 o'clock the fire broke out again and the flames were seen from the street by Sgt. Ryan, who sent in a telephone alarm. The firemen responded and in a short time they had the blaze extinguished. The large cross on the top of the church building on the Moody street side fell with a crash in the progress of their working the water in that vicinity. It was shut off at 1 o'clock for a certain length of time.

A mass of men from the water department are digging at the corner of Moody and Allen streets today in order to replace the hydrant which was put out of commission during the fire yesterday. One of the men at work when asked what caused the defect in the hydrant said there were too many lines of hose on the hydrant as three of them were kept going at the same time, although the hydrant calls for four accommodations. Another hydrant will be set there, but with only three hose connections. As a result of their working the water in that vicinity, it was shut off at 1 o'clock for a certain length of time.

Representative Henri Achin, Jr., a member of the board of fire underwriters, who was in the vicinity of the fire last night, made the following statement when seen by the writer this morning: "Too little attention is given to the fire preventive point of view in the construction of large buildings. St. Jean Baptiste church was built similarly to thousands of church buildings throughout the country, that is, with a blind altar and spaces varying from six inches to three feet between the roof and the decorated ceiling, with ceilings supported with wooden laths, which made an easy pathway for the flames and beyond the reach of the firemen. From my observation the fire department did all that could be done under the circumstances, and the men deserve credit for keeping as close to the flames as they did, which is evidenced by the large number of suffocated

Firemen Thanked
Chief E. S. Hosmer received a letter from Commissioner Barrett today in which was conveyed the sincere appreciation of the municipal council for the prompt, efficient and faithful manner in which the fire department performed its duty during the fire. Mr. Barrett also expressed his personal satisfaction of the work of the department.

Conditions Were Favorable

Alderman Barrett said today that conditions could not have been more favorable for fire fighting than they were yesterday. "We seemed to be very fortunate in everything. It was of underwriters. He complained that muddy water had been used on the fire. "It was the most extraordinary complaint," said Mr. Barrett, "that I have ever heard."

Mayor O'Donnell and Commissioner Barrett this morning received letters from Rev. Henri Watelle, O. M. I., which reads as follows:

On behalf of the Oblate fathers of St. Joseph's parish, I take this means of expressing our deep appreciation of the courageous and efficient work of the fire, police and charity departments of the city of Lowell, in suppressing what threatened to be a most serious conflagration, in maintaining perfect order in the handling of an almost unprecedented situation and in rendering prompt aid to the injured and to those overcome in the performance of their duty. BODY OF MISS GARVIN

Found in the Waters of New River

PAWTHUCKET, R. I., Nov. 22.—The body of Miss Norma Garvin, daughter of former Governor Garvin, was found early this morning in the waters of the New river by Chief of Police Burlington and others, who had been dragging the pond all night. The body was discovered not far from shore in deep water, fully dressed as when the young woman left her home Wednesday evening bound to attend a lecture in Providence. The family of the dead woman can ascribe no cause for the act but relate that during the last few weeks she had been more than usually reticent and had taken walks in the evening, which was out of the usual. The body was taken to the Garvin residence at Lonsdale.

Odd Fellows Block Sold
---Grange Meeting

The auctioning off of the Odd Fellows' block took place yesterday at Central square. The property has for the past 16 years been owned by the Odd Fellows' Building association, which now consists of President Frank D. Ryan of South Chelmsford, Treasurer Almond Holt and Secretary E. T. Adams, but as the Lowell Central Savings bank had two mortgages on it and foreclosed, forcing the sale. Mr. James P. Emerson of North street purchased it for $1250, although the president of the Lowell Central Savings bank bid up to building until belongs to the association.

Mr. Charles Balser recently residing on the Littleton road, is moving his belongings to the house owned by Mr. George Day, vacated recently by Mr. Fred Fay.

Miss Sarah Whitman, Mass., is expected to return in the spring.

Mr. Oscar J. Chapman of this town who has for the past few winters been in Florida, is very much improved in health and has decided not to go south this winter as he says Chelmsford is good enough for him.

On account of Thanksgiving Mr. McDonald of the Lowell Central Savings bank who collects the savings of the school children in this district, will collect the money on Wednesday instead of Thursday.

The bi-monthly meeting of the Chelmsford Grange was held last evening in the Grange hall. The meeting was very largely attended by most all of the neighboring granges. The Tuxbury grange was the neighboring party and a very large number hailed from that grange. Tynsboro, Westford, Chelmsford, Duxbury, Polkham, Littleton, Harvard and Groton granges were also largely represented by members.

The opening of the business meeting was at 8 o'clock, conferring on eight of the 18 candidates, the third degree, after which the fourth degree was conferred on them. At 9:30 the banquet hall was attended by about 175 people.

STREET RAILWAYMEN

Held Meeting Last Evening and Heard Address on the Workings of the Compensation Act by Rep. Parks

The motormen and conductors of the Bay State Street Railway company and employees of the power station affiliated with the union met at their rooms in the Runcie building last evening. Considerable business was transacted and an interesting address was delivered by Representative Parks of the compensation board. The speaker told of the workings of the act, and cited several cases that have come up since the adoption of the law. Two sections of the meeting were held. The day men met at the rooms at 8 o'clock while the night men convened at 1:30 o'clock this morning. At both sessions refreshments were served and cigars passed around. Many of the municipal candidates dropped in after the executive sessions and speeches and a musical program were enjoyed.

New Theatre
The manager of the Jewel Theatre, being unable to accommodate all of his patrons, has arranged for new quarters close to the present location, where he will be able to seat over 1000, or more if necessary. The work on the building will start next spring.

Hear Flanagan's Associate, tonight.

Begin to Make Your Christmas Presents Now

PARTY BAG AND ROSE WORK BASKET

Don't put off making your Christmas presents until the last moment, for if you do you'll be sorry. Take time by the forelock and begin now. The illustration shows two gifts that ought to inspire the needle worker to instant effort.

One of them is a party bag made of handsome white damask ribbon (three-quarters of a yard long). Two lengths of the ribbon are sewed together, with the ends rounded, one finished with a white silk tassel and the other trimmed with silk fringe. About a celluloid ring large enough to "take" the ribbon is gathered a piece of the silk. This ring is drawn through the center of the ribbon lengths, and two smaller rings covered plain with ribbon are used to keep the pockets in place. These pockets are made by stitching the ribbon a convenient length, in which to insert the hand when a party fan or handkerchief is put in or taken out of the receptacle.

The second cut further illustrates the use of ribbon. In this instance a charming workbag is made of the rose colored satin ribbon a finger wide, which is gathered about two medium sized embroidery hoops. These form the sides of the basket, and the top and bottom are of silk covered cardboard. A large rose with ribbon petals and a yellow center of satin further ornament the top of the basket.

Casserole Cookery

The virtues of the casserole are many, but do not seem to be generally appreciated by American cooks. It takes less heat to cook food in a casserole than in the usual ways. There is no danger of burning, and nothing is retained, as in paper bag cooking. In fact, some cooks say that the casserole is just as good as the paper bag without its disadvantages. One cannot, of course, throw away the casserole after using it, but it is much easier to clean than ordinary cooking utensils. The casserole can be used either on the stove or in the oven and is the finest thing in the world for making tough meat edible.

A Thousand Foot Skyscraper is a Coming Possibility

PART OF NEW YORK SKY LINE AND CASS GILBERT, DESIGNER OF THE WOOLWORTH BUILDING

Thirty-eight years ago an English poet, James Thomson, wrote a poem which he called "The City of Dreadful Night." It attracted much attention. Long afterward a bright newspaper man, with Thomson's poem in mind, dubbed New York the "city of dreadful height."

It's a good title for a place whose architecture is more latitudinal than longitudinal. It is a city where a giant might walk from roof to roof 500 feet above the earth's surface and not scratch his toes very much farther apart than a six foot dog now is striding on Mother Earth's bosom.

Now comes Cass Gilbert, designer of the 750 foot Woolworth building, left's best of inhabited structures, and tells us that the end is not in sight; that before the present generation reaches the limit of height reached it will have to learn to stretch its dorsal vertebrae as well as its cervical ones.

"There will be no rest in skyscrapers," says Mr. Gilbert. "The only question is one of economic success. Provided with sufficient base there is no reason why a hundred story building should not be erected, as far as safety is concerned. But the question is whether it will be a profitable investment. It is a matter of common sense that the skyscraper, as it plays an important part in order to provide proper elevator service, we estimate that one elevator can serve about 1,000 square feet of floor space. By computing the area of the floor space we arrive at the number of elevators required. This has proved a reasonably good service. Consequently the higher the building the greater the space taken up by the elevators, and hence, from an economic standpoint, the limit of buildings must be limited owing to the excessive amount of rentable space used by the elevators."

The man who takes more easily of the possibility of getting out of a hundred story building than any other is the subject of architecture. He put on paper the plans for the Woolworth building, which houses by its beauty nearly as much as it astonishes by its height. He has to his credit other cities (the New York and other cities) the creation of his magnificent design of form in the beautiful custom house in New York, called by many critics the finest government building on earth. St. Paul possesses one of Mr. Gilbert's masterpieces in the new state capitol, and the University of Minnesota, at Minneapolis, owes to him its general plan, as does also the University of Texas. There are only a few of the buildings which Mr. Gilbert has designed.

Mr. Gilbert says the skyscraper is to him the most modern and most interesting problem there is in architecture. How to combine great height with safety and strength is the question. When the new skyscraper and its towers still and higher, the stability of the vision is lost, in an almost sensation of windows and cornices.

In cities that with skyscrapers it is interesting to note that one may stand at a certain point in lower Manhattan, New York city, near the entrance to the "Grand Central" and see no fewer than six high buildings, each in its time the "tallest" in skyscraper. But one of the most interesting of these in the metropolis is the contract awarded for the Woolworth building and the Park Row building. In these buildings, or so says the Park Row building, and says the Woolworth building, with their towers, reaching themselves about the height of 250 feet above the street, it would be impressive and almost standing by itself on a plain or in the midst of lower edifices. But these rise serene, majestically, the elevated bulk of the Woolworth building, almost twice as high. In our ordinary place, beside the latter structure another, 250 feet higher, the top of perpendicular building. Will the denizens of the top floor have to keep near him a tank of oxygen to revive him if overcome by the rarefied atmosphere, or will doctors send their willing patients to inhale oxygen from on the top of the skyscraper?

SOUR CREAM USEFUL

May be Used in Several Preparations

For a cake with sour cream sift a teaspoonful of soda several times with three cupfuls of one pint and a half of pastry flour. Cream half a cupful of butter and sugar and yolk of four eggs and after mixing them thoroughly add still in one cupful and a quarter of sour cream, lippings, but not stale. Gradually stir this mixture into the sifted flour and soda, then fold in the whites of the eggs beaten till stiff. Bake in a round tin pan.

Philadelphia Cream Cheese

Where one has a large quantity of sour cream on hand the best and most economical use of it is in the making of Philadelphia cream cheese. Have ready a perfectly clean and strongly scented cheesecloth bag and the fresh-est of lippings cream, not very rich in butter. Do not heat it over the fire or add hot water to it, as when making ordinary cottage cheese. This would ruin all the butter in it. After putting the cream in the cheesecloth bag rub the outside of the bag with salt. Let it hang in a cool dry cellar for two or three days or until every drop of the whey has been drained out and the contents of the bag feel firm to the touch. Remove the cheese and serve. If it is to be heated it will hold with a fork. Add a little more salt if necessary and some sweet cream if desired. This cheese is superior to the average commercial variety and just as good as the very best.

Sand Dressing With Sour Cream

Not all salad makers like sour cream in their salad dressing, but those who do will wish to put the following recipe in their culinary scrap book. Beat half a cupful of thick sour cream, rich and newly lippings, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar, a big pinch of salt, sugar and pepper. Beat the cream until it is as light as possible with a wire egg whip or a fork. The notion of the rotary beater is not so good for this purpose. Gradually add the vinegar, sugar and seasoning. Serve very cold. Be sure to use plenty of salt and pepper.

Ginger Cookies With Sour Cream

This is the well tested recipe of a fine cook. Have ready one egg, one cupful of sugar (either brown or white), one cupful of shortening, one cupful of molasses, one cupful of thick sour cream, two heaping teaspoonfuls of soda, one level teaspoonful of salt and one heaping teaspoonful each of ginger and cinnamon. Mix the ingredients in the usual way, with enough flour to make the mixture stiff. Put them together at night and let them stand until morning, then give the dough another stirring, adding more flour if necessary, and roll it out to a little less than half an inch in thickness. Bake in a quick oven.

Nearest in Face Yells

Roundish cheeks and claviers run together, but in red color over the nose with black, midnight blue and dark brown instead of the bluish sort. These colors are really becoming and in excellent taste because the design, while distinct, is not heavy. Patterns of the lovely shadowy color also are in high favor. These appear upon the cheeks, neck and are pretty in the standard black, blue and brown, but most pleasing and becoming is a soft shade—a tone which flatters any sort of complexion and, broadly speaking, may be worn with any sort of hat but the one designed for rough and ready use.

ST. VITUS' DANCE

The Cure of This Case Is of Vital Interest to the Parents of Every Nervous Child.

Mr. James F. Thompson, a well-known printer, of No. 34 West Iowa street, Memphis, Tenn., has recently told of a cure in his family that will interest every nervous sufferer. Parents of pale, weak, nervous school children will be especially interested. Mr. Thompson said:

"I have a son, Ray, who at the age of five years was scared by some boys. In about two weeks' time he broke down or gave away completely. He had to go to bed and the doctors said that he had St. Vitus' dance. During the entire night and for many nights he would be awake and cry. He could not sleep at all, but would roll and toss all night long. His arms and head jerked and twitched and he became so nervous that he could not feed himself. He got so that he couldn't even speak. He had particularly bad spells, which came on about every three months. He was confined to bed for two months when he was first taken sick."

"I had a nerve specialist and two of the best physicians in Memphis with him during the first year of the disease. They couldn't do anything for him and didn't help him a bit. Finally the last physician said that he would have to outgrow it. I then bought a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They helped him right away and, although he had been sick for a year and a half, he began to get and to gain strength. I gave him the pills until he entirely recovered his health. He has never had an attack of St. Vitus' dance since. He is attending school and is in perfect health."

St. Vitus' dance, nervous epilepsy or neurosthenia, neuralgia, sciatica, nervous headache and nervous dyspepsia are due to tired, weak, exhausted nerves. The correct treatment in each case is to build up and purify the blood, which alone can give the nerves nourishment. Unless you build up the blood, it is useless to try to reach the nerves with medicine or nourishment. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain the very elements which enable the blood to nourish the nerves until they become strong.

Write today for the free booklet, "Diagnosis of the Nervous System." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50c. per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Transportation Night Brings Out Large Gathering to Boom Navigation of Merrimack--The Addresses

BAY STATE STOREHOUSE ON JACKSON STREET

Transportation night, which was observed last evening at the Bay State Storage Warehouse on Jackson street by the Lowell Board of Trade, was from every aspect a great success. The attendance numbered over 100, and the gathering manifested more interest and enthusiasm in the cause of transportation than has been shown in this regard in Lowell on any former occasion. Those in charge said that it was a long step forward toward the realization of the hopes of the citizens of the towns and cities of the Merrimack valley.

It was through the courtesy of Mr. William R. Brown that the party were the guests of the Bay State Storage company last night and all who partook of his hospitality had many words of appreciation and gratitude for his generosity and interest in the project. Some of the speakers who it was supposed would be present to address the meeting did not appear. Mr. Ives had to decline at the last moment because of an important engagement elsewhere, while Captain Woodman's physician wrote saying that the captain was ill and could not attend. Secretary Murphy of the Board of Trade, however, immediately set to work to fill the places of the absent ones, and all who heard the addresses from the orators of last night agreed

OLIVE Tablets OIL the Bowels

A Physician's Substitute for Dangerous Calomel

When you feel that your liver and bowels need help take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Substitute for Calomel. Calomel is effective, but dangerous—causing bad after-effects.

Olive Tablets are especially made to take the place of Calomel. Dr. Edwards for years has been Calomel's foe. He saw its dangers and its disadvantages in 17 years' practice, treating patients for all kinds of liver and bowel complaints. In his efforts to do without Calomel he developed his now famous little olive-oil-colored tablets. Olive Tablets are mild but effective. Safe and sure. Pleasant to take but unfailing in results.

Olive Tablets oil the bowels just enough to start Nature's own action, and they tone up the liver at the same time. They are made from a rare combination of vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

If you want to regain that feeling of joyous buoyancy and clear thought take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They work like a vacation. 10 and 25 cents per box.

"Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

that the secretary succeeded admirably.

President Gray

President Arthur L. Gray, of the local Board of Trade, called the meeting to order, and in a few words complimented the gathering on the interest shown, expressing himself as highly pleased with the large attendance. He introduced Mr. Leslie K. Morse of Haverhill as "The Live Wire," and before the latter had finished speaking it was clear to all that he was well worthy of the above appellation.

Leslie K. Morse

"I am not a speechmaker," began Mr. Morse. "I am a farmer and a real estate man."

Mr. Morse read figures which he had presented at a meeting in Boston and which, he said, though taken more from Haverhill firms and measured by Haverhill standards, nevertheless applied to Lowell, and the other cities in the same way. In part, he said:

Nature has given us one of the most beautiful streams that flows into the Atlantic ocean. She rises in the great lakes of New Hampshire and flows south through New Hampshire into Massachusetts, running through the Merrimack valley, where nature has left nothing undone to make it as beautiful as it ever did the Hudson. But what I want to show you this evening is what an oversight there has been in the past in not developing this magnificent stream where so many bustling industries are built upon its bank. The Merrimack turns more spindles than any other river in the world. Now, let us go back a few years. The first project for the improvement of the Merrimack was at Newburyport harbor May, 1828. From that time to 1840 forty-four years have elapsed. From 1870 to 1874 and to January, 1898, appropriations amounting to $254,466.72. In March, 1898, an act calling for a seven-foot channel at mean low water to Haverhill at a cost of $171,142.76. This was completed in 1907. At the present time we have seven and seven-tenths feet at the mouth and Haverhill has 4.5 feet at low tide. Let me show you why we think we are justified in calling upon the United States for a continuation of this good work.

Now we will get down to facts. The population of Essex county is about

WILLIAM R. BROWN
General Manager Bay State Storage Warehouse Co.

635,000, taking in Manchester, Nashua and Concord; 25 or 30 towns close to our border line. There are 1939 manufacturing establishments in Massachusetts, 1,115 in the Merrimack valley, or about 22 per cent of the whole state. Essex county produces more than any county in the state of her size in agriculture. If we had water rates we could find a daily market to New York and Boston. We could now to one of the greatest problems of the shipping facilities, which we have. First, we will take coal. It costs 55 cents per ton to lighter coal from Newburyport to the Haverhill wharf and in addition to that 20 cents can be added for the breaking in reshipping the coal, making in all 75 cents a ton. Haverhill gets 60 per cent of water rate coal in 1911, amounting to 70,705 tons. That would be a difference to the poor and worthy of $56,764. Go on to Lawrence. She has railroad rates, which are higher than the water rates. We could ship at the same rate as the Haverhill coal. She could save on her consumption $113,123 and so on to Lowell, on even terms, on her consumption she could save $169,652. One firm in Haverhill alone could save $50 every day in the year. The same total of the savings in these three cities on coal in 1911 would have been $328,284. This is only one article; we might mention fifty or more similar.

I ask you in the name of fair play. If it is not high time that the federal government's attention should be called to one of the best and most worthy propositions ever made in the United States considering that our product goes to all parts of the globe.

As president of the Merrimack Valley Waterways' association, we ask this organization, the Massachusetts real estate exchange, which I consider is one of the best and most powerful, the most influential and the most successful organization in Massachusetts, to consider this proposition and I wish to thank them for the interest and the endorsement that they have taken in the waterway improvement of our state.

In conclusion he referred to the convention at Washington which will take place on Dec. 4, 5 and 6 and he urged a large attendance from Lowell. "You can make the government pay for it," he said. "Just let them know we are in Washington, we'll scare them out of their wits, we will launch our proposition and they will do all in their power to help us along."

THE copy of Francis D. Millet's great painting, "Better," inserted in the Christmas Woman's Home Companion marks the most wonderful art achievement in American magazine making. This reproduction is 22 x 16 inches in size, occupying two full pages of the magazine, and is in the exact colors of the original painting.

It is a fitting tribute to the famous artist, who met death when the Titanic sank, that his great picture is now placed within the reach of every American family.

Mr. Gray then read a letter from the Middlesex Woman's club in regard to a pure food fair which the latter are going to hold and at which a board of trade and city officials' might well be held. The letter was in the form of an invitation to the board of trade, to attend.

Captain Miller

He then spoke of Captain Miller, an expert on Merrimack river questions and one who has navigated that river all his life. Captain Miller was present and answered a few questions. He said that the boats could be run on the river throughout the entire winter if the channel were constructed.

Henry C. Long

The next speaker to be introduced was Mr. Gray was Mr. Henry C. Long, Esq., author of the Boston port bill and also of a bill favoring the Merrimack valley waterways board.

Mr. Long opened his address with an expression of his pleasure at the large attendance and said that he only regretted that he could not use lantern slides to illustrate his talk.

The sentiment in this matter of waterways is almost unanimous but the people want a leader to put up something definite. The matter so far has been taken up very well for there are many live fellows who get out and hustle. We have got to get busy and show ourselves at Washington and you will then get the best of service at Lowell without any difficulty.

The freight situation here has been very unfavorable to your city. If you care enough about having this evil corrected to go after what you want, it will be done. Go in a body somewhere, let Mr. Brown here be your leader, and you will get what you want. He knows freight rates, what they are and what they should be, and you are fortunate in having a leader of his stamp in Lowell. Ask Mr. Brown, do what he says, and your problem will be solved.

In his discussion of the waterways, Mr. Long spoke of the ice difficulty and how it may be solved. He has been interested in the ice breaking business on the St. Lawrence river and have watched the process there. They operate their vessels there all winter, breaking the ice by means of boats which are especially constructed for that purpose. And if you get one of those ice breaking vessels here like they have on the lower St. Lawrence river, you will have no trouble, for one of these machines heads three feet of ice like so much paper. And on the Merrimack river, no three feet of ice are going to form over night.

What makes a city a good live transfer station. The more lines of travel you get, the more city you have, and the more city you have, the more manufacturers will come. At present it is possible to run big boats from here to Nashua, without any trouble, boats as large as those used on the Mississippi river. This fact should aid in making Lowell a very attractive point. You ought to be doing the shipping of South France out of Lowell, and you will do so.

Half the commerce of Europe is carried on over water no deeper than the Merrimack river here and in Europe that forms canals out of streams which we would call brooks in this country. For instance, there are about 10,000 small boats on the Rhine. Down in Mississippi and near that river, they can construct a boat that will carry a large cargo of freight over about 30 inches of water. It is a saying there, that they can build a boat that will make a pretty good sailing on a fair fall of snow.

Mr. Long urged the men present to go to Washington in a body, pointing out the good they can accomplish so doing. To tell several stories which were extremely funny and which made a great hit with his hearers. In one of these he assumed the dialect of the southern darkey to perfection.

Mr. Long, in several terms, attacked the control of New England by New York financiers. He openly and in language that could not be misinterpreted, flayed the ownership of the Boston & Maine railroad, saying that it is the only way in which the state and New England can get away from being owned body and soul by these trusts and railroads, and obtain good and just freight rates. He went much into detail in this regard and gave estimates of the freight rates, which are now exorbitant, but which the people sit and pay without a murmur.

In conclusion he said: Drive the matter home, now; go down there to Haverhill and do things; let them know that you are there. I'll play the goat and take the blame if you will only come and warm a chair, so that your congressmen can point to you and say: "These men want a channel made in the Merrimack river; they want proper and just freight rates, and you will get what you want without any difficulty."

Mr. Brown of the Bay State Storage Company then answered questions regarding the freight rates to Lowell from the different parts of the country. He is very familiar with the question of transportation and will be of great assistance to the project. He then invited the gathering into the next room where a buffet lunch was served and greatly enjoyed by all.

When the gathering left the scene it was with a deeper interest in the Merrimack river matters than they had ever experienced before.

What Shall We Do for Thanksgiving Dinner When the Turkeys Are all Gone?—They Are Decreasing Rapidly

THE TURKEY THAT IS DISAPPEARING RAPIDLY

What shall we do for our annual Thanksgiving feast when the turkeys are all gone? How shall we replace the roasting white meat, the satisfying and succulent dark flesh and the drumstick and other bones that yield much satisfactory pickings? With what else will the well-flavored cranberry go so well?

16th questions—the turkey is going to last forever! Not a bit of it. Soon the turkey, at the present rate of decrease, will be only a gastronomic memory. Our children and our children's children will not know the giant Bronze and the Bourbon Red and the other varieties of turkey. As for the wild turkey, he long ago took the "backward trail" in most parts of the United States and went to join the dead, the great auk, the passenger pigeon and the other birds that once graced the earth and are now no more. There is the evidence of the show but sure extermination of the domestic turkey, going to join his under-privileged brethren.

The census bureau in Washington has issued a bulletin showing that in 1910 there were only 3,068,708 turkeys on farms in the United States, while in 1900 there were 5,591,000. At that rate the turkey will be practically extinct in 1920. Other domestic poultry is gaining to join the turkey according to this alarming chronicle. In 1910 there were 1,000,000 domestic ducks in the United States; then in 1900, the reduction in this case being also 50 per cent, and the number of geese decreased considerably. The lovers of poultry may find a glimmer of hope in the assertion that the number of chickens increased in the 10 year period from 235,566,021 to 250,515,000, but in which these words are found.

But pullets or capons, however satisfactory at other times, cannot take the place of turkeys on Thanksgiving day or Christmas day. Since the early days of the white man in this country he has welcomed the turkey, wild or domesticated, to his table. While it is recorded that the pilgrim fathers, from whom some of us boast descent, fell "fast on their knees and then on the altar," it is highly probable that the red man came third and that the first act of John Winthrop and his companions after landing on New England's bleak shore was to go turkey hunting. Indeed, it is alleged that "America," the national hymn of the United States, is based on an old Puritan

"My turkey, 'tis of thee,
Sweet bird of liberty,
Of thee I sing.
I love thy legs and wings,
Thy back and other things."
Etc., etc., etc.

However that may be, and coming down to date a little nearer, it is certain that in the early days of the republic the turkey was a highly esteemed bird. Let's quote from "Colonial Days and Ways," by Helen Everett Smith, and see what a Thanksgiving dinner in 1773 would have been like if there had been any cause for Thanksgiving in America in those days:

"Dear Cousin Betty—This year it was Uncle Simon's turn to have us to dinner in his house, but of course we all helped him as they help us when it is their turn. All the baking of pies and cakes was done at our house, and we had the big oven heated and filled twice a day for three days before all was done, and everything was good.

"Neither love nor money could buy Raisins, but good red cherries, dried without pits, did almost as well. The tables were set in the Dining Hall, and even that big room had no space to spare when all were seated. Besides all our families we had four old ladies who have no longer home nor children of their own.

"Of course we could have no Roast Beef. Some of us have tasted Beef these three years back, as it must all go to the army, and too little they get, poor fellows! But Acquittymaw's Dimples were able to get us a fine Red Deer.

"This was balanced by huge Chineses of Roast Pork. On one side was a big Roast Turkey, and on the other a Goose and two Pigeon pasties. Then there was an abundance of good Vegetables, all of the old sort, and one I do not believe you have yet seen. Uncle Simon imported the Seeds from England just before the War. It is called Silvery, and you eat it without cooking it.

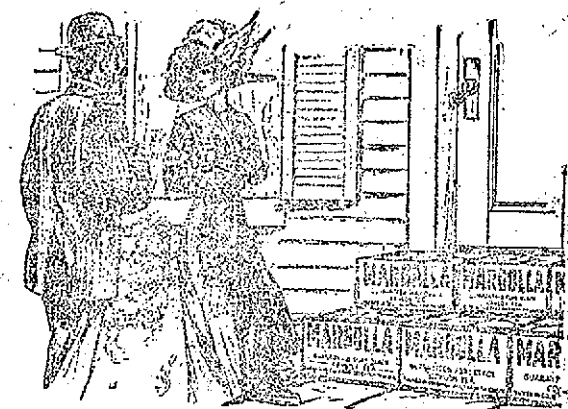

"Our Mince Pies were good enough, and the Pumpkin Pies, Apple Pies and big Indian Pudding lacked nothing save appetite by the time we had got around to them."

But in telling how great-grand-grand-pa and ma feasted we have wandered perhaps too far from our text, which is the decline in the number of turkeys. The wild turkey, of course, is out of the question as food for the greater part of Americans on Thanksgiving day, for he is found now only in secluded places in the west and southwest. Formerly, nowadays!—he roamed in abundance in all parts of the United States, but now only a few favored localities are blessed with the presence of the splendid national bird.

But why cannot we have an abundance of domestic turkeys, which are almost as good for food, despite popular belief to the contrary, as their wild cousins or brothers? Surely with good hen turkeys selling at Thanksgiving time for twenty-eight to thirty-five cents a pound, or even higher, the financial inducement to the farmer and poultry raiser is great enough. The answer is that the farmer and poultry raiser, being a man of at least the average amount of intelligence in regard to money matters, knows that turkeys come high when the populace must have them and tries to supply the demand.

But in the matter of turkey raising (with sorrow he it said) the man charged with the duty of keeping us supplied with the toothsome fowl does not know as much as he does about market prices. He gets the eggs and the little turks, and there his success stops. He lets the little turks, which are tender creatures in their domestic artificial environment, go out into the damp grass and get their feet wet. That's one main reason for the scarcity of turkeys—wet feet. It's just as bad for a young turkey to get its feet wet in damp, chilly grass as the same procedure would be for a human baby. Wet on the body of the young turkey is enough in many cases to kill him, but wet feet are generally fatal. So we should all beg the turkey raiser to keep his young turkeys' feet out of wet grass or supply them with overshoes if we want to continue eating the young turkeys grown to a proper size.

"The turkey poult has four enemies," says an authority. "They are improper and overfeeding, dampness, filth and lice." And the greatest of these is dampness, but the others are bad enough. Another writer prints the following warning: "Don't turn the small turks out in the dewy grass. It's sure death to them if you do."

Man, with his educated taste, finds roasted turkey meat most delectable, and the lower carnivora enjoy it raw. In other words, the turkey has four footed enemies as well as two, as have all the feathered folk. Among the foxes, weasels and skunks. A woman turkey grower in Jefferson county, N. Y., has found a way to fool the varmints who like young turkey meat, and her method is recommended to those who raise turkeys near woods and rocky ledges. This woman gives her turkeys the run of her farm, but she ties bells around their necks.

She fasted the plan all last year and did not lose a single Turk from the animal marauders, although foxes, weasels, etc., are numerous in her neighborhood. The bell is attached to a trap, which buckles about the turkey's neck. The sound of the bell scares off the fox and his accomplices. The birds soon become accustomed to their neckwear. Another factor which makes the bells of value is that the turkeys can be located easily, as the tinkle of the bells can be heard at a considerable distance. She uses these bells on the hen turkeys, and when the ducks are full grown as in the fall, the bells on the mature fowls serve for the flock. America has no monopoly of the turkey. It is essentially an American bird and originated in the western hemisphere, but Europeans coming to American shores soon learned to appreciate it. Now it is one of the most popular and profitable kinds of poultry in many European countries. Within recent years its consumption has increased rapidly on the eastern side of the Atlantic. A recent writer says he found turkeys from the Atlantic to the Black sea, from the Baltic to the Adriatic.

Inmate: "Yes. Certainly—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, lustrous, abundant and appears as soft, flowing and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—washen a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will remove all dirt and dandruff, excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair."

A delightful surprise awaits particularly those who have been careless, whose hair has been neglected or is scruffy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use of Danderine, when you will actually see your hair—thick and dense at first—grow—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

Some of the Biggest and Fastest Things of Their Kind That Interest the People of the World Today

1.—Boiler of biggest locomotive (ordinary freight locomotive in firebox). 2.—Concrete arch in Pittsburgh (biggest on earth). 3.—Hull of the Imperator, world's biggest steamship. 4.—Sixteen inch gun, most powerful piece of ordnance. 5.—U. S. S. Wyoming, superdreadnought (photograph copyright, 1912, by American Press Association). 6.—Vedrine flying in fastest aeroplane. 7.—Woolworth building, highest of skyscrapers (photograph by American Press Association). 8.—Eiffel tower, loftiest of man's creations. 9.—Cullinan diamond, biggest ever found, set in British sceptre. 10.—One of Zeppelin's largest balloons.

Time, the year 2000 A. D. or thereabouts.

Schoolteacher, lecturer (classical for "speaking").

"Yes, children, in those benighted days of our grandfathers, about the year 1812, they actually thought that steamships 500 feet long were marvels and that airships which sailed at the rate of only 100 miles an hour were very speedy. They even boasted of their buildings that they were 'sky-scrapers.' You may give a short laugh at derision now if you wish."

In the future centuries, delivered into the records of this one will be struck by one characteristic of the people of our age—that is, by our longing or desire or mania—pick your own word—for speed and business. We think in terms of millions when our minds turn to money, and when we give thought to other things it is only to the biggest and best of their kind. When the idea of high buildings occurs to us we do not think of the other lofty structures reared by man, but we turn instantly to the Woolworth building, 750 feet high and the tallest of its kind. Thus also in other matters. If we contemplate purchasing automobiles or motorboats we give consideration only to the biggest and speediest. We can get, knowing other considerations. It is the characteristic of the age.

The Imperator, Biggest Ship

That is why anything now that surpasses its predecessor in speed or size is sure of much newspaper space. The gigantic steamship Imperator, recently launched in Germany, will receive a tremendous welcome when she reaches New York on her maiden trip some time next year. Her 360 feet of length will attract America's attention as she steams up the North river to her dock, enlarged expressly for her accommodation. That distinction belongs, and will probably belong for some time to come, to the Kaiser's ship in Paris, which is exactly 354 feet high but no one lives on board. The Kaiser's ship, his august presence to the ceremony. He expressed himself as delighted with the idea that Germany was to have again the "blue ribbon of the seas," taken away from her by Great Britain when the latter country built the Olympic and the Titanic.

When the Imperator pushes her nose past the Battery the New York papers will no doubt get out the pictures showing how high she would look if set up on end in Broadway alongside the Woolworth building. That architectural comparison of man's creations for height runs deep in beautiful majesty in lower Manhattan. It is identified and impressive when viewed from either of the two rivers that enclose Manhattan or from any land side.

The Woolworth is the highest habitable building on earth, but it is not the tallest thing man ever put up. The tallest thing man ever put up, the Eiffel tower, is 1,063 feet high. It is used only for the purpose of observing Paris and the weather. There has been talk of a New York skyscraper to be even higher than the Eiffel tower, but nothing definite has come of it.

The Fastest Aeroplane

Speaking of height naturally brings one to thoughts of the aeroplane. Lieutenant Francis H. Smith, holding the record for height attained, having managed to get his plane up to a height of 15,750 feet into the air. Recently, another Frenchman, Victorin, recently, man, was the crown. He won it in Chicago Sept. 2 when he flew at the rate of 165.5 miles an hour. Our picture shows Vedrine in his record flight sailing "in full air" around one of the pylons of the Chicago course.

The other branch of aerial navigation, that of lighter than air sailing, has its record holders, of course. The illustration shows one of the very latest and biggest of the Zeppelin balloons which are attracting so much attention from our German cousins. This one may almost be said to be their pet, as it is named for their "princesschen," or little princess, Victoria Louise, only daughter of the Kaiser. The latest Zeppelin has sleeping quarters and a kitchen, wireless telegraph apparatus with a range of 100 miles, the engines of 510 horsepower, searchlights and machine guns. So you see it is more than a balloon in the old sense. It is a veritable "ship of the air," and the latest report that one of the monster Zeppelins had been sent out on a forty-hour voyage caused no astonishment. Leaving the air and getting back to earth, we find among the world's biggest things, the greatest locomotive ever built. In the picture is shown the boiler of this monster engine with a freight engine seated comfortably in the firebox. The freight engine doesn't belong there ordinarily. It's just put in to show relative sizes.

immensity of the Big Locomotive

We could if we wished give you a string of figures as long as your arm to prove the immensity of this locomotive, but we won't, because the figures would not convey much idea to the man who is not versed in technical railroad matters. But we can't help remarking that the total weight of the engine and its boiler alone is fifty feet one and eight-eighths inches long. When the tender calls for fuel and water supply it takes 12,000 gallons of water and fifteen tons of coal to satisfy its demands.

We ought to tell next, we think, about the new Pittsburgh bridge, which has a mammoth reinforced concrete arch of greater magnitude than any other similar structure in the world. It must be understood, of course, that this is not the world's largest bridge; merely the one having the largest reinforced concrete arch. The arch forms part of the Larimer avenue bridge over a deep ravine in the eastern residential part of the city and measures 312 feet clear span.

In Australia there is a huge arch of concrete with a clear span of 317 feet, but it is only 34 feet wide, while the Pittsburgh construction is 50 feet in width. Speaking of bridges, it should be made known that the bridge now under construction to connect Long Island with the Bronx will be more than three miles long. It will be the greatest bridge in the world when completed. The longest bridge now in use is the Tay bridge in Scotland, which is 10,780 feet long. The longest American bridge is the Ohio river bridge at Cairo, Ill., 10,560 feet long.

When It Comes to Warships

In the matter of warships Uncle Sam now holds the lead in the race for the biggest gun with the Wyoming and the Arkansas. And, what's more, the old gentleman of the star-spangled clothes is planning to keep in front with the 30,000 ton Pennsylvania, authorized by the recent session of congress. The Wyoming and the Arkansas, centres of attraction in the recent big naval review in New York, are 26,400 ton vessels, bigger than any others in commission in any navy. They will be exceeded in size by the Texas and the Nevada and the Oklahoma, authorized last year, and by the Pennsylvania. But until these vessels are completed and receive their commissions the Wyoming and the Arkansas will be the queens of the American navy.

Biggest of Land Fighters

Of land fighters the most powerful on earth is the 16-inch gun mounted for coast defense at Sandy Hook. When this gun is fired the shot is heard almost, but not quite, "around the world." The gun weighs 150 tons and can throw a shell 25 miles, but its greatest remarkable firing range is about 5700 yards, at which distance the shell, if fired truly, will pierce a 12-inch plate of armor. Gentlemen, the enemy, keep away from the big gun that guards New York.

From big guns to big diamonds is a long step, but we have to say something about the Cullinan diamond. It caused the artist put it into the picture with the other huge things. This is the largest diamond in the world. It is so very large, in fact, that it had to be cut into sections before it could be used. The biggest part was set into the sceptre of the king of England, for the Cullinan was presented to King Edward VII after it was found in South Africa. It was cut and polished in Amsterdam. When found in 1905 the Cullinan weighed 3,106 carats, and its dissection yielded 100 polished stones, of which the largest weighed 303 3-16 carats. How very, very big this is may be judged from a comparison with the size of the Kohinoor, the wonderful "stone of light" which had been considered the culmination of the world's products in gems. It weighs only 104 carats.

VERY PRETTY WEDDING

Miss Riley the Bride of
Mr. Fred Barrows

A 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the chapel of the Immaculate Conception rectory in Fayette street, Miss Elizabeth Helen Riley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Ryan of 62 St. Lawrence street, was united in the holy bonds of wedlock to Mr. Frederick William Barrows, the popular wine merchant of Davis square, by the Rev. Lawrence P. Tighe, O. M. I., the pastor of the church. The couple was attended by Miss Anna Louise Barrows, sister of the groom, and a cousin of the bride, Mr. Edward Heelan. The bride was attired in a beautiful gown of white champagne trimmed with real lace, wore a white picture hat and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore a charming gown of blue champagne with trimmings of chiffon, a becoming blue picture hat with facing of black velvet, and carried a cluster of pink roses. At the conclusion of the ceremony the couple was tendered a reception at the home of the bride's parents, where a delightful repast was served, at which only the members of the immediate families were present.

The gift of the bride to the bridesmaid was a necklace of gold beads, and the best man received gold diamond studded cuff links from the groom.

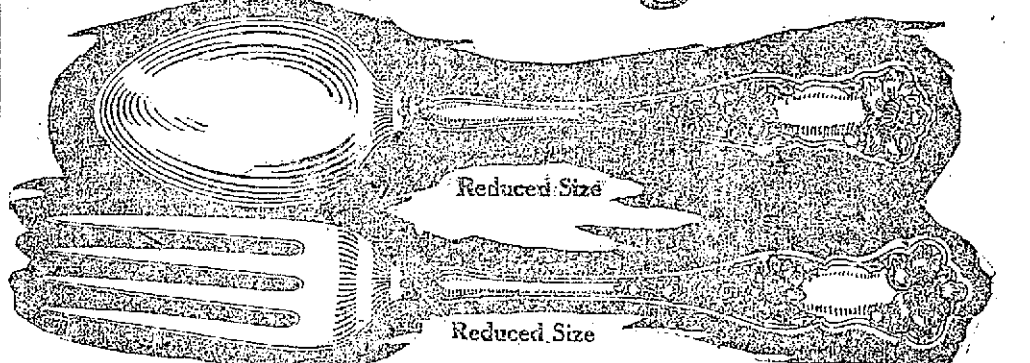

The wedding march was played by a sister of the bride, Miss Marion Ryan. Solos were given during the evening and the singers were accompanied on the piano by Misses. Vera Curran, Marion Ryan and Anna L. Barrows. The house was exquisitely decorated with potted plants, greenery and ferns. The refreshments were served by John A. O'Connor, John Heelan, John E. Burke, Jr., and Andrew J. McCarthy.

The couple left this city on the 8:45 train for Boston. This morning they left the Hub for Buffalo, N. Y., to visit a sister of the groom, who is a member of the Sisters of St. Mary, and is stationed there. From Buffalo they will go to Niagara Falls, N. Y., and will be home to their friends at their new residence, 290 Pine street, after Feb. 1, 1913. No cards.

DOUBLE ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED

Mr. and Mrs. John Nolan Have Been Married 40 Years—Mr. Nolan Celebrates Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. John Nolan observed the 40th anniversary of their wedding at their beautiful home on Central street last evening. The festivities were attended by a number of their immediate relatives and friends and all assisted in making the event a most pleasant one. That they did was evident on all sides, for the gathering was a happy one and all present had a very enjoyable time.

The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion, especially the reception room and the parlors on the first floor. Here the happy couple met their guests and were showered with congratulations and good wishes. Many bouquets were also presented Mr. and Mrs. Nolan, and the floral presentation placed around the rooms was one of exquisite variety and excellence. Included in the numerous bouquets was a collection of 40 Killarney roses, representing the number of years that Mr. and Mrs. Nolan have enjoyed married life.

Shortly after all had enjoyed the happy couple led their guests to the dining hall where a sumptuous supper was served. At the conclusion of the repast, all repaired to the parlors, where an elaborate musical program was given.

Included in those in attendance were many relatives and friends from other cities, while a number of local and out of town clergymen, friends of the couple, called during the evening and offered their felicitations and good wishes.

Today Mr. Nolan is observing his 66th birthday anniversary and with the two events, coming simultaneously, there is great rejoicing by the venerable couple and their friends.

Mr. Nolan came to this country 41 years ago, and resided in Lawrence for one year. He came to this city in 1871 and was married to Miss Mary A. Dwyer just forty years ago yesterday.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Peter Gruduen, then pastor of St. Peter's church, but who has since passed away. They have resided in Lowell since their union, and are both now in perfect health.

Many times they have visited Europe, and especially the birthplaces in Ireland; they also took a number of other trips, visiting many sections of the globe. While in Ireland on a visit, Mr. Nolan purchased a number of costly pieces of furniture and souvenirs, which now occupy conspicuous places in his comfortable home on Central street.

During the summer months, Mr. and Mrs. Nolan, with friends occupy a beautiful cottage at Hampton beach, which was purchased by Mr. Nolan some time ago. The latter was engaged in business here for over 30 years, and met with remarkable success. He retired from activities several years ago and is now taking advantage of his many years of untiring and zealous efforts.

During their 30 years of married life, Mr. and Mrs. Nolan have lived happily and their host of friends hope that they will be in as good health and as entertaining and jovial ten years hence so that they may enjoy their golden wedding anniversary.

CRUST COVERED HANDS AND ARMS

Up to Elbows. Blotches on Face, Very Disfiguring. Itched and Burned. Could Not Sleep. One Cake Cuticura Soap and One Box Cuticura Ointment Cured.

Montgomery Coater, Vt.—"The trouble began with my hands. It looked like chaps, but it kept getting worse until my hands and arms were all covered up to my elbows with a thick crust, and it would split open like a cut where the skin of my hands creased. I had a few blotches on my face which were very disfiguring, for when I went out in the cold air they would be dark red and would burn. I suffered with itching and burning mostly at night, and I could not sleep. I could not do my work for the pain my hands would be in when they were in water, and could not stand next to the heat.

"I had tried all sorts of ointment and got no help until I tried Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I used one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment which cured me so I have had no trouble since." (Signed) Mrs. Joseph Touchette, Jr., Dec. 27, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for pimples, blackheads, red, rough skin, itching, scaly scalp, dandruff, dry, thin and falling hair, chapped hands and chapped nails that it is almost criminal not to use them. Send throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 25-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

49 Tender-faced men should use Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick, 25c. Sample free.

CONSUL'S WIFE FINED

She Was Arraigned on Theft Charge

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Mrs. John (Georgianna) Howe, wife of the Norwegian consul to Japan, was yesterday convicted of shoplifting and fined $10.

The woman, fashionably dressed in a tailor-made dress of West Indian cloth, and unmistakably highly educated and cultured, was arrested after having taken a small bottle of sachet powder valued at $1.50 from a department store. She was accompanied at the time by her little son, four years old, who wore a white sailor suit, white shoes and socks.

He Was Imprisoned in Germany for Spitting in Emperor William's Face and Died There

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Death of a brother in a German prison, where he was serving a 15-year sentence for spitting in the face of Emperor William, was the reason given by John Wisniewski for attempting to end his life today.

"I am a lieutenant in the German army," he told the police, "and reached Chicago yesterday for a visit. I received word last night that my brother had died in prison where he was sent for spitting in the Kaiser's face. I wanted to die when I learned of his death."

Wisniewski, who swallowed poison, is expected to recover.

JURY QUICKLY CHOSEN

For Trial of the Hackett Murder Case

AUGUSTA, Me., Nov. 22.—Excellent progress was made at the opening session today of the trial of Mrs. Elsie Hobbs Raymond for the alleged murder of Mattie Hackett, the young Readfield girl, killed by strangulation several years ago. The jury, consisting of seven farmers, a postmaster, a blacksmith, a grocer and a ice dealer, was completed without difficulty in less than two hours and the opening for the state was made by County Attorney Joseph Williamson before the noon recess was taken. It was soon apparent that circumstantial evidence would be depended upon largely in the attempt of the state to fix the crime upon the respondent. Jealousy was the motive charged in the opening address for the state. The matter of admitting Mrs. Raymond to bail from day to day was submitted, she having been at liberty on $10,000 bail previous to the trial, but Chief Justice William P. Whitehouse, before whom the case is being tried in the supreme court, said he would not permit his sympathies to sway him and would yield to the request of the state to remain her in the care of the officers.

LICENSE BOARD

Met Today and Took Action on the Liquor License of Thomas H. Doyle & Co.

A special meeting of the board of license commissioners was held today, and after an inspection of the premises in which T. H. Doyle & Co. exercise a first class license as common victuallers to sell intoxicating liquors, the privilege of using the entrance at 25 Merrimack street and one room in the basement was revoked. This came as a result of a petition filed by the licensees.

Under the change, the licensees now occupy 27 Merrimack street with the privilege of selling in two rooms on the first floor and of storing in the cellar.

At the meeting this morning an application was filed by George H. Crook for permission to conduct a billiard and pool room at 80 Middlesex street. The present licensee, J. K. Cummings refused to sell the license and hearing will take place at a meeting of the board which has been called for tomorrow night.

TURKS REFUSE TERMS; WAR

WAS A "DEER" DAY FOR ANTHONY

Also a Dear One When He Met
Deputy Warden Houghton
in the Woods

According to a charge read in the police court this morning, Anthony M. Blackey saluted forth yesterday to try out his new rifle on a deer. Also according to the same charge, Anthony was innocent of any permit or license to follow that much sought inhabitant of the forest.

It was Deputy Fish and Game Warden Houghton who brought the man to the seat of justice and it was under very peculiar circumstances that he made the arrest. The scene of the little drama was the woods in the rear of the Lowell General hospital, where the deputy chanced to be strolling in the fulfillment of his official duty. According to his story, Blackey appeared with a companion and the former carried a gun. "Have you seen any deer?" one of the two made bold to inquire of the official. "Have you a license to hunt?" was the substance of an investigation by Mr. Houghton a few seconds later. It was this latter pertinent question that was the remote cause of lightening the burden of Mr. Blackey's bank roll by the sum of ten dollars in the court this morning.

Of course it was quite impossible for the hunter to show what he had not. The rest of the sad tale is all too clear. But Mr. Blackey also had a story. He admitted carrying a gun, and also that the weapon was loaded. He stated, however, that he was not out to kill a deer, but rather to try a new gun which he recently obtained. He admitted that he would have liked to take a chance on a fox or a rabbit. His companion, he said, had a license and he was just out to keep him company.

All the while Judge Enright was looking up a penalty in a huge law book and he found that the minimum fine is $10 and the big end $50. He fined Blackey $10.

Firewater Artists

There were four of the above offenders in the court this morning and their cases were disposed of with much despatch. Joseph T. Coughlin was found guilty of intoxication and a sentence to the state farm was imposed and suspended for a term of six months, during which he will be under the weather eye of the probation officer. Otto Miskala paid $6 for a second offence and there were two $2 contributions.

$500,000 FOR ROADS DYNAMITE WAS STOLEN

To be Distributed Among the States

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The $500,000 appropriated by the last session of congress for the improvement of roads will be distributed equitably among the states that compete with the federal government in this work. The question has been under discussion by the cabinet and it has been agreed that the amount shall be allotted among the states on the basis of $10,000 to each state that agreed to spend on its part $20,000 of its own funds. It is expected that a number of states would not be able to raise the required amount.

Sensational Story Told by McManigal Today

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 22.—Stealing 1200 pounds of dynamite, hiding it in a shed in Tiffin, O., and then in suit cases transporting it on passenger trains to Indianapolis, was an experience related by Orrie McManigal at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial today. It was the explosive used by McManigal and the McNamara after the Los Angeles Times explosion and by which they non-union jobs were blown up. In spite of the fact, the witness said, that the detectives for two months had been on the trail of the dynamiters.

Confident that the agitation over the Los Angeles explosion would blow over and that James H. McNamara would be free to do more jobs, McManigal added, plans were begun in January, 1911, to carry on the dynamite campaign with zest.

Bills Made in Triplicate Form

Copies of the ordinance prescribing methods of accounting and defining the duties of the city auditor and city treasurer have been printed and will be passed around to the different offices at city hall. The city auditor is now the city controller, but the ordinance will not reach its full working power until next year. The ordinance contains 25 sections in all and section 27, having to do with bills, is an important section. It provides that all bills for labor, material, also assessments, except taxes, shall be made in triplicate form, the original and duplicate to be left with the city auditor, the triplicate to be retained by the department issuing the bill.

European Powers Striving to Get the Balkan Nations to Bring About Proper Treaty

LONDON, Nov. 22.—"Come and take them," the defiant reply of the Turks to the demand of the allied Balkan nations for the surrender of the line of fortifications at Tchenalla in front of Constantinople, is not believed in diplomatic circles necessarily to mean the end of the negotiations for an armistice, even though fighting has been resumed. From Sofia, comes word today that the victorious invaders are likely to modify their conditions. The European powers at the same time are straining to induce the nations composing the Balkan league to bring the present terms more into line with the facts of the situation and to arrange a treaty which will give them all they have conquered but will leave out that which has not been conquered.

Compared with its earlier disastrous experiences, the Turkish army evidently now considers itself in a relatively favorable position. Military experts here see in the at least temporary feature of the projected Bulgarian rush into Constantinople signs of a reaction among the invaders after their sustained efforts of the past month.

St. Jean Baptiste Church to be Rebuilt as Soon as it is Possible

VIEW OF ALTAR IN ST. JEAN BAPTISTE CHURCH AS SEEN FROM ORGAN LOFT AFTER THE FIRE

Rev. Fr. Watelle, O. M. I., is deeply grateful for the expressions of sympathy on the destruction of St. Jean Baptiste church by fire yesterday. The edifice will be rebuilt, the basement will be prepared for worship as soon as possible and in the meantime the parish will worship at St. Joseph's.

A representative of The Sun viewed the ruins of St. Jean Baptiste church this morning and as much as he could see the inside of the temple is a total wreck. The fine organ, which cost $16,000, and which was installed about four years ago, is badly ruined and in all probability will have to be taken out, for it is believed the repairs would cost nearly as much as was paid for the organ. It was not damaged by fire on account of the water tower being kept in continuous use pouring a large stream of water just above it. However, tons of water fell on it and a part of the roof caved in on its top. As it stands now it is very dangerous to venture on the upper floor of the church, for the instrument which weighs about 15 tons without its extra burden of debris is liable to fall down any moment. The sanctuary of the upper church is also a total wreck, with the exception of the three altars, which, by the way, are made of wood, but which were not touched by the flames, although their surroundings were ruined by the blaze. Another strange fact is that the statue of St. Jean Baptiste which rests on a wooden base several feet high on the summit of the altar is untouched.

Pews a Wreck.

The pews in the two main aisles are a total wreck, they having been broken by the falling debris, while those in the two small aisles are, with the exception of a good dumber, in good condition. In all probability they will all be taken out and replaced by new ones of a different type. The walls with the exception of the one facing Merrimack street are all torn down, only the stone work remaining.

As far as the writer could see, the fire started in the lower sanctuary on the Moody street side of the building and near the gas meter. The flames broke their way between the walls into

THE ROSENTHAL MURDER CASE

Man Who Defended Libby and Shapiro Was at City Hall Today

Hon. John F. Ahearn, former borough president, Manhattan borough, New York city, and Aaron J. Levy, Esq., member of the assembly, fourth district, New York county, and former chairman of the committee on judiciary of the New York legislature, were callers at Mayor O'Donnell's office at city hall this afternoon. The two New York men are visiting lawyer Abraham S. Goldman of this city and it was Mr. Goldman who took them to the mayor's office and introduced them.

Aaron J. Levy was counsel for Louis Libby and William Shapiro, the chauffeurs in the celebrated Rosenthal murder case, and, incidentally, rendered splendid assistance to District Attorney Whitman. Mr. Levy talked very interestingly of the trial from its early beginning and paid fine tribute to the honesty, integrity and fearlessness of the upper church and from there into the blind attic, where the fire fighters lost track of them. In the lower sanctuary the walls are in good condition, but the ceiling is badly burned, while over the altar that part of the ceiling is badly damaged. The lower church was damaged by water only, and it is feared the ceiling will fall as it is cracked in several places. The small organ in the rear of the church was saved by the presence of mind of the firemen, who covered it with rubber blankets.

The debris is still as left yesterday and will not be removed until the preliminary cleanup by the insurance company. The church building is locked and the public is kept away from the premises.

Rev. Henri Watelle, O. M. I., pastor, when interviewed by the writer this morning stated that he had not the least idea as to the loss. He believes, however, that the organ cannot be repaired cheaper than its original cost, for the frame of the large instrument, which is of solid oak, is soaked through and a large number of the brass pipes are filled with mortar and other material coming from the roof, while a number of them are broken or bent out of commission. When asked about future plans, the reverend gentleman replied as follows:

"I today saw a local architect relative to the construction of the church, but no plans are yet made. However, one sure thing, the gallery will be lowered in order that anyone may see the altar from any part of it. As it is the gallery is too high and the pews are so arranged as to cut all view of the officiating clergyman. In all probability the church plans will be as the previous building and work will be started as soon as the insurance is settled."

Beginning next Sunday masses will be celebrated at St. Joseph's church from 5.30 a. m. until 11.30 a. m. There will be no high mass, and the children will attend services at the C. M. A. C. hall in Pawtucket street, where masses will be celebrated at 7.30 and 9 o'clock. All marriages will be performed at St. Joseph's church, while funeral masses will also be celebrated there. As soon as the insurance people have adjusted matters work will be started on setting a temporary roof on the upper floor of the building and then the permanent will be put in shape for services.

Fr. Watelle greatly feels the catastrophe which befell his parish yesterday, but is very grateful to all those who have sympathized with him and his flock in the following message which he sends to the people of Lowell:

"I cannot express with what appreciation I note the sincere sympathy which the civil and religious authorities of the city displayed immediately after the disaster which came to the French population of St. Joseph's parish yesterday."

"Although differing in nationality and creed, many of the earliest expressions of sympathy and a number of generous contributions for a new church were received from persons entirely outside of the parish. Upon request of certain prominent citizens of the city, I have opened a public subscription as a means of defraying a part of the enormous losses, and I take this opportunity to extend my thanks to those who have already made contributions, in behalf of the parishioners of St. Joseph's parish."

"I regard the subscription as no less important to St. Joseph's parish than the completion of the French American language school is now in process of construction. It is a great comfort to know that St. Joseph's parish has the good will of the people of Lowell, so generously expressed."

Among those present at the fire yesterday was Bishop Edward of Valleyfield, who was visiting friends in Nashua. He was accompanied by his private secretary and he extended his sympathy. Cardinal O'Donnell was yesterday afternoon apprised of the disaster by Rev. Guillaume Ouellette, O. M. I., and His Eminence, after extending his sympathy to the clergyman of the parish as well as to their flock, said he would look over the ruins today.

Subscription List

Among those who have subscribed for the building of the church are: Mayor James B. O'Donnell, $100; C. B. Cahoon Co., $50; Dr. Samuel Fontanaud, $50; Paul and Harry Chaffaux, $50, and many others, among them being an English speaking woman who called at

Will be Brought to Trial on December 3

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The trial of Judge Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court on impeachment proceedings brought by the house of rep-

POLICE CALLED OUT

Scare in Malden

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Following the discovery yesterday afternoon that a horse infected with glanders, the most deadly and contagious disease known to animals, and almost invariably fatal when contracted by man, had been drinking in the big public trough in Custom House square, the police were called to guard it and heard of health inspectors and agents of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals sent for.

At least a dozen horses had used the fountain after its infection, which was noticed by a citizen, who in turn notified Patrolman Chisholm.

Chisholm notified Capt. Sullivan of the City Hall avenue station and the latter detailed Patrolman Van Lanningham, a veterinary expert who served eight years as an officer in the United States cavalry, to take charge of the trough, which is the one that accommodates all the heavy horses used in the teaming of the great business district of Boston.

When Patrolman Van Lanningham arrived he found four teams gathered around the trough, and running up he pulled the heads from the water, explaining to the indignant drivers what the matter was. He advised the cleansing of the mouths and nostrils of all the horses and then forbade any further drinking.

As soon as the board of health officers arrived with the agents of the S. P. C. A., the water was drawn from the fountain and every inch of the great trough burned hot and dry with a gasoline blow torch.

NEW GROUNDS NEEDED

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 22.—The New England League Tennis Promoters Cannot Use Present Park.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 22.—It is up to the promoters of a New England league baseball team to procure new grounds, inclose them and erect a grandstand and bleachers.

This has been made certain by the deliberations yesterday of the governing board of the Amoskeag Textile club and the officers of the Manufacturers' Baseball league as the result of the overtures made to them by Frank J. Leonard, who would place a league team in this city provided satisfactory arrangements can be made as to grounds.

The Amoskeag Textile club takes the ground that, having taken the initiative in inducing the Stark mills, the McEldown company and the Hoyt Company to unite in the formation of a manufacturers' baseball league, that it cannot consistently go back on the organization now.

The Amoskeag corporation, it is understood, does not wish to be considered as in any way being opposed to the introduction of a New England league team in Manchester, but it also feels the home clubs are entitled to first consideration.

Bunting Soccer Notes

The Buntins will have for their opponents Saturday the strong clan team from Lawrence and a fast game is expected. The visitors are a fine team, and the locals will have to fight hard all the way. The Buntins will have on their strongest team this season and nothing would satisfy them more than to defeat the clan. The teams have met before this season but the locals were handicapped by the loss of three men and suffered defeat. The bunting team will be picked out of the following players: Birlewille, Mahon, Smith, Lane, Kelly, Smith, Graham, Johnson, Barrow, Taylor, Mitchell, Clegg, Walker, Conliffe, W. Kelley, Clayton, Linneam, Kennedy. The game will start at 2 o'clock. Among the other league games scheduled to be played Saturday are the following:

Manchester Blues vs. Ho. Lawrence; Methuen V. Manchester United; Lawrence Olympics V. Lawrence.

INFORMERS ARE GIVEN FREEDOM

Jack Rose Issues a Defi to the Gangsters and Says He is Ready to Meet Them

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Issuing men's trials, was released yesterday what was taken as his "defi" to any and all gangsters in the city who might want to see him, Jack Rose, star witness in the Barker and gang-many long weeks. Schepps had previously been arraigned, discharged, and gone on his way to freedom.

Although there was a crowd that numbered at least 1000 men, women and children massed outside the prison gates there was no hostile demonstration. Although he issued a bold statement, Rose came out of the prison in a taxicab which was backed clear into the prison courtyard so that he might get in.

Webster also rode out in a taxicab, which was backed in in the same enclosure. With him was his wife, Harry Vellon, holder than the others, calmly walked down the steps of the prison into the street through the curious and excited crowd, just 20 newspaper men, and stroled off without a word recognizing him. At Ninth avenue he got into a touring car and was whisked away uptown.

Jack Rose's statement, issued a side court yesterday, and was the few minutes before he left the prison, was as follows:

"I will be at the office of my lawyer, Mr. Sandler, at 261 Broadway, tomorrow, at 10 o'clock, to meet any gangsters who want to see me."

Harry Vellon also issued a statement. It was: "I will be there, too." The moment word got about that the three men were about to emerge from the prison a dense throng seemed to spring up as if by magic. Curiously seemed to possess even mothers and grandmothers, for there were many women there with babies in their arms.

An old negro woman, who held a baby in her arms said: "Good she didn't blame 'em 'cause life was certainly good to them," and a delivery boy was bewailing his fate because he hadn't seen Sam Schepps.

Schepps was discharged from custody by Magistrate Murphy in the West first of the Rosenthal murder informers to get his freedom.

As Schepps was leaving the court house he said that after he had finished a conference at his lawyer's office he would go uptown to the home of his mother, where he would meet his mother and two brothers.

"I am going to remain here for a few days," he said, "and then I am going to Hot Springs to finish the treatment I started."

Lucy Larcom Club

A meeting of the Lucy Larcom club was held at the home of Mrs. A. L. Field Wednesday afternoon. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. E. N. Kimball, 90 Commonwealth avenue.

Current events were read by Mrs. John Anderson and refreshments were served by the hostess. A social hour followed. Mrs. and Miss Field were the hostesses of the afternoon.

Gave a Fine Entertainment

A supper and entertainment were given at the Westminster Presbyterian church last night and the affair was a great success. Supper was served from 6:30 until 8 o'clock and was a very delicious meal, consisting of salads, cold meats and many other delicious edibles.

The entertainment was rather varied, but it was, however, very good and consisted of the following: Piano solo, Miss Mary Hanley; song, Bessie Waters; violin solo, Edward Davis, accompanied by George Faulkner; song, James Brown; readings, Edward Rowe and a duet, Miss Waters and Mr. Brown.

The committee having charge consisted of: Clell Blackie, Mrs. McKewin, Mrs. David Fraser, Mrs. Lemuel Ashley, J. P. Brown, Edward Saugous, Percy A. Fraser, John Johnson, Marjorie McLoughlin, Annie Hagard and David Fraser, the last named having general charge.

Attorneys Who Were Opponents in the Trial of the Gunmen

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Dist. Atty. Whitman, who is being highly praised because of the successful prosecution of former Lieut. Becker and the gunmen he hired to murder Herman Rosenthal, says that the verdict means the end of gang rule in New York city. This is the first time that a gangster has been convicted of first degree murder, though killings have been frequent. Convicting four members of a powerful gang at one time is expected to strike terror into the hearts of the men who believe allegiance to a leader is better than obedience to law. Former Magistrate C. G. P. Waite, who defended the gunmen, was complimented by Dist. Atty. Whitman on the efforts he made for his clients. After the trial the two lawyers left the courtroom together, and this snapshot of them was made at that time.

MARQUARD'S DENIAL

"Rube" Files Answer to $25,000 Suit

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—"Rube" Marquard has filed his answer in the suit, wherein Joseph Cahen was brought against him to recover $25,000 damages on the ground that the baseball pitcher alienated the affections of his wife, known on the stage as Blossom Seeley, who has been Marquard's vaudeville partner since the closing of the baseball season. Marquard denied all the allegations made by Cahen except that he is a famous baseball pitcher and that he met Mrs. Cahen on Oct. 13. Cahen has also brought suit for divorce, naming Marquard.

WILL PREPARE DRAMA

St. Joseph's College Alumni Will Help to Rebuild St. Jean Baptiste Church

The executive committee of l'Association des Anciens Elèves du Collège St. Joseph held a meeting last night. President Wilfred P. Calise, Jr., occupied the chair and considerable business was transacted. Sam S. Parent, one of the directors announced that the whist party which he is organizing under the auspices of the association and for the benefit of the French American orphanage would be held on Dec. 19, and he urged the other members of the committee to join in the selling of tickets. He also told that a first class entertainment program would be provided and a good time was in store for all who will attend.

The committee also voted to prepare a dramatic offering to be given in the near future for the benefit of St. Jean Baptiste church, and the secretary was authorized to write a letter of sympathy to the Oblate Fathers of St. Joseph's parish and also to inform them that the association will do its share for the rebuilding of the temple. Mr. Wilfred P. Calise, Jr., was appointed director of the play and he will soon call together a number of the boys to begin rehearsals, as "Simon le Voleur," a four-act drama, which had such a success three years ago, may be repeated.

HAMILTON MANUFACTURING CO.

Wins an Interesting Suit in the United States District Court at Philadelphia

On Saturday, Nov. 16th, there was handed down in the United States District court at Philadelphia, Pa., before Judge Holland, a decision in favor of the Hamilton Mfg. Co. of this city, in their suit against the Roxford Knitting Co., manufacturers of underwear, Philadelphia, Pa., to recover for alleged breach of contract. The suit dates back to orders placed during the spring of 1911 and has been followed with interest by the trade. The action was brought to recover on two orders for 100,000 pounds each of stained combed Egyptian yarn, Nos. 18s to 32s, for which the defendant was said to have contracted and which they later repudiated. On or about June 29, 1911, the first shipment on the order was delivered and it was the claim of the defendant that while the yarn at first appeared to be in entire accord with the agreement of purchase it was later found to be defective and wholly unfit for their purpose. Thereupon they gave notice of this to Catlin & Co., the representatives of the Hamilton Mfg.

Co., who admitted the defect and offered to take back the yarn, making allowance for what had been used, and to deliver perfect yarn upon the balance of the contracts. When the complaint was made 25,000 pounds had been delivered, and of this 20,000 pounds was returned. The defendant refused to accept any further shipments in spite of the offer of Catlin & Co. to make good on the defective yarn and to guarantee delivery of perfect yarn on the balance of the contract. Upon this Catlin & Co., as representatives of the Hamilton Mfg. Co. brought suit to recover $12,248 for alleged breach of contract. The defendant maintained in reply that the total value of the fabric manufactured from the yarn was not worth in the market more than $6161, and that this had cost them a total of $10,016, consisting of $6100 paid for yarn delivered and $3966 as cost of manufacturing. This, it was their contention, resulted in a loss to them of $3966, which they held was justly due them.

The argument of the plaintiffs tended to show that they had admitted the defects mentioned and had offered to make good in every possible way, but that the defendant had refused to take advantage of such offers and by refusing to accept deliveries of any more yarn had broken their contracts. The trial was by jury, and in the hearing of the case expert legal talent was employed by both sides and numerous witnesses from various branches of the trade yarn dealers, manufacturers and department store buyers, etc., were called upon to testify.

The result was a victory for the plaintiff, who was awarded a verdict of $5500.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 22.—With the end of the football season in sight the experts are now beginning to select the men for their All American. According to many eastern experts, George Crowther of Brown should be awarded quarterback position on the mythical team. In the open field running the "Kid," as Crowther is termed by his teammates, is easily a rival of Sprackling, last year's star in the position, whose place he is filling. His work was the feature of the Harvard game. With little or no support against Harvard, Crowther circled the ends time and again for spectacular

His Landlady's Advice Probably Saved His Life

I feel that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root saved my life. I inherited weak kidneys. The discharge was so frequent and painful that I would have to stay in bed to obtain temporary relief. I consulted good physicians but the results were disappointing. My landlady advised me to try Swamp-Root as the last resort, which I did and I was quickly relieved.

I continued taking Swamp-Root and my weight has increased fifty pounds. My health is of the best and I have told many others about Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root and have done a lot of good in this way. Your wonderful medicine is of great value to mankind. Yours very truly, gains and ran back punts through a field of Crimson tacklers. Occasionally Crowther sought the center of the line, winning his way through for several yards. He also played a grand game against Yale. On the defense Crowther is a sure tackler. He has not missed a possible tackle this year and has several difficult chances to his credit. Crowther weighs only 140 pounds and is often handled very roughly by his heavy tacklers, but he is game to the last and one of the hardest fighters seen on the gridiron this season.
J. H. BRUNBY,

The above statement made before me I declare to be truthful in every detail.

FLIGHT OF LOWELL OWLS

Local Order Flew to Elks Hall Last Night

SEVERAL SPIRITED "HOOTS" AND COMMITTEE REPORTS

The Meeting Was Most Enthusiastic—
The Order Is Increasing Rapidly In Membership

The Lowell Owls "flew" in large numbers to their nest in Elks hall, Middle street last night. The meeting was a most enthusiastic one and Wise Owl C. W. Richards occupied the main roost. Chairman Monahan of the sick-visiting committee reported, among other things that Brother John H. Dennett, was beginning to fly around again. The news was received with many hoots as big Owl Dennett is one of the most popular birds in the nest. Every brother owl is rejoicing at his recovery. Dr. Wesley Sawyer, (known to the nest as "Foxie Grandpa"), has been most faithful in his attendance upon Brother Dennett and every owl in the nest has a warm corner in his heart for "Foxie Grandpa."

President C. W. Richards has been getting on a great hustle for members and presented a number of names of candidates for membership.

There was much balloting for candidates, after which a nice class was received into the mysteries of this great fraternity which seeks to make, of all the time, between infancy and death, common ground, where brothers can meet and mingle in equal rank for common good.

In the Owls Nest all are equals. They know no high, no low, no rich, no poor; courtesy and kindness are ever their watchwords. The friendship of friends is ever extended every loyal brother.

Past President E. M. Bowers read several very interesting letters of widows and orphans who have been assisted financially by the home nest. These letters are from many different states in the Union and every letter is vouched for. Mr. Bowers also read a communication received by him from the Pacific coast where many new nests of owls are being instituted in Tacoma, Seattle, Olympia, and many other cities and towns in the state of Washington and Portland and Salem and other cities of Oregon.

The next meeting of the Lowell Owl will be held on Thursday evening, Dec. 5th when the nomination for the officers for 1913 will be made. The elections will be held on the third Thursday of Dec. and the in-

Cascarets Tonight! If Bilious, Constipated, Headachy and Sick

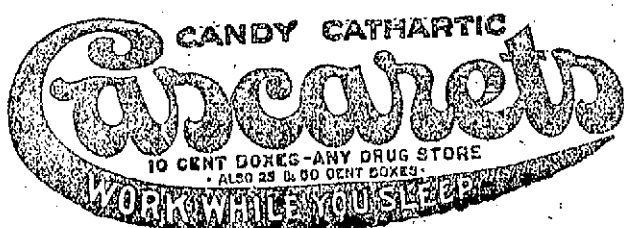

Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, constipation, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out tonight with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress—wake up refreshed and feel fine. Let Cascarets cleanse and sweeten your stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that misery-making gey take the excess bile from your liver and carry off the dissolved waste matter and constipation poison from the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box keeps your head clear, stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular and you feel cheerful and bully for months. Don't forget the children—their little bodies need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

BOOTH GIRLS HELD DANCE

Large Attendance at the Annual Social

The annual dancing party of the Booth Girls club took place last night in Lincoln hall and enjoyed a very large attendance. The affair was a great success in every way and reflects credit on all who had charge of the arrangements.

This club is well known in Lowell as one of the most energetic and popular of girls' clubs and they gave further evidence of this at their annual event last evening. The young ladies got out a dance order that was a very attractive one and after each dance was a "hit" at one of the members or a legend in commemoration of some worthy event.

The music was furnished by Clark's orchestra and the melodies which they turned out of their instruments were of the finest quality. Miss Ethel Knowlton rendered several very pleasing vocal solos. Dancing began shortly after eight o'clock and continued until midnight.

Those in charge were the following: General manager, Minnie O'Connell; assistant general manager, Mary Caveney; floor director, Jessie Lynch; assistant floor director, Mary Carney; chief aid, Catherine Crowe; aids, Elizabeth O'Connell, Della Farrell, Mollie Coleman, Mary Sullivan, Fannie Fitzgerald, Alice O'Neil, Rose Mulholland, Anna Stowell, Mary Martin, Anna Bradley, Nellie Lynch, Mary Daloy, Magdalena Shea.

MATRIMONIAL

A pretty wedding took place Wednesday evening at the parochial residence of the Immaculate Conception church when Miss Margaret Mulligan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mulligan of 49 Andover street, was united in marriage to Mr. George Gallagher. Rev. Tigue performed the ceremony. The bride wore a traveling suit of brown tulle and carried a shower bouquet of white bride's roses. Miss Nellie Mulligan, sister of the bride was bridesmaid. She wore a suit of light grey tulle and carried pink roses. Mr. John Mulligan, brother of the bride acted as best man. After the ceremony a reception to relatives and intimate friends was held at the home of the bride's parents. After a brief wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher left for their home at 275 Fayette street.

REASON REASONS

There are reasons why our business has almost doubled this season, and we know some of the reasons why. After 34 years of hard work, serving the people of Lowell and vicinity, we have been taught there is only one thing to do, THAT IS: Do not try to mislead the people in your dealings with them. Give all customers, big or little, honest values at all times. Be awake to their wants. Buy only values for spot cash, then you can sell all your customers values for spot cash; no bad bills for them to pay for others.

One look at our display windows will surely tell you there is a Thanksgiving Suit or Overcoat, Underwear, Dress, Shirts, Hats, Caps and Shoes for Men, Youth and Children. Look, it is there. The price card will show you it is at

Warm weather is keeping back orders for Winter Clothing in particular Overcoats. To brace things up and make you order in spite of the warmth, I am giving absolutely FREE a pair of Trousers with each Suit or Overcoat ordered FRIDAY or SATURDAY.

P. S.—It is axiomatic of business that you can't get something for nothing in this world. This rule makes some persons think I charge for Free Trousers when I give them to customers on special occasions. The belief is absolutely without foundation, in fact, I don't charge one cent extra for the Pants, and it is true you don't get them for nothing. Business is worth money to me. I have to let go to get business. I let go to the landlord. I let go to the help. I let go to the newspapers for advertising. I let go to the people, every now and then, to force them to buy and to talk about me. The only condition I impose is that you come from this advertisement and let me know it by asking for the Pants before you leave the store.

Come in, pick out the cloth you want, have my cutter measure you for Suit or Overcoat, then make your selection for the FREE PANTS, or pick them before you are measured.

Blouses for Wear With the Smart Winter Suits That Seem to Excite the Fancy of the Fashionable Women During the Present Season

BOULSE OF CHIFFON AND CHAR-MEUSE AND (below)
WORKDAY WAIST, A BONNY AFFAIR

Every season separate blouses for wear with tailored suits become prettier and prettier, and this winter's models are no exception to the rule. The lines are more artistic, the coloring more alluring and the workmanship more carefully executed on the best waists than they have ever been before.

The blouse matching the costume is still smart, but it is not an imperative fashion requirement, as it has been for the past few seasons. Women are not going back to the days of the separate silk waist that did duty with every odd skirt in the wardrobe, if one so elects, but there is no gainsaying the fact that the separate blouse that does not match the skirt will be much in evidence this winter.

The chiffon blouse in its various phases helps to solve the problem for the woman who is trying to select a waist for her winter costume of heavy woolen material or corduroy, for it is cool enough for comfort, yet becoming and dressy. This blouse is having an immense vogue and is shown in all degrees of elaboration from the very tussy model, in which laces and embroideries play an important part, to the street and traveling blouse in which the dark veiling rises quite to the base of the throat and exposes no more than a becoming collar and cuff finish of the filmy material which veils it.

There is nothing decidedly new in these blouses except the vest effects which are displayed on many of the smartest waists. These vests have replaced the shallow yokes of net and shadow lace that appeared on the blouses that ranged in price all the way from $5 to $25.

The Robespierre collar is another manifestation of bewhiskered and a fancy of the moment which has "caught on" too violently to be appreciated by the woman who likes her clothes to have an exclusive and individual air.

One should not omit in the summing up of the blouse situation the great vogue of long sleeves that are a part at least of most of the best looking daytime waists.

One very seldom sees the kimono sleeve, but the dropped armhole is extremely swaggy if not always a becoming style to its wearer. Most of the severely tailored waists are cut on mannish lines, and unless the wearer is rather plump such a cut is apt to be trying to the figure. This trouble may be overcome, however, by the addition of two tucks, an inch wide each, applied at the shoulder seam. This arrangement of fullness is quite unlike the Gibson plait. The great illustrator's idea was to increase the apparent width of the shoulders, while the new effect simply gives fullness over the bust.

Some of the attractive new tailored waists carried out in silk, crepe de chine and French flannels mitigate their severity a trifle by the introduction of a long, close fitting sleeve trimmed with piping or cords of white silk when dark materials are used. Frills of some kind—either lace, net or of the blouse fabric—finish the long sleeve model.

In the illustrations are shown some of the delightful new things in the blouse world, and any of them could be easily copied by the amateur dress-maker.

Pretty as a picture is the little maid seen in the large cut attired in a Robespierre blouse. The model is of royal blue charmeuse, and the waist has an elongated peasant shoulder into which is set the modish long Robespierre sleeve. The dainty rhinestone studded jet buttons are worth nothing. The high hairdressing and the handsome engraved gold buckle add a charm to the pretty costume.

Black and white charmeuse, combined with white chiffon, makes another one of the blouses which are especially designed for wear with a black tailored suit. This waist is a modified combination of the Robespierre and directoire styles, and the satin buttons and braid loops give a military suggestion.

The collar on the elaborate blouse of crepe de chine is not as high as it looks, for the deep points turn down over a stock of ordinary proportions. The fabric of lace insertion caught together with a bow of ribbon at the bottom is a new notion.

Tucked green chiffon over white mes-saline makes another one of the new models. This blouse is brightened by a plastron of exquisite Venice lace and rows of small white enamel buttons.

Nothing seems to escape the influence of the Robespierre craze this season, and the latest development of this mode is in fur. At the present moment there is a wonderful liking for the turndown collar worn during the period of French history which, with its cascades and frills of lace, gave the world a mode that proves so becoming a setting for the face of every woman.

The full example of the Robespierre collar is generally to be seen without the lace frills. Tails of the animal from which the pelt has been confiscated are the substitutes most used.

White and black colors are expressed in ermine, the note of black being seen in the tails that act in place of the frills of lace. On one side these tails are more numerous and hang in a sort of fringe, while on the opposite side only three or four are laid lengthwise, so that the effect of the two sides is quite different.

A fur collar of this kind is a fine way to make over your old skins that have become worn in places and are unfit for their original use. Naturally the long haired furs are taboo for the Robespierre collar.

WAS GUTTED BY FIRE

House in First Street Badly Damaged

A cottage at 232 First street, owned by Herbert Cowdell and occupied by Joseph E. Boyon and family, was badly damaged by fire yesterday afternoon. Although the firemen were handicapped because many of the members of the department were at work at St. Joan Baptiste church, they succeeded in confining the fire to the upper portion of the house.

The fire had its origin in a wood box in the rear of the kitchen stove and there was no one in the house at the time. When discovered shortly before four o'clock the fire had worked its way up to the roof and the upper part of the building was afire.

After half an hour's battle with the flames the lower part of the building was saved, the three upper rooms being badly damaged, while the roof was completely burned away.

Held Celebration

The rooms of the Pawtucketville Social club were last night the scene of a lively reunion, the event being the 15th anniversary of the organization of the club. The members observed the event with a whist contest and an entertainment program, followed by the serving of refreshments. The committee in charge of the celebration was composed of the following: Joseph Harvey, president; Ursicso Larue, Henri Allard and Euclide Cinq-Mars.

IS GIVEN EIGHT YEARS

White-Slaver Sent to the Penitentiary

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—George Levy, who murdered a man in Boise, Idaho, 11 years ago and escaped life imprisonment on a promise to leave the United States and reform, was convicted in the federal court here yesterday of violation of the "white slave" act.

United States Judge Hough sentenced him to eight years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta. Levy, alias "Blome the Tailor," brought a young French woman, Gergette Malet from Havre, France, to Portland, Ore. When the circumstances under which the woman came to this country were learned, Levy was brought here for deportation, but federal officers decided to prosecute. Upon conviction of the murder of David Levy in Boise, "Blome" was sentenced to death. This was commuted to life imprisonment and he served 19 years before getting his release. His pardon was revoked after his arrest in the present case.

Penn and Cornell Elevens Are Ready to Play Their Annual Thanksgiving Day Gridiron Game

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—The football elevens of Cornell and Pennsylvania are ready for their annual Thanksgiving day gridiron scrap here on Franklin field. This will be the twentieth meeting of the two colleges on the football field. Out of the nineteen games played Cornell has won one battle. In 1901 Cornell defeated Penn by a score of 24 to 6. In 1908 the two elevens played a 0 to 0 game. It seems that, no matter how strong, a team Cornell sends here to tackle Penn,

the Red and Blue men take them into camp. This season both teams have made a poor showing. In the game with Michigan recently Penn put up a remarkable game. With the score 21 to 0 against them after the first half the Red and Blue men won in the second half by some wonderful playing. The score at the end was 27 to 21 in favor of Penn. Picture shows scene in Michigan-Penn game. Mercer of Penn, making an end run. The probable lineup of the two elevens will be:

PORTER—The funeral of Robert Porter took place Thursday afternoon from his home, 1 Viles avenue, and was largely attended. Services were conducted at the house by Rev. Appleton Grannis of St. Anne's church.

Among the floral offerings were the following: Pillow of chrysanthemums and roses, inscribed "Husband and Father," from the family; wreath of chrysanthemums from the employees of the Friend Bros. bakery; wreath of roses and chrysanthemums from Mrs. Forsythe and family, and wreath of chrysanthemums from the employees of the Merrimack wool room. The bearers were Messrs. James Forsythe, Dr. Edward Forsythe, John Hogan, Thomas Berry, Timothy Mullin and John Denny. The burial was in the family lot in the Edison cemetery. Rev. Appleton Grannis conducted the services at the grave. Funeral Director

COMPLAIN OF FREIGHT DELAY

Shippers Testify as to Boston & Maine—Boston, Lynn and Nashua Represented

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Examiner Ward Prouty of the Interstate Commerce Commission devoted the whole of yesterday's hearing as to railroad facilities on the Boston & Maine to testimony about freight delays. The hearing was continued this morning.

D. C. Ives of the Boston chamber of commerce raised the issues of the facilities for securing a proper coal supply for New England, and urged that the matter be considered by the examiner.

Vice President E. H. Buckland of the New Haven road also hoped the examiner would inquire into the question of the delivery or lack of delivery of coal as affected by his transit from the mines to the households of this section.

Mr. Ives said that he is at present more interested in the keeping of people warm with sufficient coal supply than even in maintaining the industrial energy of New England. It is understood the matter will be taken up later.

Delay in Transit
A. J. Merrifield of the Boston chamber of commerce presented some figures in which was stated that out of 275 cars to points on the New Haven road, originating in Buffalo, in the first seven months of the year, 32 were 8 days on the way; 29, 9 days; 11, 10 days; 13, 11 days; and 17, 12 days or more, or 168 out of 275 were 8 days or over in transit.

The number of days occupied in transit by the 17 cars which were 12 days or more on their journey, according to the figures obtained from the railroads, were: 25, 16, 12, 12, 20, 14, 31, 13, 12, 14, 22, 12, 16 and 16.

Of 365 cars shipped by Mr. Merrifield's company from Buffalo to points on Boston & Maine and Maine Central railroads during the first seven months of 1912, the delays were: Ten days and less than 14 in transit, 97; 14 days or more in transit, 111; less than 7 days in transit, 20; 8 and 9 days in transit, 12; showing 208 cars out of 365 that were 10 days or more in transit and only 97 that were less than 10 days.

Complaint From Nashua and Lynn
E. P. Hubbard, doing business at Nashua and Keene, N. H., testified that he did not complain of the number of trains running from Nashua, but the length of time they took in reaching their destination; that in running through Athol, Winchendon, Dartmouth and Gardner, it means as a rule, a delay of from 12 to 24 hours at each place.

Goods arriving at Nashua, he said, were often billed as arriving two and three days before they actually did arrive, the bills of lading being presented by the railroad companies.

The witness said that in his judgment, Nashua is being discriminated against in favor of Boston, because shipments from Lowell to Nashua would not be handled so quickly as these from Boston to Nashua.

Ralph S. Burr, president of the Lynn board of trade and vice president of the Essex county board of trade, said he found in his business experience that the Boston & Maine had taken off a great many trains and had taken serious exception to Vice President Hubbard's criticism of his former testimony.

The number of men employed now in the freight houses at Lynn, he said, as compared with the number formerly employed and the proportionate increase in business which has taken place, leaves matters as they were a great many years ago. He argued that a continuance of the present system would mean the closing up of several industries in Lynn.

Freight Yard Conditions
Counsel Blatchford for the Boston & Maine asked Mr. Burr to say whose industries would be destroyed, but the witness declined. He instance two or three cases in which express men and others in similar lines had told him within a few days that conditions in the Boston & Maine yard at Lynn are worse than they have been for 25 years.

Mr. Burr invited Examiner Prouty to spend half a day in Lynn and see the freight yard conditions there for himself, or to delegate somebody to look into it. He also said that he believed conditions were the same in Salem, Haverhill, Gloucester and elsewhere on the line.

The witness aroused considerable laughter by saying: "If the railroad officials assert the present system as efficient, God knows what we would do if there was inefficiency."

He gave an instance in his own experience as to a case of plaster, of a kind he sold to school children in the junior grades that has been on the way from Albany to Lynn since Sept. 15. So far as Mr. Burr has been able to trace it, he believes that the children will have graduated from the grammar school before it reaches Lynn.

RADICAL SOCIALISTS SUPPORTED THE PRESIDENT

Non-Political Policy Indorsed—Election of Officers to Take Place Saturday

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 22.—An important feature of yesterday's session of the American Federation of Labor convention was the indorsement of the committee on president's report commending the nonpolitical policy which has been pursued by Pres. Gompers and other officials of the federation.

The indorsement was adopted after lengthy debate. Delegate Max Hayes, a socialist member of the radical wing, opposed the committee's report on the ground that during the last campaign Pres. Gompers had, through publications of the federation, supported the democratic candidate for president and that in quoting plans favorable to labor from various political platforms he had made no quotations from the socialist platform. Several socialist members of the radical group supported Hayes in his contentions.

Andrew Gallagher, a conservative, representing the California State Federation of Labor, then introduced an amendment to the committee's report providing that the matter of forming a national labor party should be left to the executive council of the federation. Pres. Gompers declared the amendment out of order and Delegate Gallagher appealed from the ruling.

In the vote on the appeal socialist members of the radical wing voted with members of the conservative wing to sustain the president's ruling. The committee's recommendation for the continuance of the federation's nonpolitical policy was then put to vote and was approved by a large majority. In this vote radicals, including socialists, opposed the committee's recommendations and conservatives favored the committee's view.

At the afternoon session of the Federation of Labor the question of aiding the Chicago pressmen, who are on strike, came up. The committee of adjustment to which a resolution had been referred, favored sending representatives of the executive council of the federation to Chicago to attempt adjustment of the difficulty.

An amendment providing federation backing for the pressmen if conciliatory measures failed was defeated and the committee's report was adopted.

HETTY GREEN'S BIRTHDAY

SHE DICTATES SOME "DON'TS" FOR GIRLS

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Mrs. Hetty Green, "the richest woman in the world," was 78 years old yesterday.

"It's no holiday, though," she declared at her little square rosewood desk at the head of Wall street. "Why should I take a holiday and waste a whole day, just because I happened to be born on Nov. 21, 1834?"

Mrs. Green consented to relax just long enough to dictate a series of "don'ts" for girls. They were:

"Don't envy. Don't overdress. Don't fall to go to church. Don't eat anything but good, wholesome food. Don't cheat in your business dealings. Don't forget to be charitable. Don't forget to obey the laws of God."

"I want you to know that I was born a Quaker and a Quaker I shall remain."

TIMELY DELIVERIES MEAN INCREASED TRADE

EXCLUSIVE MODEL IN LEOPARD SKIN

If you would be in the vanguard of fashion, by hook or by crook procure a leopard skin coat, even if you rob the library of its rugs. The pelt of this beast of the jungle is certainly stunning, and it has the added advantage of being exclusive; hence the demand by leaders of fashion. In Paris there is a veritable craze for it. The coat seen in the illustration is a very handsome model.

The fur coats of this winter are roomy over the shoulders, with kimono sleeves, or if the set-in sleeve is used the armhole is large. As the coat nears the bottom the fullness is more or less restrained. If an additional hem is added it holds in somewhat the fullness at the bottom. In other fur coats there is a slight shaping of the seams to give this effect. Either this or the coat hangs perfectly straight.

Many of the fur coats cut in three-quarter length have the cutaway fronts, which are so becoming. Sometimes a wide band is added of a contrasting fur which increases in width toward the back of the coat, where it may be nearly a foot in width. This is an excellent way to alter a fur coat that is worn at the bottom. Applying a new fur band will bring it right up to date. The more astute style of fur coat calls for the three-quarter length, with shawl collar, and rather deep cuffs. The fastening is usually well to the left front in all of the smart coats.

For the shorter coats, those reaching to thirty-six or thirty-four inches, the straight box effect is well liked, or the so-called Russian skirt which is set on at the waist line very much like the Russian blouse. For the slight figure this style is girlish and very becoming.

Marketing Hints

When buying meat allow one-half pound to each person. The fat should be firm, but if hard and skiny it indicates that the animal was old and tough; if thin, from a scrawny animal.

The best veal is usually pale in color, although that of a deeper color is more juicy. It is well to see that the kidney is inclosed in firm white fat.

With beef or mutton the meat should be a deep rose color and the fat a rich cream. For roasting the choice cuts are the sixth, seventh and eighth ribs, the sirloin and porterhouse cuts. Sirloin and short cut porterhouse steaks are best, although the pin steak is preferred by many. Round steak is almost invariably tough. Little veins of fat should run through the meat and best intended for steak or roast. When possible the meat should be kept for a week or ten days well protected from the air.

A smooth, thin rind, firm to the touch and light in color, marks good pork.

Bacon should be light and firm and not too fat, and a pink or rosy streak is considered good. A steel skewer driven into ham or bacon should come out free from any meat particles.

Shape Favored This Season

The English walking shape in hats is having a great vogue in Paris just now, and the dashing model illustrated is of taupe colored plush. The paradise feathers which droop over the crown are in shades of tan, buff and fawn, with a dash of pure orange at the front.

There is a whim in Paris for these long feather trimmings that droop over the back of the hat. Some of the long feathers reach almost to the waist line, but this is an extreme mode that few women care to follow.

TRAINOR SENT TO PRISON

Was Given Five to Seven Years for Shooting Girl.

COUNSEL ASKED COURT TO BE LENIENT

Both Prisoner and Victim Went as Details of Tragic End to Their Romance Were Related

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—John H. Trainor of Charlestown, who shot Gertrude M. Jordan, to whom he had been engaged to be married, in the store where she was employed, Sept. 3, was sentenced to state prison for a term of five to seven years by Judge Brown in superior court yesterday, on his plea of guilty of assault with intent to murder.

The young woman, who still carries in her body one of the three bullets fired by the defendant, sat behind the prisoner's cage. At intervals each went as details of the tragic end to their romance were related by Capt. Armstrong and Dist. Atty. Pelletier.

Trainor had been addicted to drinking and the drug habit. After he met Miss Jordan he abandoned his evil ways. They were engaged but had a lover's quarrel. He followed her to and from work until she declared she didn't care to have anything more to do with him. A few hours later he shot her.

Congressman Murray appeared as counsel and urged leniency. He related the history of the young man's life, his struggle to be a man after he had fallen in love with Miss Jordan. He had fought side by side with him in the Spanish-American war.

Capt. Armstrong said the prisoner told him he had been drinking during the day, and had taken 14 grains of morphine before shooting the girl.

Dist. Atty. Pelletier told the court both Trainor and Miss Jordan came of good families. She never dreamed that he used liquor and never knew of his taking drugs. He told her he always carried a revolver and once asked her to foot it in his overcoat pocket. Six days before the shooting Trainor demanded a return of the rings and jewelry he had given her. She had passed the watch to a woman who was with her and told him she did not have it. He took a mesh bag she had and threw it into the street and she told him that these acts were of course, and their engagement. She gave him no reason to be jealous.

JOHN E. REDMOND SENDS THANKS

Of Irish Party and Irish People to United Irish League of America

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—John E. Redmond, M. P., chairman of the Irish national parliamentary party, has personally done in support of the movement, and through him to the other officers and members of the organization in this country and Canada. Mr. Redmond's letter is as follows:

"I take the earliest opportunity of returning to our friends in America the most sincere thanks of the Irish party and the Irish people for the magnificent support tendered by them to us at this critical stage of our movement. The proceedings of the convention in Philadelphia were followed by us with the keenest interest, and we are, I need not say, extremely encouraged by the magnificent evidence given of the continued support of the people of our race in your great country to the cause of home rule.

"The vast meetings which assembled to hear the message of our representative also afforded us the greatest satisfaction and pride. We were particularly delighted to see that representatives of American public opinion of all shades joined with our own people in these gatherings in declaring the general sympathy which is felt for Ireland in her present struggle.

"We feel that a great deal of the success of our movement in America is due to your own splendid efforts, and we much appreciate what you have done.

"Your election to the important position of city solicitor in Philadelphia, which was hailed with great pleasure in Ireland, must, at the same time, make large demands upon your time and energy. That you should, in face of your many private and public engagements, still devote so much of your energy to the Irish cause, is something for which the Irish people are grateful.

"In asking you to accept our thanks,

I would ask you to tender the same also to your brother officers of the American organization, Messrs. Fitzpatrick and O'Callaghan, for their invaluable work.

"To the whole organization in the United States and Canada, and to our friends generally, I send, on behalf of the Irish party, the warmest thanks and greetings.

"You will have noticed, I am sure, with pleasure, that since the reassembly of parliament, steady progress has been made with the home rule bill. The majorities by which the measure has been supported in committees are large, and representatives not only of Irish, but of the great preponderance of British opinion. (This despite the recent 'snag' division.)

"We have every reason to look forward to the future with confidence for a speedy victory, and when that victory comes the Irish people will undoubtedly appropriate to you and our American friends a large amount of the credit for its achievement. Believe me to remain,

"Very truly yours,
"J. E. Redmond."

CLOSE OF THE SEASON

Textile Played Six Games
Without Victory

The football season at the Textile school is now over. The season was rather unsatisfactory, the team being defeated in every game played. However, the team is not responsible for this, as it has done as well as any team could possibly do under the conditions that it has been up against. The principal trouble was the lack of experience and weight. There is a lot of good football material in the school but none of the students seems to have any interest in the team. On the other hand, the schools that the Lowell boys played were very fast ones and outclassed the Textile team in weight. The team was captained this year by James Murray, who was a former player on the Lawrence High school eleven. Murray played in the back line all of the season and has made a very able and popular captain. The members of this year's eleven are as follows: Pense, Davian, Adams, Gadsby, Pillsbury, Greer, Fisher, Kyle, McGowan, Williams, Lawson, Raynor, Murray, Pense and Gadsby.

The games played and the results were as follows:

Lawrence Academy at Lowell, 3 to 0.

Lawrence Academy at Groton, 20 to 0.

Cushing Academy at Ashburnham, 47 to 0.

N. H. State college at Durham, 19 to 0.

Dean Academy at Franklin, 48 to 0.

St. John's Academy at Danvers, 6 to 0.

In the annual football game between the freshmen and the sophomore classes of the school held Wednesday afternoon, the freshmen defeated their opponents by the score of 12 to 0.

A day rush followed the Freshman-Sophomore football game and the freshmen were again victorious, managing to secure the sophomore class flag. This day rush is also an annual

Changeable Weather Robbed of its Terrors for Rheumatism, Sciatica and Neuritis

Nurio has absolutely removed changes in weather from consideration—the sun is always shining for those who have learned its effectiveness.

It would be almost criminal to deceive a sufferer from rheumatism, sciatica or neuritis, bent and twisted with pain—to tell him you could relieve him, then take his money and disappoint him with a worthless or harmful medicine.

Nurio is a doctor's prescription, in the form of a powder. We have actual proof that it is an antidote for uric acid poisoning, which is responsible for these diseases.

We know from our own investigation that it will relieve a vast majority of cases of rheumatism, sciatica and neuritis, and we guarantee it to be free from narcotics, opiates and other harmful ingredients.

Get a $1 box at your pharmacy. It has entirely banished all rheumatic pain and restored to active health hundreds of the worst cases, a verified record of which will be shown you. Magistral Chem. Co., Flatiron Bldg., N. Y.

event and was even more exciting than the football game. The sophomore class 1912 was fastened to one of the goal posts on the campus and all of the sophomores gathered around the post to protect the emblem and any one attempting to secure it was awarded off in a forcible way. One of the students climbed the goal post that was not guarded and walked across the cross bar and secured the flag, the freshmen class thus winning the contest.

Mr. F. J. Dagobert, a Lithuanian, gave a very interesting talk to the students in room C3 this afternoon. His subject was the "New American."

A soccer team is being organized at the school and several games will be played with similar teams of other schools immediately.

Although it has not yet been definitely decided it is thought that the different classes will organize class basketball teams to play this winter. A school team would be organized, but the game has been discontinued among most of the schools so that the teams would not have any opponents.

A GOOD THRASHING

Pres. Elect Wilson Angry
With Snapshot Man

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Nov. 22.—President-elect Woodrow Wilson today had a lively dispute with an American photographer which almost led to the exchange of blows.

The photographer took a snapshot at Mr. Wilson in spite of his prohibition. Mr. Wilson, thereupon angrily exclaimed: "You are no gentleman. If you want a good thrashing keep that up. I can take care of myself in these things. I came here especially to avoid photographers."

Mr. Wilson passed the greater part of today in making bicycling excursions in the vicinity of his residence.

Family Fears That She Has Committed Suicide by Drowning

LOWELL, R. I., Nov. 22.—That Miss Norma Garvin, daughter of ex-Gov. Lucius F. C. Garvin, committed suicide by drowning in the Blackstone river Wednesday evening is the opinion now reluctantly accepted by her family as the result of discoveries made yesterday after search for the missing young woman was begun.

Employees in the Ann and Hope mill yesterday found her hat floating on the Blackstone river at a point in the stream known as "New River," about a quarter mile from the Garvin home. Later a little girl, Ellen McLeod, picked up on the bank of the river in the same vicinity the small handbag Miss Garvin carried when she left her home Wednesday evening.

Search for her belongings by her family also resulted in the discovery in a drawer of her dresser of a note in her handwriting: "I can't get the water out of my mind." From this it is thought Miss Garvin had become mentally affected and that an impulse to drown herself overcame her.

Miss Garvin left her home at 7.30 Wednesday evening to take the 7.45 train from the Lowville station to Providence, where she was to attend a lecture on woman suffrage at Brown university by Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott. Miss Garvin was interested in the suffrage movement and had planned to bring Mrs. Elliott home with her for the night.

From her house to the railroad station is a matter of only five minutes. No one, however, saw her at the station on the train or at the lecture, and it is now thought that from her house she went directly to the river. Along the road to the station the water is shallow and accidental drowning would be virtually impossible.

When she failed to return Wednesday night her family assumed that she had decided to pass the night with friends in Providence and did not worry. When, however, they learned yesterday morning that she had not been seen in Providence, they notified the local and the Providence police and also sought the assistance of private detectives in Providence.

After the discovery of the hat and the handbag the Lowville police and employees of the mill started to drag the river. They continued the work until midnight without results. The search will resume today for they are confident Miss Garvin's body is somewhere in the river.

Dr. Garvin, deeply affected by his daughter's disappearance, could give no explanation of it last night. He had supposed her to be in perfect health, he said, and never had it thought that anything was wrong with her mentally.

Traveling Drawing Exhibit

It will soon be possible for any city school to have a drawing exhibit of national significance practically without cost. Dr. Henry Turner Bailey and Mr. Royal B. Farnum are preparing for the United States bureau of education an exhibit of the best examples of drawing and art work in the elementary, high and normal schools of the United States, as well as one or two of the art schools. The exhibit is to be sent to any city desiring it upon payment of the cost of transportation from the city last used using it. The transportation charges will be small.

The exhibit is not to be a large one, but it is being selected with unusual care, so as to show the work that will be most suggestive to teachers, children and school officers. It will be ready for shipment about January first, but cities desiring it should make application at once to the commissioner of education, Washington, D. C., in order that it may be dispatched to as many localities as possible with the least expense to each of them.

Dr. Claxton believes that this small but choice exhibit of drawing work, compiled by two acknowledged leaders of art teaching in America, will do much to aid the cause of drawing and art in the public schools.

SULLIVAN GETS DRAW

Twin Too Foxy for Gunboat Smith

BUFFALO, Nov. 22.—Jack ("Twin") Sullivan and "Gunboat" Smith, the California heavyweight, boxed 10 rounds to a draw here last night. "Gunboat" forced the boxing, but the Twin was too foxy for him and used all of his tricks to keep the Californian off.

Sullivan had the better of the fighting, hitting and holding the gunboat so that he could not counter. At the long-range work Smith was superior and surprised even Sullivan's friends by the way he reached the Twin's face with a left jab.

Smith cut loose some swings that would have ended the battle had they landed, but Sullivan's cleverness and nimbleness made them go for naught.

Sullivan made the Californian luster in the last round and made a rattling finish. The bout was characterized by too much holding and Sullivan's work in the clinches.

Labors Beats Carson

LAWRENCE, Nov. 22.—At the Unity Cycle club last evening three bouts were held, in the first of which Kid Thomas of Lawrence defeated Oscar Murray of Lynn.

In the second bout, between Andy Houston of Providence and Patsy De Luca of Boston, De Luca brought over a heavy right in the fourth round and Houston hit the canvas for the count. In the last and most interesting of the contests Tommy Carson of Lawrence was outclassed by Kid Labore of Manchester, N. H. Labore went 10 rounds and Labore had a big lead all the way. Jim Burke refereed.

Fighting the Moths

Mayor O'Donnell has received the following letter from State Forester Rane:

Boston, Nov. 14, 1912.

Dear Sir: You are hereby notified to make provision for carrying on the work of suppressing gypsy and brown-tail moths during the year ending Nov. 30, 1913. The amount you may be required to expend in this work before receiving reimbursement from the state is $5000.

Yours very truly,
F. W. Rane, State Forester.

COMFORTABLE CORSET

Suggestion That Will Interest Ladies

Everybody knows that the uncorseted figure is the most fashionable figure of the day. The woman who dares has already appeared at public functions without the restraint of steel and bone. The woman who can thus mock at the contrivance of science is indeed fortunate. Long may she glory in her possession of freedom.

Consequently few maidens are so blessed, and the great majority must therefore turn to that blessed substitute, the corset, which will most nearly reproduce the human figure and lend the effect of the uncorseted figure. The material that has proved itself most available for this purpose is tricot, a sort of knitted cotton. When this material was first used for corsets the stays were very expensive. Today they are within the reach of most purses, selling for from $3 up.

The tricot is remarkably firm fabric yet possessing sufficient elasticity to give with every bend of the body. That it is comfortable goes without further explanation.

There are various styles of these corsets some have the low backs, others the medium. To get the perfect uncorseted effect it is best to adopt the low bust corset and to wear with it a brassiere. The brassiere, by the way, is often made of the tricot. This gives nothing above the waist but the very slight extension of the corset practically only the back. Below the waist the flesh is firmly restrained as far as the knees, if so desired. One of the newest models this year has the extension of the tricot to the knees. No danger with this corset of showing any break in the line of the corset at the bottom, which often ruins the effect of a snug fitting dress. As this material clings snugly to the figure there is none of the tightly corseted feeling often so uncomfortable in the long stays which have been the joke of the papers.

The comfort of these tricot corsets is further accentuated by the fact that they have practically no bones. One of the most popular models has only bones in the front, the necessary stays to hold the fastenings and two or three in the back. Over the hips there is only the tricot stretched like the skin from front to back. Some women prefer boning over the hips. It is really only a matter of personal choice.

When the tricot corsets were first made they were thought to be entirely inadequate to the needs of the stout women but today the tricot corset is successfully worn in all sizes.

For those who cannot rely upon nature to carry out the Parisian verdict of no corsets the tricot affair can be relied upon to give the effect of the uncorseted figure. In brief, plain and blues it takes on a decidedly bridglike appearance, the bones, the few used, being increased in matching satin, with garters of the same.

Cleaning Bottles

To clean water bottles, pickle jars or any glass that is stained, when unable to get the hand in to wash properly, crush the shell of an egg small enough to get through the neck of the bottle, add a little warm water, shake well, and you will find the glass clean and the bottle nicely polished.

NEW JABOT AND COLLAR

Combination That Attracts Attention

Elaborately unique is the effect given to a simple tailored costume by one of these big lace and net neck arrangements, which are designed to be

The Burnt Onion Touch

Never did a color fade hold with more emphatic grip than the burnt onion color this winter. One comes across the sunny orange yellow tones everywhere. Very little of the strong color is used, just a touch of it in the collar, neck bow, platings or buttons, but wherever it is used it gives tone and a modernness to the entire costume. Many of the new blouses of white satin or of lace have buttons of amber, which is the shade that in fabrics goes by the burnt onion name. A smart velvet neck bow will repeat the color touch of the yellowish buttons and give brightness and modernness to the whole blouse.

On black blouses for dressy wear the burnt onion touch is especially effective, and somehow or other women who would never think of wearing such a strong and trying shade as orange are wearing burnt onion this season and looking very smart in it.

A black chiffon costume blouse brightened by burnt onion was noted recently at a smart gathering. When the coat of a black charmeuse suit was removed a black chiffon blouse came into evidence with the black chiffon mounted over white silk and mousquetaire transparent sleeves. A little beige jacket of black chantilly lace crossed the tucked chiffon at back and front, and within the V formed by the jacket was a crossed vest of burnt onion chiffon fastened with jet buttons over black lace. At the neck was a deep Robespierre collar of black satin, and turning over it a very narrow collar of burnt onion velvet completed the color touch. The small toque of black velvet had an amber plume curling over the hair at the left side, and smart boots of patent leather with buttoned tops of dull kid finished an immensely chic afternoon costume.

To Protect Your Stewpan

When a kettle or stewpan burns the contents or boils dry don't try to scrape off what is burned. Put in a lump of washing soda and add water enough to cover the bottom and the sides as far up as the scorch extends. Boil gently until all the hard crust is removed.

DON'T PAY BIG PRICES FOR ANY MAKE PIANO

I have been telling the people for years that it is not necessary to pay luxury prices for PIANOS. A PIANO is no longer a luxury. I have taken it out of that class. I have made it as easy to secure a PIANO by reducing the price and making the terms of purchase as liberal as it is to secure any other household necessity.

I have educated the public in PIANO values to such an extent that the intelligent man or woman, who knows how to go about it, can now buy a PIANO for much less than it could be bought for five years ago. I am in receipt of letters daily from all over New England, praising me for my stand against the high-price dealer, and I am selling more PIANOS at lower prices than ever before. It pays to protect the public.

Don't buy any make PIANO till you see me. Truthfully,

she has nothing to gain by continuing the conflict. She would perhaps agree to enter into negotiations on the basis of a surrender to all but a reasonable strip of territory at the back of Constantinople, the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus.

Fighting continues today along the entire line of fortifications at Tenebris, according to dispatches from Constantinople. The Bulgarians are continuing their efforts to break through the Turkish lines but have hitherto been prevented from doing so by the fire of the Turkish warships.

TERMS DEMANDED BY BALKAN NATIONAL INCLUDED SURRENDER OF ADRIANOPLE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The rejection by Turkey of the conditions offered for an armistice between the opposing armies has been communicated to the Bulgarian government.

One of the causes for their rejection

was the opinion held in official circles in Constantinople that the conditions proposed by the allies deprived the Turks of the opportunity of resuming hostilities to the extent of the plenipotentiaries failing to settle terms. This, from the Turkish viewpoint, meant no armistice at all.

Such conditions, it is held here, are made only when it is a question of the preliminaries of peace and by accepting such terms as those presented by the allies Turkey would be binding herself hand and foot.

It is further insisted that Turkey has not sunk to that degree of impotence which would compel her to accept such conditions.

The terms stipulated by the allied Balkan nations provided for the surrender of Adrianople with its garrison and for the evacuation of the Tcbatalja lines. No mention is made of Constantinople or the Dardanelles.

The Turkish cruiser Hamidieh arrived here this morning in tow. The warship will be laid up for repairs.

ST. JEAN BAPTISTE CHURCH

the rectory last night and presented Fr. Watelle a handsome solid gold watch valued at $300, which can be utilized in raising funds.

Laurier Tremblay, pastor of the church, when seen by the writer this morning, made the following statement concerning the fire. "I was in the boiler room in the building adjoining the church when the fire broke out. I reached the scene of the blaze before the firemen. When I entered the sacristy I saw huge flames in the vicinity of the gas meter. I tried to put out the fire with the emergency extinguishers but it was useless. The fire fighters arrived shortly afterward and they set a line of hose on the meter. After controlling the flames they shut off the gas and then it was seen that the blaze had reached between the walls. With a fireman I went in front of the altar and then to the rear, where we broke through the wall. Seeing our efforts were fruitless, we went upstairs and placed the floor just above the altar which is situated in the lower church. There again the hose was used but to no avail. Finally the fireman climbed on the altar and pierced through the wall, but it was of no use, the flames had reached the blind altar and there it was through the building was doomed and immediately a second alarm was sent in.

Fire Broke Out Again

Last night shortly after 7 o'clock the fire broke out again and the flames were seen from the street by Sgt. Ryan, who sent in a telephone alarm. The firemen responded and in a short time they had the blaze extinguished. The large cross on the top of the church building on the Moody street side fell with a crash in the progress of the fire yesterday and went through the roof of the little school building adjoining the church. Fortunately no one was inside the building at the time.

A gang of men from the water department are digging at the corner of Moody and Allen streets today in order to replace the hydrant which was put out of commission during the fire yesterday. One of the men at work when asked what caused the defect in the hydrant said there were too many lines of hose on the hydrant as three of them were kept going at the same time, although the hydrant calls for four accommodations. Another hydrant will be set there, but with only three hose connections. As a result of their working the water in that vicinity, it was shut off at 1 o'clock for a certain length of time.

Representative Henri Achin, Jr., a member of the board of fire underwriters, who was in the vicinity of the fire all forenoon yesterday, made the following statement when seen by the writer this morning: "Too little attention is given to the fire preventive point of view in the construction of large buildings. St. Jean Baptiste church was built similarly to thousands of church buildings throughout the country, that is, with a blind altar and spaces varying from six inches to three feet between the roof and the decorated ceiling, with ceilings supported with wooden beams, which made an easy pathway for the flames and beyond the reach of the firemen. From my observation the fire department did all that could be done under the circumstances, and the men deserve credit for keeping as close to the flames as they did, which is evidenced by the large number of suffocations. There is no question that in the reconstruction of the building all fire preventive methods will be utilized and a repetition of yesterday's disaster will be averted."

Firemen Thanked

Chief E. S. Hosmer received a letter from Commissioner Barrett today in which was conveyed the sincere appreciation of the municipal council for the prompt, efficient and faithful manner in which the fire department performed its duty during the fire. Mr. Barrett also expressed his personal satisfaction of the work of the department.

Conditions Were Favorable

Alderman Barrett said today that conditions could not have been more favorable for fire fighting than they were yesterday. "We seemed to be very fortunate in everything. It was

Mayor O'Donnell and Commissioner Barrett this morning received letters from Rev. Henri Watelle, O. M. I., which reads as follows:

On behalf of the Oblate fathers of St. Joseph's parish, I take this means of expressing our deep appreciation of the courageous and efficient work of the fire, police and charity departments of the city of Lowell, in suppressing what threatened to be a most serious conflagration, in maintaining perfect order in the handling of an almost unprecedented situation and in rendering prompt aid to the injured and to the loss of the beautiful edifice of St. Jean Baptiste. The members of all three departments conducted themselves in a most creditable manner.

Respectfully,
Henri Watelle, O. M. I.,
Superior, St. Joseph's Parish.

Sympathy of Citizens

Rev. Henri Watelle, O. M. I., Lowell, Mass.

Dear Fr. Watelle: On behalf of the citizens of Lowell, without regard to race or creed, I desire to express to you the deep sympathy of the entire community on the loss of the beautiful edifice of St. Jean Baptiste. It was indeed an impressive monument to the loyalty and devotion of the French Catholics of Lowell, and a structure to which any citizen of Lowell might point with pride. Knowing the zeal and perseverance of yourself and your assistants, and the great spirit of co-operation between priests and people, I am confident that the Church of St. Jean Baptiste will soon rise from its ashes, more beautiful than ever before, and I enclose my check for $100 to help the good work along.

Respectfully,
James E. O'Donnell,
Mayor of Lowell.

Odd Fellows Block Sold

---Grange Meeting

The auctioning off of the Odd Fellows' block took place yesterday at Central square. The property has for the past 16 years been owned by the Odd Fellows' Building association, which now consists of President Frank O. Byam of South Chelmsford, Treasurer Almond Holt and Secretary E. T. Adams, but as the Lowell Central Savings bank held two mortgages on it and foreclosed, forcing the sale, Mr. James P. Emerson of North street purchased it for $4320, although the president of the Lowell Central Savings bank bid up to $4000. The personal property in the building still belongs to the association.

Mr. Charles Eisner recently residing on the Littleton road, is moving his belongings to the house owned by Mr. George Day, vacated recently by Mr. Fred Fay.

Miss Sarah Hammond, who recently departed for Whitman, Mass., is expected to return in the spring. Mr. Charles J. Chapman of this town who has for the past few winters been in Florida, is very much improved in health and has decided not to go south this winter as he says Chelmsford is good enough for him.

On account of Thanksgiving Mr. McDonald of the Lowell Central Savings bank who collects the savings of the school children in this district will collect the money on Wednesday instead of Thursday.

The bi-monthly meeting of the Chelmsford Grange was held last evening in the Grange hall. The meeting was very largely attended by most all of the neighboring granges. The Tewksbury grange was the neighboring party and a very large number hailed from that grange. Tyngsboro, Westford, Carlisle, Dracut, Pelham, Littleton, Harvard and Groton granges were also largely represented by members. The opening of the business meeting was at 8 o'clock, conferring on the list of 15 candidates, the third degree, after which the fourth degree was conferred on them. At 9:30 the banquet hall was attended by about 75 people.

BODY OF MISS GARVIN

Found in the Waters of New River

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Nov. 22.—The body of Miss Norma Garvin, daughter of former Governor Garvin, was found early this morning in the waters of the New river by Chief of Police Burlingame and others, who had been dragging the pond all night. The body was discovered not far from shore in deep water, fully dressed as when the young woman left her home Wednesday evening bound to attend a lecture in Providence. The family of the dead woman can ascribe no cause for the act but relate that during the last few weeks she had been more than usually reticent and had taken walks in the evening, which was out of the usual. The body was taken to the Garvin residence at Lonsdale.

Begin to Make Your Christmas Presents Now

PARTY BAG AND ROSE WORK BASKET

Don't put off making your Christmas presents until the last moment, for if you do you'll be sorry. Take time by the forelock and begin now. The illustration shows two gifts that ought to inspire the needle worker to instant effort.

One of them is a party bag made of handsome white damask ribbon three-quarters of a yard long. Two lengths of the ribbon are sewed together, with the ends rounded, one finished with a white silk tassel and the other trimmed with silk fringe. About a centimeter large enough to "take" the ribbon is gathered a piece of the silk. The ring is drawn through the center of the ribbon lengths, and two smaller rings covered plain with ribbon are used to keep the pockets in place. These pockets are made by slitting the ribbon a convenient length in which to insert the hand when a party fan or handkerchief is put in or taken out of the receptacle.

The second cut further illustrates the use of ribbon. In this instance a charming workbag is made of the rose

Casserole Cookery
The virtues of the casserole are many, but do not seem to be generally appreciated by American cooks. It takes less heat to cook food in a casserole than in the usual ways. There is no danger of burning, and natural flavors are retained, as in paper bag cookery. In fact, some cooks say that the casserole is just as good as the paper bag without its disadvantages. One cannot, of course, throw away the casserole after using it, but it is much easier to clean than ordinary cooking utensils. The casserole can be used either on the stove or in the oven and is the finest thing in the world for making tough meat edible.

A Thousand Foot Skyscraper is a Coming Possibility

Thirty-eight years ago an English poet, James Thomson, wrote a poem which he called "The City of Dreadful Night." It attracted much attention. Long afterward a bright newspaper man, with Thomson's poem in mind, dubbed New York the "city of dreadful height."

It's a good title for a place whose architecture is more multitudinal than longitudinal. It is a city where a giant might walk from roof to roof 300 feet above the earth's surface and not stretch his legs very much farther apart than a six foot does now in striding on Mother Earth's bosom.

Now comes Cass Gilbert, designer of the 750 foot Woolworth building, loftiest of inhabited structures, and tells us that the end is not in sight; that before the present generation sees the limit of height reached it will have to learn to stretch its dorsal vertebrae as well as its cervical bones.

"There isn't any last word in skyscrapers," says Mr. Gilbert. "The only question is one of economic success. Provided with sufficient base there is no reason why a hundred story building should not be erected, as far as safety is concerned. But the question is whether it would be a paying investment. It is a matter of economic limit in which the elevator service plays an important part. In order to provide proper elevator service we estimate that one elevator can serve about 15,000 square feet of floor area. By computing the area of the floor space we arrive at the number of elevators required. This has proved a reasonably good service. Consequently the higher the building the greater the space taken up by the elevators, and hence, from an economic standpoint, the height of buildings must be limited owing to the excessive amount of rentable space used by the lifts."

The man who talks thus easily of the possibility of putting up a hundred story building that shall not topple over is well qualified to talk on the subject of architecture. He put on paper the plans for the Woolworth building, which, because of its beauty nearly as much as its astonishing height, has to his credit structures that adorn New York and other cities. One of the emblems of his superlative sense of form is in the beautiful custom house of New York, called by many critics the finest government building on earth. St. Paul possesses one of Mr. Gilbert's masterpieces in the new state capitol, and the University of Minnesota, at Minneapolis, owes to him its general plan, as does also the University of Texas. These are only a few of the buildings which Mr. Gilbert has designed.

Mr. Gilbert says the skyscraper is to him the most modern and most interesting problem there is in America. How to combine great height with architectural distinction is the question. When the eye mounts up and up, "higher still and higher," like Shelley's skylark, the vision is lost in an endless succession of windows and cornices.

In connection with skyscrapers it is interesting to note that one may stand at a certain point in lower Manhattan, New York city near the entrance to the Brooklyn bridge, and see no fewer than six high buildings, each in its time the "last word" in skyscrapers. Possibly one of the most interesting sights in the metropolis is the contrast afforded by the Woolworth building and the Park Row building. In its time, a decade or so ago, the Park Row building was one of the wonders of the universe. With its twin towers, rearing themselves aloft to the height of 252 feet above the sidewalk it would be impressive and dignified standing by itself on a plain or in the midst of lower edifices, but nearby rises—serene, majestic, beautiful—the elongated bulk of the Woolworth building, almost twice as high. In your mind's eye place beside the latter structure another 250 feet higher—1000 feet of perpendicular building. Will the designer of the top floor have to keep near him a tank of oxygen to revive him if overcome by the rarefied atmosphere, or will doctors send their ailing patients to inhale mountain air on the top of the skyscraper?

Gradually stir this mixture into the sifted flour and soda, then fold in the

ST. VITUS' DANCE

The Cure of This Case Is of Vital Interest to the Parents of Every Nervous Child.

Mr. James P. Thompson, a well-known printer, of No. 301 West Lake street, Memphis, Tenn., has recently told of a cure in his family that will interest every nervous sufferer. Parents of pale, weak, nervous school children will be especially interested. Mr. Thompson said:

"I have a son, Ray, who at the age of five years was seized by some boys. In about two weeks' time he broke down or gave away completely. He had to go to bed and the doctors said that he had St. Vitus' dance. During the entire night and for many nights he would be awake and cry. He could not sleep at all, but would roll and toss all night long. His arms and head jerked and twitched and he became so nervous that he could not feed himself. He got so that he couldn't even speak. He had particularly bad spells, which came on about every three months. He was confined to bed for two months when he was first taken sick."

"I had a nerve specialist and two of the best physicians in Memphis with him during the first year of the disease. They couldn't do anything for him and didn't help him a bit. Finally the last physician said that he would have to outgrow it. I then bought a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They helped him right away and, although he had been sick for a year and a half, he began to eat and to gain strength. I gave him the pills until he entirely recovered his health. He has never had an attack of St. Vitus' dance since. He is attending school and is in perfect health."

St. Vitus' dance, nervous debility or neurasthenia, neuritis, sciatica, nervous headaches and nervous dyspepsia are due to tired, weak, exhausted nerves. The correct treatment in each case is to build up and purify the blood, which alone can give the nerves nourishment. Unless you build up the blood, it is useless to try to reach the nerves with medicine or nourishment. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain the very elements which enable the blood to nourish the nerves until they become strong.

Write today for the free booklet, "Diseases of the Nervous System." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50c. per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

whites of the eggs beaten till stiff. Bake in a round tube pan.

Philadelphia Cream Cheese

Where one has a large quantity of sour cream on hand the best and most economical use of it is in the making of Philadelphia cream cheese. Have ready a perfectly clean and strongly sewed cheesecloth bag and the freshest of lapped cream, not very rich in butter. Do not heat it over the fire or add hot water to it, as when making ordinary cottage cheese. This would melt all the butter in it. After putting the cream in the cheesecloth bag rub the outside of the bag with salt. Let it hang in a cool, dry cellar for two or three days or until every drop of the whey has been drained off and the contents of the bag feel firm to the touch. Remove the cheese and serve it as it is or beat it until light with a fork. Add a little more salt if necessary and some sweet cream if desired. This cheese is superior to the average commercial variety and just as good as the very best.

Salad Dressing With Sour Cream

Not all salad makers like sour cream in their salad dressing, but those who do will wish to put the following recipe in their culinary scrap books: Have ready half a cupful of thick sour cream, rich and newly lapped, three tablespoonsful of vinegar, a big pinch of salt, sugar and pepper. Beat the cream until it is as light as possible with a wire egg whip or a fork. The motion of the rotary beater is not so good for this purpose. Gradually add the vinegar, sugar and seasoning. Serve very cold. Be sure to use plenty of salt and pepper.

Ginger Cookies With Sour Cream

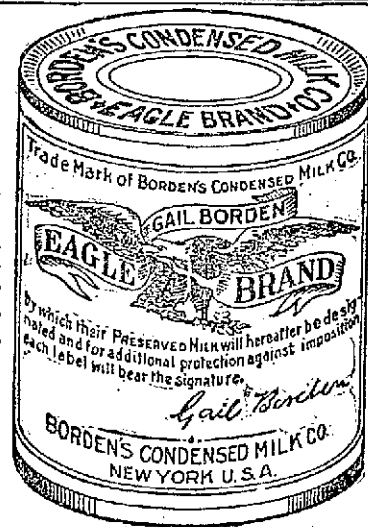

This is the well tested recipe of a fine cook: Have ready: one egg, one cupful of sugar (either brown or white), one cupful of shortening, one cupful of molasses, one cupful of thick sour cream, two heaping teaspoonfuls of soda, one level teaspoonful of salt and one heaping teaspoonful each of ginger and cinnamon. Mix the ingredients in the usual way, with enough flour to make the mixture stiff. Put them together at night and let them stand until morning, then give the dough another stirring, adding more flour if necessary, and roll it out to a little less than half an inch in thickness. Bake in a quick oven.

Newest In Face Veils

Rosebuds, violets and clovers run riotously, but in self color, over the new veils in black, indigo blue and dark brown octagon net of the finest sort. These veils are vastly becoming and in excellent taste because the design, while distinct, is not heavy. Patterns of the lovely shadowy order also are in high favor. These appear upon the octagonal meshes and are prettily in the standard black, blue and brown, but most fetching and becoming in café au lait shade—a tone which flatters any sort of complexion and, broadly speaking, may be worn with any sort of hat but the one designed for rough and ready use.

BAY STATE STOREHOUSE ON JACKSON STREET

Transportation night, which was observed last evening at the Bay State Storehouse on Jackson Street by the Lowell Board of Trade, was from every aspect a great success. The attendance numbered over 100 and the gathering manifested more interest and enthusiasm in the cause of transportation than has been shown in this regard in Lowell on any former occasion. Those in charge said that it was a long step forward toward the realization of the hopes of the citizens of the towns and cities of the Merrimack valley.

It was through the courtesy of Mr. William R. Brown that the party were the guests of the Bay State Storehouse last night and all who partook of his hospitality had many words of appreciation and gratitude for his generosity and interest in the project. Some of the speakers who it was supposed would be present to address the meeting did not appear. Mr. Ives had to decline at the last moment because of an important engagement elsewhere, while Captain Woodman's physician wrote saying that the captain was ill and could not attend. Secretary Murphy of the Board of Trade, however, immediately set to work to fill the places of the absent ones, and all who heard the addresses from the orators of last night agreed

A Physician's Substitute for Dangerous Calomel

When you feel that your liver and bowels need help take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Substitute for Calomel. Calomel is effective, but dangerous—causing bad after-effects. Olive Tablets are especially made to take the place of Calomel. Dr. Edwards for years has been Calomel's foe. He saw its dangers and its disadvantages in 17 years' practice, treating patients for all kinds of liver and bowel complaints. In his efforts to do without Calomel he developed his now famous little olive-oil-colored tablets. Olive Tablets are mild but effective. Safe and sure. Pleasant to take but unfailing in results.

Olive Tablets oil the bowels just enough to start Nature's own action, and they tone up the liver at the same time. They are made from a rare combination of vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

If you want to regain that feeling of joyous buoyancy and clear thought take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They work like a vacation. 10 and 25 cents per box.

President Gray

President Arthur L. Gray, of the local Board of Trade, called the meeting to order, and in a few words complimented the gathering on the interest shown, expressing himself as highly pleased with the large attendance. He introduced Mr. Leslie K. Morse of Haverhill as "The Live Wire," and before the latter had finished speaking it was clear to all that he was well worthy of the above appellation.

Leslie K. Morse

"I am not a speechmaker," began Mr. Morse. "I am a farmer and a real estate man."

Mr. Morse read figures which he had presented at a meeting in Boston and which, he said, though taken more from Haverhill firms and measured by Haverhill standards, nevertheless applied to Lowell, and the other cities in the same way. In part, he said:

Nature has given us one of the most beautiful streams that flows into the Atlantic ocean. She rises in the great lakes of New Hampshire and flows south through New Hampshire into Massachusetts, running through the Merrimack valley, where nature has left nothing undone to make it as beautiful as it ever did the Hudson. But what I want to show you this evening is what an oversight there has been in the past in not developing this magnificent stream where so many bustling industries are built upon its bank. The Merrimack turns more spindles than any other river in the world. Now, let us go back a few years. The first project for the improvement of the Merrimack was at Newburyport harbor May, 1828. From that time to 1870 forty-four years have elapsed, from 1870 to 1874 and in January, 1890, appropriations amounting to $354,466.72. In March, 1899, an act calling for a seven-foot channel at mean low water to Haverhill at a cost of $171,442.70. This was completed in 1907. At the present time we have seven and seven-tenths feet at the mouth and Haverhill has 4.5 feet at low tide. Let me show you why we think we are justified in calling upon the United States for a continuation of this good work.

Now we will get down to facts. The population of Essex county is about 535,490, taking in Manchester, Nashua and Concord; you can add 117,575 more, besides 25 or 30 towns close to our border line. There are 1939 manufacturing establishments in Massachusetts. There are 116 in the Merrimack valley, or about 22 per cent of the whole state. Essex county produces more than any county in the state of her size in agriculture. If we had water rates we could find a daily market to New York and Boston. We come now to one of the greatest problems of the shipping facilities which we have. First, we will take coal. It costs 55 cents per ton to lighter coal from Newburyport to the Haverhill wharf and in addition to that 20 cents can be added for the breaking in reshipping the coal, making 75 cents a ton. Haverhill uses 20 per cent of water rate coal in 1911, amounting to 70,705 tons. That would be a difference to the poor and worthy of $56,564. Go on to Lawrence. She has railroad rates, which are higher than the water rates. We will consider at the same rate as the Haverhill coal. She could save on her consumption $113,128 and so on to Lowell, on even terms, on her consumption she could save $169,692. One firm in Haverhill alone could save $50 every day in the year. The sum total of the savings in these three cities on coal in 1911 would have been $333,331. This is only one article; we might mention fifty or more similar.

I ask you in the name of fair play, if it is not high time that the federal government's attention should be called to one of the best and most worthy propositions in the whole United States considering that our product goes to all parts of the globe. As president of the Merrimack Valley Waterways' association, we ask this organization, the Massachusetts real estate exchange, which considers it one of the greatest and most powerful, the most influential and the most successful organization in Massachusetts, to consider this proposition and I wish to thank them for the interest and the endorsement that they have taken in the waterway improvement of our state.

In conclusion he referred to the convention at Washington which will take place on Dec. 4, 5 and 6 and he urged a large attendance from Lowell. "You can make the government pay for it," he said. "Just let them know we are in Washington, we'll scare them out of their wits, we will launch our proposition and they will do all in their power to help us along."

Mr. Gray then read a letter from the Middlesex Woman's club in regard to a pure food fair which the latter are going to hold and at which a board of trade and city officials might be held. The letter was in the form of an invitation to the board of trade, to attend.

Captain Miller

He then spoke of Captain Miller, an expert on Merrimack river questions and one who has navigated that stream all his life. Captain Miller was present and answered a few questions. He said that the boats could be run on the river throughout the entire winter if the channel were constructed.

Henry C. Long

The next speaker to be introduced by Mr. Gray was Mr. Henry C. Long, Esq., author of the Boston port bill and also of a bill favoring the Merrimack valley waterways board.

Mr. Long opened his address with an expression of his pleasure at the large attendance and said that he only regretted that he could not use lantern slides to illustrate his talk.

The sentiment in this matter of waterways is almost unanimous but the people want a leader to put up something definite. The matter so far has been taken up very well for there are many live fellows who get out and hustle. We have got to get busy and show ourselves at Washington and you will then get the best of service at Lowell without any difficulty.

The freight situation here has been very unfavorable to our city. If you care enough about having this evil corrected to go after what you want, it will be done. Go in a body, somewhere, let Mr. Brown here be your leader, and you will get what you go after. He knows freight rates, what they are and what they should be, and you are fortunate in having a leader of his stamp in Lowell. Ask Mr. Brown to do what he says, and your problem will be solved.

In his discussion of the waterways, Mr. Long spoke of the ice difficulty and how it may be solved. He has been interested in the ice breaking business on the St. Lawrence river and I have watched the process there. They operate their vessels there all winter, breaking the ice by means of boats which are especially constructed for that purpose. And if you get one of these ice breaking vessels here, these they have on the lower St. Lawrence river, you will have no trouble, for one of these machines handles three feet of ice like so much paper. And on the Merrimack river, no three feet of ice are going to form over night.

What makes a city is a good live transfer station. The more lines of travel you get, the more city you will have, and the more city you have, the more manufacturers will come. At present it is possible to run big boats from here to Nashua without any trouble, boats as large as those used on the Mississippi river. This fact should aid in making Lowell a very attractive point. You ought to be doing the shipping of South America out of Lowell, and you will do so.

Half the commerce of Europe is carried on over water no deeper than the Concord river here and in Europe that forms canals out of streams which we would call brooks in this country. For instance, there are about 10,000 small boats on the Rhine. Down in Mississippi and near their river they can construct a boat that will carry a large cargo of freight over about 30 inches of water. It is a saying there, that they can build a boat that will make a pretty good sailing on a fair fall of dew.

Mr. Long then presented to go to Washington in a body, pointing out the good they can accomplish by so doing. He told several stories which were extremely funny and which made a great hit with his hearers. In one of these he assumed the dialect of the southern states and said:

"Mr. Long, in severe terms, attacked the control of New England by New York financiers. He openly and in language that could not be misinterpreted, flayed the ownership of the Boston & Maine railroad, saying that it is the only way in which the state and New England can get away from being owned body and soul by these trusts and railroads, and obtain good and just freight rates. He went much into detail in this regard and gave estimates of the freight rates, which are now exorbitant, but which the people sit and pay without a murmur."

In conclusion he said: Drive the matter home, now; go down there to Henson Hill and do things; let them know that you are there. I'll play the goat and take the blame if you only come and warm a chair, so that your congressmen can point to you and say: These men want a change made in the Merrimack river; they want proper and just freight rates; and you will get what you want without any difficulty."

Mr. Brown of the Bay State Storage Company then answered questions regarding the freight rates to Lowell from the different parts of the country. He is very familiar with the question of transportation and will be of great assistance to the project. He then invited the gathering into the next room where a buffet lunch was served and greeted by all.

COLLEGE MEN IN POLITICS

Thomas W. Lawson makes a strong appeal for the advent of college men to politics. Lawson, of course, is a college man and he doubtless feels that he is a model for other men although we do not believe anybody else shares his opinion on that point. College men are not to be condemned as such, for other things being equal, the man who has a college education has an advantage over those who have not. Let it be understood, however, that there are thousands of college men who make little or no use of their education and who could barely make a living if cast upon their own resources. True it is, that Governor Wilson is not only a college man but a college president. It is also true that ex-President Roosevelt is a college man as is President Taft; but this fact does not explain the qualities of the one or the other. President Lincoln was not a college man and yet we doubt whether any president since his time has equaled him in the actual qualities of real greatness.

In these days of enlightenment every man who intends to become a leader of his fellowmen should have a college education. If he has not he must work a great deal harder to attain the knowledge and the development that a college course would give; but there are thousands of men who have never spent a day in college and who will probably be considered the equals of most men who have had every advantage of college training.

If a man has not the elements of strength and character that go to make him great he cannot secure them in college. Training that will develop not only the faculties of mind and body but also the moral character, is of great value, but it can be secured and very often is secured outside college walls, and the men thus trained are often the equals, age, even the superiors of those who have been blessed with every opportunity of a college training. We must, therefore, assert that the worth, the power, and the greatness or the insignificance of a man cannot be estimated from the place in which he received his education. There are hundreds of other considerations that go to shape the character, the ability and the attainments of the individual man and, therefore, he must be taken for what he is, regardless of where he got his education or whether he is or is not a college man. The school of experience for some men is a great university and for some neither this nor any other school can lift them above mediocrity.

If a man has the right stuff in him, emergencies will find him to fight far better than a college education. "For there is a strength deep hidden in the hearts of which we seek but little till the shafts of heaven have pierced its fragile dwelling. Most not earth is rent before her gems are found?"

AGAINST GOOD GOVERNMENT

There is no use in preaching or moralizing to a certain class in this community about good government. They don't want it.

They want a man who will use the city's money wastefully with the understanding that they or their friends will be the beneficiaries. They do not want a man who will be tight-fisted with the city's funds. They will not tolerate such a man in office if they can drive him out.

The man who will put the political ladder to work, who will keep him at work and prevent any boss from interfering with him, will have the approval and the support of the element we mention.

This is the element that stands not for good government, not for honesty, not for square dealing, but for grafting, corruption and easy jobs at the city's expense.

Is there any further proof of this needed than what we have seen during the past year?

There are probably about 1500 men who do not want honest officials at the head of any department in city hall, and there are, besides, certain interests that will back the most corrupt and the most incompetent officials if only the latter can be depended upon to vote a certain way on important privileges to be granted or withheld during the year.

Of what use can a new city charter be under such conditions? We cannot see any possibility of reaching anything like an ideal condition of affairs unless the city pays other officials to watch those at present in office or those yet to be elected. The problem of dealing with a large element that persists in voting for bad government is the next to be solved and how to deal with it is a matter of extreme importance to this community.

NEW MAP OF EUROPE

The recent war will cause a change in the map of Europe that will require new editions of all maps, geographical and cyclopedic that make any pretense to being up to date. The changes will be expensive to publishers, but the public will eventually pay the bill and a good deal more.

CHRISTMAS TREES

The department of agriculture has done a wise thing in putting a ban upon the shipment of Christmas trees from one state to another. In past years there has certainly been a very serious slaughter of young trees about the Christmas time. When there is such a scarcity of wood pulp and when the price of lumber is so high it is well to preserve young trees that in a few years will attain considerable value for use as building material or in the art of paper making in which wood-pulp is now largely used.

THE ARTIFICIAL COAL FAMINE

The federal government alone can solve the mystery of the high price of coal. With plenty of coal mined and ready for delivery the dealers cannot get it and the price continues to soar. It is time the government interfered to prevent any further imposition upon the people as the scarcity is obviously artificial and is manufactured for the purpose of swindling the people. The government should assume direct supervision over the mining of coal in the interest of all the people.

On his trip to Bermuda, Hon. David I. Walsh had an opportunity to form the acquaintance of Governor Wilson, president-elect, and perhaps also to discuss cabinet appointments. It is understood that Mr. Walsh would like to have Governor Foss made secretary of the treasury. He would fill the place with more ability than the present incumbent, but we believe he would rather remain on Beacon Hill.

One of the things that Lowell wants to get rid of is provincialism. We are now big enough, old enough, broad enough and we hope wise enough to cast aside all narrowness and all provincial ideas that render us more like a lot of discordant elements between which there is no cohesion or affinity than a community that should be of one mind for the common good.

If, as is alleged, the Instrument Makers' union has entered a protest with the American Federation of Labor against the use of old Cremonas or Stradivarius violins, they certainly have made a serious mistake. As well might they object to the ten commandments as an antiquated formula that interferes with modern ideas.

From the results of the primary elections held Tuesday, it appears that imposition upon the credulity of the voters was a great factor in landing some candidates high on the list.

So he tells it to his boy, but his boy has a Irishman and he tells four dozen. And my boy says I bought five dozen lemons. Ain't dey keep?"

Lowell is not the only city where women are taking an active part in politics. We read that the city hall in Salem presented the aspect of a department store on election day. Wednesday night, when scores of women stormed the office of the registrars to register as voters in the coming contest for election to the school board. The hurried rush of feminine pollsters on the last day of registration was caused by the advent of a new factor in the school board fight, and when the smoke cleared away at 10 o'clock, the closing hour, 20 women were still in line, but were unable to get their names in.

Mrs. Arville C. Gove, wife of former councillor William H. Gove, and one of the wealthiest women in Salem, was responsible for the furor. Later Wednesday she suddenly appeared at city hall with an automobile filled with women. They all went in and registered for the coming city election. Then they departed, and in no time Mrs. Gove was back again with another lot.

By the time she had arrived with her second lot of voters, things began to move. Friends of the candidates for the school board thought they knew where Mrs. Gove was working for, and inside of an hour there was more pre-election excitement than had been witnessed since Arthur Howard's first campaign. There was a rush for autos and soon six machines were tearing about all parts of the city, scooping up women wherever they found them, then dumping them down on the astonished registrars.

Commenting on the action of the British house of commons in resolving that the penalty of the lash shall be imposed for a crime which is not included among crimes of violence, the Hamilton Herald (Hamilton, Ont.), says editorially:

Our forefathers relied too much on corporal punishment for the reformation or intimidation of offenders. A modern penology teaches that such punishments as whipping at the cart's tail, ear-cropping, standing in the pillory, and being fastened to a ducking stool and half-drowned, were really not reformatory in their effects. Nor would modern humanitarian sentiment tolerate such forms of punishment. Indeed, modern humanitarian sentiment has gone rather too far, and has often degenerated into baby sentimentalism.

Of late a reaction has been observable. There are signs of a partial return to the old attitude in favor of corporal punishment for certain offenses. We think this reaction is healthy and in the public interest.

There are criminals to whom imprisonment has no terrors and the prospect of imprisonment is no deterrent to crime, but who are in deadly fear of the lash. Men of brutal type—wife-beaters and assaulters of women and girls—should get the lash in addition to imprisonment, for the only way to keep such offenders in check is by terrorizing them. Indeed, it is a question whether the lash should not be used upon all persons convicted of crimes of violence, particularly crimes of an aggravated type.

But the British house of commons has recently, by a large majority, decided that the penalty of the lash shall be imposed for a crime which is not included among crimes of violence. By passing the criminal law amendment bill, the house provided for the whipping as well as the imprisonment of all males convicted of engaging in the white-slave traffic. As originally framed, the bill provided for whipping on a second conviction, but the house adopted an amendment imposing the double penalty for a first offence. Some voices were raised in protest. It was argued that lashing has a brutalizing and degrading effect; but the majority concluded that, for obvious reasons, a white-slaver cannot be brutalized or degraded any more than an over-type egg can be made bad.

Imprisonment only is an insufficient punishment for the man who exploits girls as commercial commodities and makes profit out of their degradation. Our legislators at Ottawa would do well to amend the criminal code so as to make it conform to the new British law aimed at the white-slave traffic.

ROAD TO HAPPINESS

This is the road to Happiness: Start now from where you are; Turn to the right and keep straight on.

And you'll not find it far. Along the path of Willing Feet, And over Heartless Hill, Across the field of Sweet Content, The stream of Glad Good Will; Then through the lane of Loving Heart.

The road that's called Today, And down the steps of Little Things Into the Common Way.

And take the Cloak of Charity, The staff of Wine and Grace, A loaf of Bread of Daily Grace, A bank well filled with Joy; A word of cheer, a helping hand, Some good to give or share, A bit of song, a high resolve, A hope, a smile, a prayer.

And in the Place of Duty Done, Beside the Door of Home, You'll find the House of Happiness—For happiness does not roam.

What Do You Want For An Overcoat?

If you have in mind any particular style of overcoat, provided it is correct this season, you will find it here.

Whether you want an overcoat for dress or for business, for driving or for motoring, subdued or fancy, what ever it may be, it's waiting here for your approval.

DRESS OVERCOATS

The single breasted Chesterfield, coming just below the knee, graceful half box back, of fine coatings in black and oxford, meltons and kerseys with serge, worsted or silk linings, from Rogers, Peet & Co., and other clever manufacturers,

$10 to $35

BELT OVERCOATS

with half belt or whole belt—in 46 and 50 inch lengths, made from Scotch coatings and Chinchillas, lined or double faced, with hand-plaid backs—not only extremely smart but with lots of warmth.

$10 and up to $30

FANCY OVERCOATS

of Scotch effects and Shetlands—made with split sleeves giving the English effect to the shoulders—or with regulation shoulders—button through with broad English lapels.

$10 to $25

GREAT COATS

Made for motoring or driving, great boxy garments, extra long and with a great sweep to the skirt, with shawl or convertible collar that button close in the neck, made from Chinchillas, Shetlands, soft faced friezes and Scotch coatings.

$15 to $45

Young Men's Overcoats

Were $10 and $12, for $7.00

Twenty-one overcoats from broken lots that sold for $10 and $12. Most of these long fancy overcoats, in sizes from 32 to 36. Early in the season, when overcoats are in demand, we reduce prices to $7.00

Young Men's Fancy Overcoats

Were $15 and some $20, for $10

40 coats remaining from at least twenty lots, all smart styles but we have two and three coats only of a pattern, sizes from 33 up to 40. It's a mighty fine lot of overcoats marked down to clear them early; the greatest value you've ever seen for

$10.00

Resumption of hostilities in the Balkans was ascribed as the cause of the movement. The declines were confined to fractions, with the exception of Canadian Pacific, which lost a point. A few stocks advanced, with especial strength in Louisville & Nashville, which rose a point.				Am P new pf	24 1/2	24 1/4	24 1/4

Decision of Alienists is Unanimous

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 22.—The commission of alienists investigating as to the mental condition of John Schrunk, who shot Col. Roosevelt, today reported unanimously that he was insane.

The conclusions reached by the committee are as follows: First, John Schrunk is suffering from insane delusions, grandiose in character and of a systematized variety. Second, in our opinion, he is insane at the present time. Third, on account of the connection existing between his delusions and the act he stands charged with we are of the opinion that he is unable to confer intelligently with counsel on the conduct of his defense.

Good time, Associate, tonight.

Aired Before Judge Pratt
in Divorce Court

DESERTION IS THE PRINCIPAL

His Wife After Six Months of Married Life

Stories of infelicitous marriages were recited before Judge Nathan D.
Pratt in the divorce session of the superior court at the local court house to Gorham street today and decrees nisi were granted in many cases. In the majority of cases heard at the morning session the grounds for divorces was desertion but in one instance a decree nisi was granted when the husband testified that his wife had abused him.

The first case taken up was that of Robert H. Odey, who testified he was married to his wife, Alice, in this city on November 10, 1897 and lived together until June 24th, 1908 when she deserted him.

Fred A. Maxwell was granted a degree nisi in the case against his wife, Luella E., for cruel and abusive treatment.

Flora E. Lincoln, of Marlboro, sought a divorce from William H. Lincoln setting forth desertion as the grounds. She and the libellee were united in marriage in Milbury, Mass., on November 20, 1890 and had four children, three of whom are minors. On March 26, 1908 her husband deserted her and she has not heard from him since. The court granted a decree nisi and gave the mother the custody of the minor children.

Gertrude Grimes, colored, married a sailor, but had not been married long before he left her and the last she heard of him he was in Pittsburg. She said she was married to Andrew Grimes on June 3, 1904 in Boston and later went to Newburyport to reside.

Her husband was a sailor by occupation and having got into some trouble he was sent to jail. After being discharged from the jail he failed to return to her.

Gertrude M. Dean of Somerville, who was married to William A. Dean at Roxbury on Jan. 3, 1903, testified that her husband cruelly treated her. A decree nisi was granted and she was given the custody of her minor child.

Decrees nisi were granted in the following cases:

Laura E. Clark, Newton, lib., vs.
Robert W. Clark, libel., desertion.
Robert W. Clark, libel., vs. Laura E. Clark, lib., desertion. Decree nisi granted. Decree nisi and custody of minor children.

Mary E. Rowell, Somerville, lib., vs.
George W. Rowell, libel., desertion.
Decree nisi.

Daniel Kiss, Everett, lib., vs. Julia Kiss, libel., desertion. Decree nisi.
Adam C. Quinn, Cambridge, lib., vs.
Hugh B. Quinn, libel., gross and confirmed habits of intoxication. Decree nisi and custody of minor children.

Lillian E. Murryatt, Everett, lib., vs.
Albert H. Murryatt, libel., adultery.
Decree nisi and custody of minor child.

Suit Against Boston Lawyer

The case of James C. McLellan against Samuel A. Fuller, a Boston lawyer, which opened before Judge Mc-Laughlin in the session with juries in the superior court yesterday afternoon, was resumed this morning.

Mr. Fuller was counsel for the plaintiff in an action against the Moore Spinning Co. resulting from an injury to his son, an employee of the spinning company. When the case was called for trial Mr. Fuller was unable to find the notice served on the company as required by law and as a result a verdict for the defendant company was ordered by the court. Mr.
McLellan now sues the attorney for the amount of the claim against the Moore Spinning Co., claiming that he failed to do his duty in the matter of serving notice and is therefore liable.

The plaintiff explained that while he was at work changing a gear on one of the spinning frames at the Moore Spinning Co.'s plant, the machine was started and he suffered serious injuries to his left hand. He was taken to St. John's hospital where he stayed for nine or ten weeks. For two and a half years after that he was unable to do any work. He stated that his left arm is stiff and it is necessary for him to use a bandage on it all the time.

The time pains him considerably in stormy weather and at no time is he able to secure a good grip with the injured hand.

Questioned relative to his talks with Lawyer Fuller, the witness said he met Mr. Fuller on but one occasion before the case was called at East Cambridge. That visit was at Mr. Fuller's office in Boston at which time Mr. Fuller said that he (witness) had a good case and not to worry about it.

MANY NEW BUILDINGS

To be Erected at Catholic University

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Cardinal Gibbons, presiding over the board of trustees of the Catholic university here, has announced that the institution will co-operate with the Catholic university of Louvain, Belgium, in the compilation and publication of the works of Oriental Christian writers. The aid of Catholic savants in Europe has been pledged and the works, it is proposed will be issued annually until a complete record of such writings is completed. These will include writings on religious matters from Syriac, Coptic, Ethiopic and Arabic sources. The board of trustees, which includes dignitaries of the church from throughout the country, will recommend a number of new buildings for the university. The board will be in session several days.

WAS NOT STRANGLED

Doctors Say Mrs. Szabo
Died by Other Means

GOSHEN, N. Y., Nov. 22.—Two physicians testified today that they believed Mrs. Rosa Men-schick Szabo met death in Greenwood lake last July from causes other than strangulation. The testimony contradicted that of physicians who have testified for the state in the trial of Barton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer, charged with murdering Mrs.
Szabo.

"It would be impossible for a man to throttle a woman without leaving marks of his fingers on her throat," testified Dr. Henry Catell of Philadelphia. "I produced the same condition as existed in Mrs. Szabo's throat in the throat of another woman yesterday afternoon." Dr. Arthur Moore declared.
"All I had to do was to lay the body on its back before it became rigid. I watched the muscles contract and collapse through a window cut in the back of the subject's neck."

Dr. Catell said he had seen these conditions produced frequently after death and that they could be caused by handling the body, its stay in the water and other causes.

A WONDERFUL MEMORY

Displayed by a Young Georgetown Student

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The faculty of Georgetown university today is discussing the feat of Thomas Healey, junior, who successfully passed a graduating examination in Greek, going through with the Iliad of 24 books and 15,693 lines as though it were his native tongue. Healey, who is merely a boy and who has been "arimding" in Greek only two years, astonished the examining board with his exhibition of memory and the understanding of the dead language. The lad is a native of Washington.

Election Expenses

Dr. James B. O'Connor filed his primary election expenses with the city clerk today and it read: "Nothing paid out and nothing promised." Daniel P.
Cosgrove filed his on the state election and it read nothing paid and ditto promised.

Buzz Car Drivers

The regular weekly examination for chauffeurs' license was held at city hall this forenoon. The examiner was Albert S. Olsson of the Massachusetts highway commission and he had a class of seven.

Voters Didn't Vote

City Clerk Flynn says that 3400 men and 2000 women who were entitled to vote at the city primaries this year did not vote. His records show that 11,500 men out of a total of 14,900 went to the polls and that out of the 6500 women registered only 4600 cast their ballots.

Some of the Biggest and Fastest Things of Their Kind
That Interest the People of the World Today

Time, the year 2000, A. D. or thereabouts.
Schoolteacher, toquitor (classical for "speaking"):

"Yes, children, in those benighted days of our grandfathers, about the year 1912, they actually thought that steamships 900 feet long were marvels and that airplanes which sailed at the rate of only 100 miles an hour were super-speed. They even boasted of their buildings that they were 'skyscrapers.' You may give a short laugh of derision now if you wish."

In the future centuries delvers into the records of this one will be struck by one characteristic of the people of our age—that is, by our longing or desire or mania—pick your own word—for speed and bigness. We think in terms of millions when our minds turn to money, and when we give thought to other things it is only to the biggest and best of their kind. When the idea of high buildings occurs to us we do not think of the other lofty structures reared by man, but we turn instantly to the Woolworth building, 750 feet high and the tallest of its kind. Thus also in other matters. If we contemplate purchasing automobiles or motorboats we give consideration only to the biggest and speediest we can get, ignoring other considerations. It is the characteristic of the age.

The Emperor, Biggest Ship

That is why anything new that surpasses its predecessor in speed or size is sure of much newspaper space. The gigantic steamship Emperor, recently launched in Germany, will receive a tremendous welcome when she reaches New York on her maiden trip some time next year. Her 900 feet of length will attract America's attention as she steams up the North river to her dock, enlarged expressly for her accommodation. The Emperor was launched on May 23 of this year, and the event was considered so momentous in Germany that the Kaiser lent his august presence to the ceremony. He pressed himself as delighted with the idea that Germany was to have again the "blue ribbon of the seas," taken away from her by Great Britain when the latter country built the Olympic and the Titanic.

When the Emperor pushes her nose past the Battery the New York papers will no doubt get out the pictures showing how high she would look if set up on end in Broadway alongside the Woolworth building. That architectural expression of man's striving for height rears itself in beautiful majesty in lower Manhattan. It is dignified and impressive when viewed from either of the two rivers that inclose Manhattan or from any land side.

The Woolworth is the highest habitable building on earth, but it is not the tallest thing man ever put up. That distinction belongs, and will probably belong for some time to come, to the Eiffel tower in Paris, which is exactly 984 feet high. But no one lives or does business at the top of the Eiffel tower. It is used only for the transmission of messages and for the purpose of observing Paris and the weather. There has been talk of a New York skyscraper to be even higher than the Eiffel tower, but nothing definite has come of it.

The Fastest Aeroplane

Speaking of height naturally brings one to thoughts of the aeroplane. Leconteux, a Frenchman, holds the record for height attained, having mounted 18,635 feet into the air recently. For speed Vedrines, another Frenchman, wears the crown. He won it in Chicago Sept. 4 when he flew at the rate of 105.5 miles an hour. Our picture shows Vedrines in his record flight calling "In full air" around one of the pylons of the Chicago course.

The other branch of aerial navigation, that of lighter-than-air sailing, has its record holders, of course. The illustration shows one of the very latest and biggest of the Zeppelin balloons which are attracting so much attention from our German cousins. This one may almost be said to be their pet, as it is named for their "princesschen," or little princess, Victoria Louise, only daughter of the Kaiser. The latest Zeppelin has sleeping quarters and a kitchen, wireless telegraph apparatus with a range of 600 miles, the engines of 510 horsepower, searchlights and machine guns. So you see it is more than a balloon in the old sense. It is a veritable "ship of the air" and the recent report that one of the monster Zeppelins had been sent out on a forty-hour voyage caused no astonishment.

freight engine seated comfortably in the firebox. The freight engine doesn't belong there ordinarily. It's just put in to show relative sizes.

Immensity of the Big Locomotive

We could if we wished give you a string of figures as long as your arm to prove the immensity of this locomotive, but we won't, because the figures would not convey much idea to the man who is not versed in technical railroad matters. But we can't help remarking that the total weight of the engine and its boiler alone is fifty feet one and one-eighth inches long. When the tender calls for fuel and water supply it takes 12,000 gallons of water and fifteen tons of coal to satisfy its demands.

We ought to tell next, we think, about the new Pittsburgh bridge, which has a mammoth reinforced concrete arch of greater magnitude than any other similar structure in the world. It must be understood, of course, that this is not the world's largest bridge; merely the one having the largest reinforced concrete arch. The arch forms part of the Larimer avenue bridge over a deep ravine in the eastern residential part of the city and measures 312 feet clear span.

In Australia there is a huge arch of concrete with a clear span of 317 feet, but it is only 36 feet wide, while the Pittsburgh construction is 50 feet in width. Speaking of bridges, it should be made known that the bridge now under construction to connect Long Island with the Bronx will be more than three miles long. It will be the greatest bridge in the world when completed. The longest bridge now in use is the Tay bridge, in Scotland, which is 10,750 feet long. The longest American bridge is the Ohio river bridge at Cairo, Ill., 10,560 feet long.

centres of attraction in the recent big naval review in New York, are 26,400-ton vessels, bigger than any others in commission in any navy. They will be excelled in size by the Texas and the New York, now being built, by the Nevada and the Oklahoma, authorized last year, and by the Pennsylvania. But until these vessels are completed and receive their commissions the Wyoming and the Arkansas will be the queens of the American navy.

Biggest of Land Fighters

Of land fighters the most powerful on earth is the 16-inch gun mounted for coast defense at Sandy Hook. When this gun is fired the shot is heard almost, but not quite, "around the world." The gun weighs 130 tons and can throw a shell 25 miles, but its greatest practicable firing range is about 6700 yards, at which distance the shell, if fired truly, will pierce a 12-inch plate of armor. Gentlemen, the enemy, keep away from the big gun that guards New York!

From big guns to big diamonds is a long step, but we have to say something about the Cullinan diamond because the artist put it into the picture with the other large things. This is the largest diamond in the world. It is so very large, in fact, that it had to be cut into sections before it could be used. The biggest part was set into the sceptre of the king of England, for the Cullinan was presented to King Edward VII after it was found in South Africa. It was cut and polished in Amsterdam. When found in 1905 the Cullinan weighed 3,106 carats, and its dissection yielded 100 polished stones, of which the largest weighed 309 3-15 carats. How very, very big this is may be judged from a comparison with the size of the Kohinoor, the wonderful "blaze of light" which had been considered the culmination of the world's products in gems. It weighs only 105 carats.

Miss Riley the Bride of
Mr. Fred Barrows

A 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the chapel of the Immaculate Conception rectory in Fayette street, Miss Elizabeth Helen Riley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Ryan of 32 Sycamore street, was united in the holy bonds of wedlock to Mr. Frederick William Barrows, the popular wine merchant of Davis square, by the Rev. Lawrence J. Tighe, O. M. I., the pastor of the church. The couple was attended by Miss Anna Louise Barrows, sister of the groom, and a cousin of the bride, Mr. Edward Heaton. The bride was attired in a beautiful gown of white tulle trimmed with real lace. She wore a white picture hat and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. The bride-maid wore a charming gown of blue charmeuse with trimmings of chiffon; a becoming blue picture hat with facing of black velvet, and carried a cluster of pink roses. At the conclusion of the ceremony the couple was tendered a reception at the home of the bride's parents, where a delightful repast was served, at which only the members of the immediate families were present.

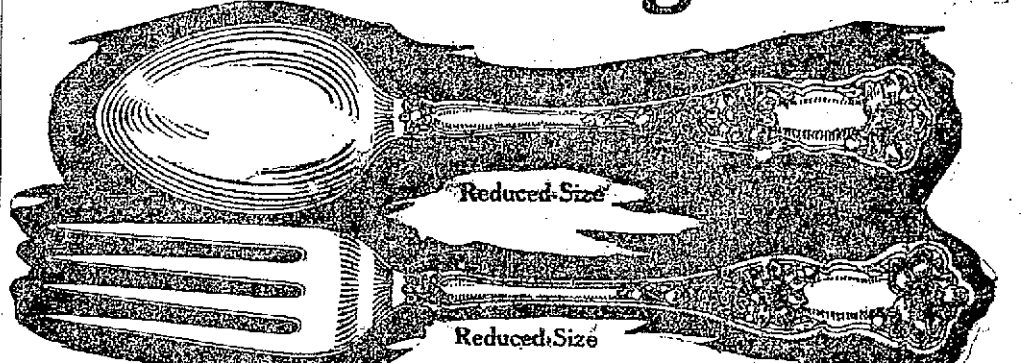

The gift of the bride to the bride-maid was a necklace of gold beads, and the best in recent gold diamond-studded cuff links from the groom.

The wedding march was played by a sister of the bride, Miss Marion Ryan. Solos were given during the evening and the singers were accompanied on the piano by Misses Cora Carrows, Marion Ryan and Anna L. Barrows. The house was exquisitely decorated with potted plants, greenery and ferns. The ushers were William Barrows, John A. O'Connor, John Heaton, John F. Burke, Jr., and Andrew A. McCarthy.

The couple left this city on the 4.45 train for Boston. This morning they left the Hub for Buffalo, N. Y., to visit a sister of the groom, who is a member of the Sisters of St. Mary, and is stationed there. From Buffalo they will go to Niagara Falls, N. Y., and will be at home to their friends at their new residence, 290 Pine street, after Feb. 1, 1913. No cards.

DOUBLE ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED

Mr. and Mrs. John Nolan Have Been Married 40 Years—Mr.
Nolan Celebrates Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. John Nolan observed the 40th anniversary of their wedding at their beautiful home on Central street last evening. The festivities were attended by a number of their immediate relatives and friends and all assisted in making the event a most pleasant one. That they did was evident on all sides, for the gathering was a happy one and all present had a very enjoyable time.

The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion, especially the reception room and the parlors on the first floor. Here the happy couple met their guests and were showered with congratulations and good wishes. Many bouquets were also presented Mr. and Mrs. Nolan, and the floral profusion placed around the rooms was one of exquisite variety and excellence. Included in the numerous bouquets was a collection of 40 Killarney roses, representing the number of years that Mr. and Mrs. Nolan have enjoyed married life.

Shortly after all had assembled the happy couple left their guests to the dining hall where a sumptuous supper was served. At the conclusion of the feast, all repaired to the parlors where an elaborate musical program was given.

CRUST COVERED HANDS AND ARMS

Up to Elbows, Blotches on Face, Very Disfiguring, Itched and Burned. Could Not Sleep. One Cake Cuticura Soap and One Box
Cuticura Ointment Cured.

Montgomery Center, Vt.—"The trouble began with my hands. I looked like claps, but I kept getting worse until my hands and arms were all covered up to my elbows with a thick crust, and it would swell open like a cut where the skin of my hands cracked. I had a few blotches on my face which were very disfiguring, for when I went out in the cold air they would be dark red and would burn. I suffered with itching and burning mostly at night, and I could not sleep. I could not do my work for the pain my hands would be in when they were in water, and could not stand next to the heat."

"I had tried all sorts of ointment and got no help until I tried Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I used one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment which cured me so I have had no trouble since." (Signed) Mrs. Joseph Touchette, Jr., Dec. 27, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for pimples, blackheads, red, rough skin, itching, scaly scalp, dandruff, dry, thin and falling hair, chapped hands and chapped nails that it is almost criminal not to use them. Sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 35-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

THOMPSON AS TREASURER

Veagh Sworn In

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Carroll A. Thompson was sworn in as treasurer of the United States today, succeeding Lee McCullough. In accepting his commission from Secretary MacVeagh, Mr. Thompson said he would retire from political life with President Taft on March 4.

During the summer months, Mr. and Mrs. Nolan, with friends occupy a beautiful cottage at Hampton beach, which was purchased by Mr. Nolan some time ago. The latter was engaged in business here for over 30 years, and met with remarkable success. He retired from activities several years ago and is now taking advantage of his many years of untiring and zealous efforts.

During their 40 years of married life, Mr. and Mrs. Nolan have lived happily and their best of friends hope that they will be in as good health and as entertaining and jovial ten years hence so that they may enjoy their golden wedding anniversary.

Many times they have visited Europe, and especially their birthplaces in Ireland; they also took a number of other trips, visiting many sections of the globe. While in Ireland on a visit, Mr. Nolan purchased a number of costly pieces of furniture and souvenirs, which now occupy conspicuous places in his comfortable home on Central street.
